LEWIS COMES OUT FOR STATE CONTROL OF RUM

Invites Drys to Join Temperance Move.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jacksonville, Ill., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—State control of liquor was the chief theme of James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic nominee for senator, today, in opening his campaign. Out at the race track at the Morgan county fair, in the heart of a dry congressional district, ex-Senator Lewis declared the great issue is to bring back the government to "the principles of its fathers" and reëstablish the old ideal of "state sovereignty and national unity."

After a comparison of the old days under local option and the era of bootlegging moonshine, hip likker, juvenile tippling, and organized crime under Volstead'ism, Mr. Lewis in his peroration urged coöperation of the W. C. T. U., the Anti-Saloon league, the churches and ministers with the Democrats in their program in the interests of "temperance, peace, and sanity."

A Picturesque Setting.

It was a picturesque setting for the Democratic debut. Crowds at the fair grounds filled the grand stand and packed on the rails, while blanketed horses warmed up on the track. Mr. Lewis was in fine fettle, and sprinkled his speech with dialect Negro stories, while from the distance came faint tones of tom-toms and flageolets on the Midway. Judge Norman L. Jones, Democratic nominee for governor in 1924, presided, and Congressman Henry T. Rainey introduced Mr. Lewis in a long speech on the "iniquitous tariff."

Mr. Lewis waded into wet and dry hypocrites, illuminating the subject with a story.

"You've heard of the man in England who went home to his boarding house, and asked, 'Where's all my whisky gone?' 'I drank it up, every drop,' said his landlady. 'I won't tolerate spirits in this house.'"

Lewis Upbraids Republicans.

The Republicans were upbraided by Mr. Lewis, who said they have done nothing on farm relief, unemployment and other economic problems. "In ten years," he said, "250,000 farms have vanished—25,000 in Illinois—while the children are wanderers in the cities. The farmers for ten years have cried out for relief. They were given seven systems of committees and boards. Now, after ten years, they have only a ring of boards ringed about by confusing circles."

The Republican party that has been "out" the state was termed by Mr. Lewis "a caravan of political head hunters." No one of them has offered a cure or voiced a remedy, nothing but promises." It reminded him of the old story and the disbeliever who said, "It's all right so long as the cow kicks the hole, but some day she's going to miss the hole and there'll be hell to pay."

Effort to Evade Law.

"The Republicans," Mr. Lewis said, "have missed the hole on these economic problems."

"The heavy call for action for these pressing needs comes the effort to evade the duty by crying 'you may be saving the life of a wet or failing to kill a dry.' What means this camouflage by which the real issue of prohibition is obscured to avoid the very urgent need of farm and city relief?

"Let us put the true issue of prohibition as it stands in Illinois from the declaration of the political parties and candidates:

"Mr. O'Neill, candidate of the Republican prohibition party, demands that the present national laws prohibiting absolute prohibition of every form of drinking beverage remain as they are written and to be enforced to the letter, with increased vigor. Any violation punished with every imposed penalty.

"Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, candidate of the Chicago city hall Republicans, announces that what is to be decided by the voters con-

When the Chicago Cubs lost the baseball game to the Brooklyn Robins yesterday by a score of 2 to 1 for their fourth consecutive defeat they not only made the tightest race the National league has seen in years a little tighter, but they sent interest of Chicago fandom soaring several degrees above the fever point. The Cubs this morning lead by only ½ game. St. Louis and Brooklyn are virtually tied for second place.

The tension among Cub supporters, which has been growing steadily as the Robins, the Cardinals and the New York Giants have been creeping steadily closer to the champion Chicago club, was near the snapping point last night. Baseball was the chief topic of conversation throughout all of Chicagoland. In the afternoon every score board in the city drew spectators and there were eager ears at every radio loud speaker, as four broadcasting stations sent out the news of the struggle between the Cubs and the Robins.

Telegrams Keep Coming.

Telephone operators at THE TRIBUNE handled thousands of calls for baseball scores and dozens of fans who were unable to reach THE TRIBUNE by telephone on Wednesday night during the height of the rush to sign the telegram sent to Manager Joe McCarthy and the Cubs, called during the day asking that their names be added to the list of 3,800 which was delivered to McCarthy yesterday.

THE TRIBUNE telegram and the long list of signers was presented to McCarthy by Edward Burns, TRIBUNE sport writer, and brought from the champions' leader a promise to keep on fighting.

"The players, disappointed as they now are, join me in this expression of appreciation to the Chicago fans," McCarthy said. "They saw the telegrams and the thousands of signatures in the clubhouse and were impressed more than I can tell you."

Open with Philadelphia.

Last night the Cubs moved out of Brooklyn where they lost three games in three days and today will open a four game series in Philadelphia, playing one game today, two tomorrow, and one on Monday with the last place club. Meanwhile, the Cardinals will be playing the Giants in one game today before moving on to Boston for three days. The Robins will be playing Cincinnati for the next four days, while the Giants will meet Pittsburgh after today's game with the Cardinals.

The Cubs hope to gain back some of their lost ground in Philadelphia and to move into New York on Tuesday with a more comfortable margin on which to operate. Even though their lead now is only a half game over the Cardinals and the Robins, they are secure in the knowledge that as long as they beat the Phillies they can not be dislodged from first place, which after all is better than second or third place.

If they win today's game and both the Robins and the Cardinals win they will still be in front with the following standing:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Chicago	81	59	.579
St. Louis	80	59	.574
Brooklyn	81	60	.575
New York	77	63	.550

What Cub Fans Want.

A genuine stroke of good fortune today, however, would be for the Cubs to win and both the Cardinals and Robins to lose. Then they would be in front by a game and a half. The standing would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Chicago	81	59	.579
St. Louis	79	60	.568

The Cubs still have 15 games to play. If they win 90 games, the number generally accepted as necessary to win the pennant, they will have to win 10 while losing 5. In that event the Cardinals would have to win 11 out of 16, the Robins would have to win 10 out of 14 and the Giants would have to win 13 out of 15 games on their schedule to tie the Cubs. All four teams then would be deadlocked with 90 games won, 64 lost, and a percentage of .587.

But while the possibilities of shuffling the four contending teams are unlimited between now and the end of the season, the Cubs will be thinking more of today's game than any other, for a defeat by the Phillies would shove them down to third place at the Cards and the Robins both won.

MRS. H. P. JUDSON, WIDOW OF U. OF C. PRESIDENT, DIES

Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson, widow of the second president of the University of Chicago, died at 2:45 o'clock this morning at the Albert Billings Memorial hospital on the university campus. She was 70 years old.

While traveling in Europe last June Mrs. Judson was stricken with carcinoma of the brain and returned to Chicago. She had since been confined to the hospital and her physician, Dr. Knute Rueter, a week ago abandoned hope for her recovery.

Before her marriage to Dr. Judson she was Rebecca Gilbert of New York. Her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Jennings Laing, is the wife of the dean of the graduate schools of arts and literature at the University of Chicago. She and Dean Laing were at Mrs. Judson's bedside when she died. Since Dr. Judson's death in 1917 Mrs. Judson had resided at the Del Prado hotel.

WHEN LION SITS IN GRANDSTAND THE CROWD GOES

Port Royal, Pa., Sept. 11.—(AP)—A circus lion escaped from a circus cage during a fireworks celebration tonight at the Port Royal fair, and for 20 minutes sat in the unlighted grandstand unnoticed.

Then the shout of a small boy, "Look at the dog," revealed the animal to the crowd, and several thousand persons rushed for the exits.

State troopers with drawn revolvers formed a circle about the lion until the circus attendants lassoed it and dragged it back to its cage.

Father Brews So Court Will Rule Children

State's Attorney George Carbary of Kane county has invoked a new weapon in his campaign against home brewers among the Belgian colony at Batavia.

Before County Judge Olney C. Allen at Geneva yesterday the state's attorney succeeded in transferring the five children of Simon De Block, confessed beer brewer, from their parents to the County court. Carbary admitted his future policy will be to strike at liquor law violators through their children.

The Batavia constable, Bert Pease, who is Carbary's chief liquor raider, led a squad to De Block's 17 acre chicken farm a week ago yesterday and searched the premises under authority of a warrant issued by Perry B. Wells, Elgin justice of the peace and one of Carbary's assistant state's attorneys. The raiders found a quantity of beer, mash, filled and empty bottles.

Made Wards of Court.

De Block, whose farm stands about a mile south of the home of Joseph De King, whose wife Carbary's raiders shot to death in March, 1929, surrendered with his brother-in-law, Louis Verveat. Yesterday they were brought to trial before Judge Allen.

No sooner had the defendants entered guilty pleas than Carbary filed an information averring that the De Block chicken farm was an improper place for the rearing of his five children, Marian, 14 years old; August, 11; Irma, 10; Germaine, 9, and Charlotte, 5. All but the youngest were at school when the hearing was in progress and Judge Allen, without questioning the mother, Anna, 35 years old, granted Carbary's petition that they be made wards of the County court.

For the present, Carbary announced, the children will be permitted to remain at home, but under strict supervision of Probation Officer Caroline Peaks of Aurora. Should Mrs. De Block attempt home brewing and be discovered by the probation officers, the children will be taken from her, Carbary told the mother.

May Work on County Roads.

The father was fined $500 and sentenced to six months in the Kane county jail. Should he be unable to pay the fine, De Block must serve it in labor on the county roads at $1.50 a day, the judge ruled. Verveat was fined $200, with a similar provision should he fail to pay.

An echo of the killing of Mrs. De King was heard yesterday in the court of Circuit Judge John E. Newhall at Geneva when, at recommendation of Carbary, the $10,000 damage suit filed by the widower against the Kane county supervisors, Carbary and his four agents in the fatal raid, was dismissed. Neither De King nor his counsel, Michael L. Igoe, appeared in court.

STUDENTS OUT ON STRIKE FOR 25 HOUR WEEK

Watertown, Mass., Sept. 11.—(AP)—More than 150 pupils of the Watertown High school went on strike today for a 25 hour week.

Displaying placards announcing, "We want shorter hours," the dissatisfied students left the school at the noon recess, paraded the streets and, according to police, broke a window in the school committee room. The school day hitherto ended at 1:45. An additional hour had been required with the opening of the fall term.

Police assistance was summoned when the paraders reached the school committee quarters and one of the strikers was taken to the station house. He later was released.

Want Longer Lunch Period.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Protesting against restriction of their luncheon period to 25 minutes since the opening of the new term, students of the Hazleton High school went on strike today.

Oak Park Fixes Curfew for Midget Golf Courses

Just what kind of a noise a player makes on a midget golf course was not explained last night by a delegation of Oak Parkers that waited on the village board, but the consensus was that it disturbed the neighbors' slumbers. So an ordinance was enacted compelling all courses to close hereafter at 12 midnight. Incidentally, the annual fee was raised from $75 to $100.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Police today ordered the detention of any person found on the streets in an unclean condition. Several who were doubtful were picked up and turned over to the sanitary department for a compulsory bath.

The Little Man Blunders in His Vengeance

Twice within the last eleven weeks Nicholas Muscato, known to his associates in the 42 gang as "The Little Man," had deemed it necessary to enforce the gang's code against a treacherous member. In executing vengeance Muscato blundered twice. As a result he was booked at the detective bureau last night for two murders.

"The Little Man"—he stands but an inch over five feet—joined the 42's as a stripling of 16 years and had been preying with the pack only six months when he was caught in burglary. He served a term at Pontiac reformatory and, returning to his old haunts with enhanced prestige, became the gang's leader.

Gang Starts Peddling Alcohol

With "The Little Man" for chieftain, the gang recently branched out ambitiously as peddlers on the less important alcohol routes of the "Red" Bolton gang.

Most trusted of Muscato's lieutenants were Frank Petito, who, although only 17 years old, frequently found it expedient to use the alias of Gallichio, and Peter Nicastro, 25 years old, who bore the nickname "The Ape."

When three months ago Petito suddenly sported out in a $3,500 car there were dark whisperings among the gang. The word was passed that Petito had paid down $2,000 cash on the vehicle and that the money came from hijacking Bolton gang stills.

Decide on Execution.

Hijacking a Bolton still constituted betrayal, the gang agreed, and Muscato elected to inflict the penalty. For an assistant he chose Nicastro, and the selection was his first blunder.

"The Little Man" and his second invited Petito for a ride on the night of June 30. Either because he was innocent of the hijacking or because he felt free of suspicion, Petito accepted. They drove to a lonely spot south of Lyons, where Muscato, from the security of the rear seat, dispatched Petito with six bullets in the head and shoulders.

Accomplice Abandons Caution.

"The Ape," who was driving, was not to be deterred from a share of glory. As they rolled Petito into the ditch; "The Ape" drew his gun and pumped five more bullets into the presumably lifeless body. Returning to Chicago, "The Little Man" cautioned his henchman to be discreet.

"The Ape" ignored the injunction. In Polk street poolrooms and dives of the Bolton gang he proclaimed that he, not Muscato, had avenged the hijacking. Then came Muscato's second blunder.

"The Ape" had squawked too loudly and must die, Muscato decided. Early Tuesday morning he took "The Ape" for his ride. At Canal street and Archer avenue Nicastro went rolling from the car with bullets in head and shoulder.

"The Ape" Lives to Talk.

Seemingly lifeless, he was taken to the People's hospital. The doctors injected adrenalin and "The Ape" revived sufficiently to tell how he and Muscato had taken Petito for a ride and how Muscato had taken him.

This evidence, supported by statements gathered by Lieut. Phil Carroll, was laid before Muscato at the detective bureau.

"I'll let a lawyer do my talking," was his only rejoinder.

SECRECY ENDED; SPRAGUE NAMED TO LEAD FIGHT

Grand Jury Inquiry Opens Today.

Home Is Bombed

A black powder bomb was tossed early this morning at the home of John Valentino, 52 years old, 2507 Rutherford avenue, a porter employed by the Chicago Surface Lines. The blast shattered a window and a flower box, frightened Valentino, his wife, and four children, and aroused the neighborhood.

Valentino told Cragin police that in the last few months he had received three Black Hand letters, written in Italian and instructing him to hand $5,000 to a man who would meet him at 24th street and Ogden avenue, Cicero. Although the writer threatened death to him and his family if he refused payment, Valentino ignored the demand, he said, because he did not possess $5,000 and knew not where to raise it.

Col. Albert A. Sprague, former commissioner of public works, who was appointed yesterday as executive chairman of the committee for prevention and punishment of crime of the Association of Commerce, promised more action and less talk in the war to be waged against racketeers. The fight on racketeers was originally ordered by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court in a special charge to the grand jury.

A. A. SPRAGUE.

"Too much has been said and too little done," said Col. Sprague when asked what his policy would be in the racketeer war. "I have no not air to shoot."

Appointed in Secret Meeting.

Col. Sprague was appointed at a secret meeting of some thirty business leaders, a meeting held in the Union League club. He will head a committee listing among its members practically every important business and civic organization in the city.

It is understood that Col. Sprague will take over the work of the so-called "secret six" committee headed by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce. The "secret six" committee was formed months ago to war on gangsters and racketeers, but no reports of progress have so far been made nor have the names of the men on the committee been announced.

The bulletin announcing Col. Sprague's appointment said that he will be "generalissimo of Chicago's forces in behalf of law and order and back up the efforts of Col. Randolph and his five unknown associates."

Committee Members Named.

The names of the complete personnel of the committee which Col. Sprague is to head were made public to show the underworld, it was said, that the business leaders of the city mean to coöperate with money and influence in the racketeer investigation ordered by Chief Justice McGoorty. The list contains the following names:

W. R. Abbott	Amos C. Miller
B. F. Affeld	J. R. Montgomery

H. B. Barnard	R. I. Randolph

Fall Showings of Men's Clothing Now Complete

Grays, blues, and browns—they're all good this Fall, according to observations made during a tour of a number of representative shops and stores for men. Stocks are now complete and variety in patterns and in style is probably as wide as the season will see.

Topcoats to a great many men probably will be more attractive than ever. Homespuns, cheviots, and Scotch tweeds seem to get the call. Some that are particularly favored hang rather loosely, with pockets and sleeves that are more than ample.

When it comes to the matter of values, there will be lots of news for men who haven't investigated the clothing situation in recent months.

It's smarter to make your selection now while the showings are complete.

Lounsbury, who is to handle the investigation along with Prosecutor Charles J. Mueller as soon as the latter finishes with a case now on trial, was preparing for the initial grand jury session today.

Attorney Marshall Solberg, reported to be a $12,000 a year man put into the state's attorney's office at the request of the Association of Commerce to handle investigations of rackets, will be superseded by Prosecutors Lounsbury and Mueller. Solberg, who has not reported a successful racketeer prosecution but who has been interviewed many times since he took office, said that he thought the racketeering business was well under control.

Prosecutor Swanson, however, said he believes that the first line of investigation should be to determine how the city's leading gang leaders and racketeers have succeeded in taking over 33 unions with rich treasuries. This will be the phase on which the investigating forces will concentrate at the beginning.

Attorney Walter Walker of the Employers' association and Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, will be the first witnesses before the grand jury today. They will take the places of Col. Randolph and John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Col. Randolph on Wednesday in an interview said he had no personal knowledge of racksteering and suggested that the jury call Attorney Walker.

Louis Baer, 23 years old, who was arrested on Wednesday night charged with attempting to collect money from a beauty shop owner, was said to be mentally deficient yesterday. He has only one eye. He blamed his plight on a mysterious "Tubby" Walsh. It was suggested that Baer be taken to the psychopathic hospital.

Offers Evidence of Slugging.

Edward Ceslik, a draftsman employed in the board of education offices, who was beaten in the offices by racketeer sluggers because he refused to pay up union dues, appeared at the office of Prosecutor Solberg yesterday to complain. He was told to return today with more statistical data.

George B. Mensinger, 1677 Olive avenue, a technical engineer in the city hall, appealed for police protection yesterday. He told Capt. John Egan that he fears he will be beaten as Ceslik was because he has failed to pay his dues since internal strife began in the Technical Engineers, Architects and Draftsmen's union. The union is headed by T. J. Gilboy as business agent and Arthur Kostka as international organizer.

U. S. Calls "Boss" McLaughlin.

Help from the federal authorities for the racket investigation was forecast yesterday by the calling of John J. [Boss] McLaughlin to the office of Robert E. Neeley, deputy collector of internal revenue. McLaughlin was asked, it was understood, about the difference in his reported income and the returns he filed for 1927, 1928 and 1929.

Prosecutor Swanson plans, it was announced, to turn over to the government any evidence of income tax frauds he uncovers. District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson said he will be glad to receive any such help to his investigations, which have been going on in secret for months.

Motorman Injured in Trolley-Truck Crash Dies

William A. Simmons, 62 years old, 332 Bartram road, Riverside, motorman of a surface line car which collided with a truck last Saturday died last night at the People's hospital as the result of shock and injuries received in the crash. The accident occurred at 22d and Dearborn streets. This death yesterday raised the Cook county auto toll for the year to 705.

JUDGE EXPLAINS FREEING OF TWO ON FALSE BONDS

Night Calls Not Unusual, Erickson Says.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Judge Alfred O. Erickson of the Municipal court explained yesterday why he had approved the bond of a professional bondsman, who went to the judge's home after midnight Tuesday and effected the release of two notorious gangsters, Izzy Alderman and Joe Condi.

JUDGE ERICKSON.

Investigation by Special Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Rathbun and Judge John H. Lyle disclosed that the bond was fraudulent and worthless, and Judge Lyle, before whom the two gangsters are charged with vagrancy, canceled the bonds approved by Judge Erickson and ordered the prisoners back to jail.

The prosecution of Alderman and Condi signalized the opening of a new phase of State's Attorney Swanson's war on gangsters. The prosecutor's office hopes to imprison many lawless hoodlums for the six months hard labor term provided under the vagrancy act.

Judge Tells of Approving Bond.

Judge Erickson said that the bondsman, Gaetano Anselmo, who had been on the bond blacklist and who has signed bonds, for fees, for assorted criminals ranging from confidence men to rapists and murderers, telephoned to him after midnight and told him that his approval of a bond was wanted.

"I told them I had a sick boy at home and asked to be excused," the judge said. "But they told me they couldn't locate any other judge, so I told them I didn't want to turn them down and they came over.

"The bondsman, with another man, came over, and he appeared to be regular. He was sworn to the bond, and I had no reason to doubt its validity, so I approved it.

"The bond in a vagrancy case should be $100. The offense is so trivial."

Asked About Bond Department.

"Isn't it customary to have the bond department of the court approve all bonds?"

"O, yes, but they can't do that at night."

"Is it your policy to approve bonds at night?"

"Why, they come buzzing around at all hours of the night, waking me sometimes at 3 o'clock in the morning."

"Do you allow that?"

"Well, what can I do? I suppose I could shut off my telephone, but I sometimes have relatives coming into town who might telephone me, so I don't like to do that."

"You wouldn't say no to these bondseekers?"

"O, I think it is my duty to approve the bonds if it seems that they are proper bonds."

"Did you know that Anselmo was on the blacklist and that he was a professional bondsman?"

"He wasn't on the blacklist we have now. I'm very careful to study that list before I sign a bond."

"Do you know that the state's attorney was elected to prosecute known gangsters for vagrancy?"

"Yes, and I'm heartily in sympathy with that. But, of course, vagrancy is such a trivial charge. I still believe the bond I took was good. I took the nature of the offense into consideration, believing it called for a $100 bond."

"But Judge Lyle had fixed the bond at $20,000."

"Yet, but the law provides that bail must be reasonable. I don't regret my action, although I don't relish the publicity I received. I probably won't approve any more bonds like that."

Judge Erickson said he did not know that the man who appeared at his home with Anselmo had been jailed by Judge Daniel P. Trude for falsifying a bond.

Swanson Plans Indictments.

Alderman and Condi are scheduled to come up again today before Judge Lyle on the vagrancy charge. They are still in jail. State's Attorney Swanson announced yesterday that the two gangsters would be indicted this morning on the vagrancy charge, which will forestall the gangsters' lawyers from getting them off on the ground of double jeopardy.

The two latest gangsters to be charged with vagrancy in the state's attorneys campaign appeared for a preliminary hearing yesterday before Judge Lyle. After a stormy session the judge fixed their bail at $30,000 each and continued the case until tomorrow. The new defendants are Anthony [Red] Kissane, a notorious hoodlum with a long police record, and Johnny [West Side] Barry, an ex-convict who is now head of the newspaper wagon drivers' union.

Assistant State's Attorney Leonard J. Mandel read the records of the two hoodlums and urged Judge Lyle to hold them in $40,000 bail.

Bonds Fixed at $30,000.

Judge Lyle fixed the bonds at $30,000, and said:

"Now let some real good citizen step up and offer gratuitously to go on the bonds of these two despicable hoodlums. I will gladly lay these men on the lap of any judge who has effrontery enough to lower their bonds. Take them away. It is a pleasure to lock them up and keep them off the streets for awhile."

Barry was released last night on a bond signed by Mrs. Helen Menard of 1957 Washington boulevard, who deposited $20,000 in cash and scheduled four parcels of real estate. The bond was approved by Judge Frank Padden after it had been approved by the Municipal court bond department.

FOIL PLOT OF CHICAGO GANGSTERS TO KIDNAP MILLIONAIRES IN TEXAS

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—Chicago gangland's first attempt to extort money out of the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas appeared frustrated tonight as the two intended victims, millionaires of this city and the sister city of Matamoros, Mexico, across the Rio Grande, were safe.

The five gangsters, including two women from Detroit, had escaped, apparently having been tipped off that officers were on their trail.

Border Patrolmen watched the river today for the men, who had planned for two months to kidnap C. P. Barreda of Brownsville and Juan Cross of Matamoros and hide them while they collected ransom. The gangsters failed to show up at the appointed place.

Officers believe they have left the valley, either going into Mexico or heading north. Roads leading north are being watched.

VIRGINIA BURIES "BAD BUSINESS" IN DEPTHS OF SEA

Lynching Bee and Funeral Led by Gov. Pollard.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—In the presence of 1,000 business men, bankers and manufacturers Gov. John Garland Pollard delivered the funeral oration at the deep-sea "lynching" today of old man "Business Depression," his wife, "Mrs. Pessimism," and his daughter, "Miss Fortune."

The summary execution of the three leading factors in America's economic depression took place on a steamship chartered for a good will tour of Virginia business men between Norfolk and Cape Charles. Regular coffins and the usual rites for burial at sea were employed in consigning three dummies, representing the evils, to the deep.

A clergyman, the Rev. P. Rowland Wagnerfi of Norfolk, conducted the funeral service. The mock mourners were aboard the Pennsylvania steamer Virginia Lee, which halted twenty miles off Norfolk for the ceremony at 6 o'clock this evening.

No Praise for the Departed.

In committing the symbols of slack business to the depths of Chesapeake bay Gov. Pollard said:

"Old man Depression, old lady Pessimism and your unhappy daughter, Miss Fortune, the United States is no place for you. You never had any real justification to be here anyhow. You lived upon mass timidity. You were created by unjustified fears and uncertainties.

"I will say to you, old lady Pessimism, as you stand here on the brink of eternity, about to leave us, that the depths of pessimism to which the country sunk were by no means justified by the facts. Your time has come. From top to bottom in all lines of industry and trade, in the United States and abroad, the leaders of business enterprise are exercising every resource of ingenuity and hard work to eliminate waste and inefficiency that the forces thus set into motion are now turning toward a new and prosperous era is indicated by a study of past business cycles.

Lady Optimism Substituted.

"Miserable creatures, I confine you to a watery grave. Your doom is sealed, old man Hard Work, Lady Optimism, Little Johnny Pay Roll and Miss Good Fortune are here to take your place. I understand that even now Miss Good Fortune has become engaged to Mr. Bigger Buyer, and little Johnny Pay Roll is out playing with Tommy Hard Work.

"We, of Virginia, now assembled on shipboard, in the great and historic port of Hampton Roads, on behalf of the whole country, have decided to become your executioners. The prosperous city of Norfolk has taken you into custody. You have been duly tried by a jury of your peers and found guilty of subterfuge and as undesirable aliens. And now, as governor of Virginia, I hereby proclaim that you shall be sent to the realm of unreality where you belong."

Girl Accused of Fake Mortgage Deal Is Freed

Miss Helen Holsinger, 4901 North Marmora avenue, was freed by Municipal Judge Sbarbaro after she was arraigned before him in the Felony court yesterday on a charge of conspiracy. Miss Holsinger was arrested on complaint of Morris Matsoss, 1130 North Harding avenue, who charged that she had conspired with Attorney Charles A. Goodman to sell him $15,000 worth of fake mortgages. Miss Holsinger said she was the attorney's stenographer and obeyed his orders.

'Cockeye' Ablin Starts New Club; He's Closed Up Again

A new oasis, providing drinks, food, and exotic music, under the capable direction of David (Cockeye Mulligan) Ablin and his brother, Sam, just opened on the near north side, seemed destined last night to be short lived. Lieut. John McGinnis visited the place shortly before midnight and informed the manager:

"Close up and stay closed up or we'll raid you ragged."

Neither of the Ablins was present, but the manager said he would accede to McGinnis' demand as soon as two customers—the only ones in the place—had finished eating. An effort to reach the brothers by telephone elicited the information that they were 'out of the city' temporarily. McGinnis said the café would be kept under surveillance to see that the order is obeyed.

Three Other Clubs Closed.

Both Ablins have been brought to the attention of city and federal authorities time and again, and three of their clubs, the Algiers, Epicure, and Maison Ritz, have been closed within the last year, but their optimism had not been shaken.

The new club, sporting the name of Paroquet, pronounced by the Ablins "Pair Okay?", is located in the second floor of a building at 945 North State street, in the East Chicago avenue police district. Heavy doors, with peepholes and a row of buzzers, guard the entrance. The building presents a sombre appearance belying the gayety that had been promised within. No sign mars the blackened windows which are tightly closed, and the sober awning over the walk bears only the street number for identification.

Select Clientele Invited.

Gay invitations to the grand opening were sent to a select clientele. A little green booklet, with a picture of a dancing flapper on the outside, carried promises of a gay and wet good time.

"Come, you midnight sons of fun," the invitation reads. "We are open every night from 6 p. m. until the purple elephants and the pink giraffes drive us home. The Paroquet, an old Algerian word meaning whoopee, calls to you. The weather is clear and the track fast.

"You will dance to the strains of the most entrancing music—with whom? That is Sam's business. And if, in the process of initiation, your throat becomes dry and your tongue parched—well, that old Algerian, Dave Ablin, will make that his business."

Differ on Opening.

Capt. Michael Delaney, the hard boiled back of the yards captain yesterday afternoon said, "The place is not open and will never open. I would not indorse an application for a license. In the meantime I will take steps to stop preparations."

A reporter during the day called the club and asked if the place was open for business. A very businesslike voice answered, "Certainly. Do you wish to reserve a table for tonight? Dave will take care of you."

DISARM OR QUIT TALKING PEACE! LEAGUE IS TOLD

Henderson Rips "U. S. of Europe" Plan Apart.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—A Methodist lay preacher, who acts as the British foreign secretary in his spare moments, stood up before the league of nations assembly this evening and in old fashioned camp meeting words exhorted the delegates to hit the sawdust trail of repentance before it was too late.

Arthur Henderson—that is the amateur sky pilot's name and the description is exact, for he formerly preached regularly at nonconformist services—flatly told the astounded diplomats that they had not fulfilled the solemn obligations assumed when the league was founded eleven years ago. In a nasal singsong that smacked strongly of a camp meeting pulpit he denounced the armament race which, he said, is leading to another world conflagration and implied that the official headquarters of international idealism numbered more than one rank hypocrite.

Direct Slap at Briand.

The entire speech was a direct rap at Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France, who, in an eloquent speech earlier in the day, recited his contributions to the cause of peace and told the delegates that his scheme for an European federation would secure good will among the nations quicker than anything else.

Mr. Henderson ripped M. Briand's speech to pieces.

"Security is impossible if military preparations continue as they are doing today," he thundered, fixing his eye on the French foreign minister.

"New instruments designed to strengthen the machinery of the league covenant can only become effective when disarmament has ceased to be a mere phrase and becomes a reality. We can never fulfill the purpose for which the league was created unless we carry through the scheme of general disarmament by international agreement."

Springs a Bombshell.

Then Mr. Henderson sprung the real bombshell. He dropped his ecclesiastical intonation and raised his usually tired voice until the galleries resounded, tugging at his collar as if he would rip it off.

First declaring that the British favored the insertion of the Kellogg pact into the league covenant, as well as the Finnish proposal granting financial assistance to an attacked nation, and obligatory arbitration and other pacific measures, he flatly said he would wash his hands of the whole business unless the continental powers agreed to disarm.

"We will accept amendments to the covenant and the treaty of financial assistance on one condition, namely, a general treaty for the reduction and limitation of armaments carried through by the instrumentality of the league," he said.

Cites Naval Reductions.

He backed up his ultimatum by recounting naval reductions made by America and England and called on European powers to do as much, or quit talking peace.

"I hope when the world disarmament conference meets, we will get still further substantial reductions of the British naval forces," Mr. Henderson added. "This is an important beginning, but if it stands alone it is worth nothing. Unless naval reduction can be made general and combined with the reduction of land and air forces the covenant will remain unfulfilled."

This was considered a direct challenge not only to the French and Italians to patch up their naval quarrel, but to all continental nations to stop talking about land disarmament.

The sedate league assembly, where even the angriest of declarations are usually framed in such polite language that only diplomats can interpret them, probably never heard plainer talk but they had heard even blunter words a few minutes later.

"Lacking in Sincerity."

The Laborite diplomat puplit pounder, in rugged language accused the league members of futility in sincerity.

"The authors of the covenant inserted article eight as an obligation to support a general reduction of national armaments by international treaties," he said. "That obligation has not yet been carried out, although it was incurred seven years ago.

"The years are slipping by and only seven years ago a solemn resolution was adopted by the assembly, which declared that conditions for security were provided for by various treaties and would allow a general convention for the reduction and limitation of armaments. The two years have gone by and the convention has not yet been called. The people of the world are growing impatient and doubtful."

By leading the whole issue on disarmament, Mr. Henderson completely overshadowed M. Briand's scheme for an European federation.

M. Briand this morning assured his hearers that there was no attempt to set up a rival institution to the league in the form of a European federation. Rather, he argued, a European federation would assist the league by settling many disputes without recourse to higher authority.

"Can the league of nations alone solve all of our difficulties?, the French statesman asked. "I consider the league will be enormously assisted in this union of European nations. How much would it assist the league if certain questions could be examined by the nations immediately concerned, which very often would be able to reach an agreement on certain problems without bringing them to the league, although the league would always be there, above them all, when the problem becomes too difficult to be solved merely among themselves. It certainly would reduce the work of the already overworked league.

Briand's Peace Plea.

"We, like you, work for peace. We need the assistance of the league. The people of Europe appeal to you in their union to promote the peace of the world."

Despite this assurance Mr. Henderson plainly indicated he did not take the wily M. Briand at his word and declared that before he could give his approval of the European federation scheme, it would have to be closely investigated to make sure it did not menace the league's authority.

Following Mr. Henderson's speech more excitement was created by a sharp attack on American "imperialism" by the Haitian delegate, Dantes Belgarde. He charged that American financial domination threatened all of Latin America and called the Monroe Doctrine a "blank check on which the secretary of state of the United States could write any figures he wants."

KILLS MAN AND WOUNDS ANOTHER IN ROW OVER JOB

A shooting in which one man was killed and another wounded last night caused the arrest of Boleslaw Grahowalski, white haired and 64 years old, of 1451 North Campbell avenue.

BOLESLAW GRAHOWALSKI.

He told Lieut. Patrick O'Connell of the West North avenue station that three weeks ago, when he sold his home to Mrs. Sophia Szymanowski, who owns a two story building on the front of his lot, he agreed to repair the cement sidewalk. He said two men visited him last evening and asked to do the job. They wanted $25 in advance and when he refused to pay it they attacked him, he said. Fearful of his life he ran to his bedroom, seized a revolver and opened fire.

Peter Hansen, 40 years old, was wounded in the left arm and left lung. He is at the Bridewell hospital. The other man, who was shot in the heart and killed instantly, has not been identified.

$3,000,000 BOND ISSUE VOTED BY NO. PARK BOARD

A $3,000,000 bond issue to be placed on the ballot Nov. 4 was passed by the Lincoln park commissioners yesterday. The money is to be used for developments in the northern end of the park system and for construction of grade separations at Lawrence and Foster avenues and the new outer drive.

Hugh Young, chief engineer of the Chicago Plan commission and consulting engineer to the park board, was placed in charge of the work. Plans developed by Mr. Young provide a modified butterfly separation which will permit free movement of traffic in any direction without meeting cross traffic.

President Wright said approval of the bond issue is necessary if the outer drive is to be completed for the world's fair. He added that the work may be done economically now and that the program would do much to alleviate unemployment.

AMMEL, READY TO HOP FOR EUROPE, AWAITS WEATHER

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Capt. Roy W. Ammel, Chicago broker, said tonight unfavorable advices from the weather bureau had caused him to postpone the take-off on his projected trans-Atlantic flight to Paris which had been set for tomorrow. He said he might leave Saturday.

Capt. Ammel took his low wing Lockheed monoplane for a short test tonight. The machine had been examined thoroughly by field mechanics and was pronounced in first class condition for the flight.

The flyer said he hoped to circle above Paris and fly on to Berlin or Rome, according to the amount of gasoline he had left.

Charles A. Lindbergh in 1927.

Philadelphia Resents Position.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—Mayor Mackey announced today he had delivered an ultimatum to Rene Racover, American manager of Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, that unless they come to Philadelphia early in their proposed good will tour they will receive no official reception from this city.

"We are willing to honor these aviators," said the mayor, "but they will have to show some honor to Philadelphia. I will not permit Philadelphia to be placed at the tail end of their tour."

Stromboli Erupts as Quake Strikes Island; Five Killed

MESSINA, Italy, Sept. 11.—(AP)—At least five persons were killed and several score injured, some seriously, in a simultaneous earthquake and eruption of Stromboli volcano near here today.

The eruption blew off the cone of Stromboli, which is on the island of the same name in the Aerolian group near here, and poured burning rock on the town of Stromboli and the villages of Gimostra and San Bartolo.

Lava Pours on 400 Houses.

Four of the dead were killed at Stromboli and one at Gimostra. All of the 400 hundred houses in the former town were made uninhabitable by the great stream of lava which descended.

Fields around the ruined towns were destroyed and flourishing vineyards were wiped out by the searing river. Many buildings were set on fire.

Five ships, including four war vessels, were sent from here to aid the stricken region. They carried food, tents and medical supplies as well as fire fighters and officials. The volcano soon returned to its normal activity.

Lipari island, where the Italian government confines noted political and other prisoners, felt the earthquake at the same time as Stromboli. There was an instant panic and the several hundred soldiers garrisoned on the island were turned out for special guard duty. Those on Lipari were able to see Stromboli erupt. All of the Æolian islands felt the earth shocks.

Volcano Constantly Active.

Stromboli, 22 miles northeast of Lipari, is constantly active, ejecting gas and lava at brief intervals and always is visible at night. It was particularly violent in 1907, the year before the virtual destruction of Messina and again in 1912 and 1915. There were a few casualties reported from a mild eruption in 1919.

Stromboli rises 3,000 feet above the island of Stromboli which has an area of about 50 miles in almost perfect circle. On June 30, 1921, Stromboli burst into activity and poured molten rock and gases from its crater. On that occasion virtually the entire population fled to the shores of the island, embarking on every kind of craft available, but not nearly all of the population could find boats.

Joffre, Ill with Rheumatism, Plans French Health Trip

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Marshal Joffre is suffering from acute rheumatism, according to a statement issued from his home at Louveciennes, a suburb of Paris. He hopes to take a cure at Vittel as soon as his condition permits his removal. Friends say there is no reason for anxiety.

SIX POLICEMEN STILL ON GUARD AT RANIERI HOME

Six Chicago policemen still stand guard, night and day, over Billy Ranieri, the schoolboy whose kidnaping for a $60,000 ransom created a sensation in September of 1928. The policemen, assigned from the Cragin station, stand guard at the Ranieri home, 4901 Altgeld street, in eight hour shifts of two men each.

"Ever since the day Billy was released by his captors he has been guarded constantly by our men," an official of the Cragin station said last night. "Once in a while the question of taking off the guards arises, but each time Ranieri, the boy's father, appeals to the state's attorney's office, and the guards stay."

Angelo Petitti, 1737 Polk street, and Andrew Cappellano, a farmer of Kankakee, were convicted of the Ranieri kidnaping plot before Judge [illegible] and each was sentenced to 20 years in prison. Billy, now 12 years old, is the son of A. Frank Ranieri, a contractor. Threats against the lives of the entire Ranieri family were made almost daily for months following the arrest of Petitti and Cappellano, the police said.

Billy never leaves his home for school or play that he is not accompanied by both his police guards, it was declared.

WETS SEE DRY BUTLER LOSING IN BAY STATE RACE

Believe Both Parties May Pick Volstead Foes.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—Increased optimism as to possibilities in the Massachusetts primary of next Tuesday was in evidence among wet leaders today. Trend of sentiment as shown in various states in this week's primaries caused a feeling among the wets that their senatorial candidates might win in both parties in Massachusetts. An added factor contributing to a belief that the wet cause might receive new stimulus, particularly in eastern states, was yesterday's declaration by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for repeal of the 18th amendment.

Early in the Massachusetts campaign it was thought to be almost a certainty that the Republican senatorial nominee would be dry, while the Democratic nominee would be wet. Former Senator William M. Butler, a dry, has been regarded as having the inside track for the Republican nomination. Latest reports are that Eben S. Draper, a world war veteran and a former state senator, who is the wet candidate, has gained unexpected support and now has a chance to win. If he should succeed in doing so it would reflect a decided shift in sentiment, as the Republican party in the Bay state has remained consistently dry.

Hoover's Friends Aid Wet.

A curious feature of the situation is that a good many friends of President Hoover are aiding Mr. Draper, despite the latter's wetness. Among them is Christian A. Herter, who was one of Mr. Hoover's assistants in European relief work and in the department of commerce. Others, who for one reason or another have indorsed the candidacy of Mr. Draper, include B. Loring Young, who was the Republican senatorial nominee in 1928; Sinclair Weeks, son of the late John W. Weeks, senator and later secretary of war in the Harding cabinet; Henry Cabot Lodge, grandson of the late Senator Lodge; and Mrs. Constance Williams, a daughter of Senator Lodge.

Strong Argument for Draper.

A strong argument in favor of the nomination of Mr. Draper is the admitted fact that Massachusetts as a state is wet and that he might stand a better chance of winning in the election than the dry Butler.

A third candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination is Andrew Joseph "Bossy" Gillis, mayor of Newburyport. "Bossy" Gillis, who has served a jail term while holding his present office has announced himself as moist. He is injecting spice into the campaign although he probably has no chance of nomination.

In the Democratic senatorial primary there are five candidates, only one of whom, former Gov. Eugene Foss, is dry. Marcus A. Coolidge and former Representative Joseph F. O'Connell are regarded as the leading contenders. Other candidates are Peter J. Joyce and Thomas C. O'Brien.

HOOVER NOT TO AID EITHER WETS OR DRYS IN G. O. P. CAMPAIGN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—With the prohibition issue to be met by the Republican party in three important eastern states in the next three weeks, the White House made it clear today that President Hoover, as titular head of the party, would lend no aid to either side in the growing controversy.

In New York, Massachusetts, and Maryland opposition Republican groups will be left to fight out the question between themselves, just as they have in the Republican primaries to date, which have produced striking wet gains in six states.

That the President should bring pressure to bear on federal officeholders to line up with the drys in the states where contests are pending, New York included, as has been suggested by some drys, although not necessarily to Mr. Hoover, is declared to be preposterous.

The President, informed officials say, has no desire to interfere with a free expression of the popular sentiment on this question, but on the contrary, expects to benefit by it, the while proceeding with his attempt to enforce the law as it stands.

West Parks Will Open Fishing Season Sept. 15

The west parks fishing season will open Sept. 15, the commissioners decided yesterday. Fishing will be permitted in the lagoons of Columbus, Douglas, Humboldt, and Garfield parks. All fishing must be done from boats.

ROOSEVELT GETS MUCH APPLAUSE ON LIQUOR STAND

Republicans Warned to Do Likewise.

New York, Sept. 11.—[Special.]—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, foremost critic of the Republican party in this state, today warned the party that unless the Republican delegates at their state convention in Albany, Sept. 25, take the same firm stand on prohibition that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt took yesterday the party will be beaten by half a million votes.

Commenting directly upon Mr. Roosevelt's announcement, the president of Columbia university said that he hailed it with high pleasure and expressed the hope that "the strong men in both parties" would remove prohibition as an issue between the parties by advocating repeal.

Warns Republicans.

Former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, wet leader, from his home in Genesee, said that unless the Republican party stands for repeal it will be "counting defeat" on election day.

Asked if he thought the Republicans could defeat Mr. Roosevelt if they definitely went on record as wet, Mr. Wadsworth repiled:

"I do."

Of the governor's statement, he said that it has won him the admiration of many citizens. He added that the opinions expressed therein did not come as a surprise, since he felt all along that that would be Gov. Roosevelt's prohibition attitude.

Forces G. O. P. Stand.

Wet leaders in New York City generally were of the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt's advocacy of repeal of the 18th amendment makes it politically impractical for the Republican convention to avoid the prohibition issue by a modofication clause or by saying virtually nothing about prohibition and permitting the various state-wide candidates to announce their own programs on that subject.

United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle who is confidently expected to be Mr. Roosevelt's opponent this fall, is expected to make a statement very soon, giving his own views on prohibition. There are those who believe that the governor's announcement was hastened by the knowledge that Mr. Tuttle was scheduled to express his views on that subject himself. The belief grows that Mr. Tuttle will come out wet. The only question remains how wet.

Anti-Saloon League in Quandary.

Should both parties thus go on record the Anti-Saloon league would find itself in a hopeless predicament. Its sole strength would be in "knifing" the Republican candidate, thereby insuring Mr. Roosevelt's election. That is what the league did in the campaign between former Senator Wadsworth and Robert F. Wagner, present senator.

Yet the dry leaders know that this is a poor time for their cause, and besides, even a "knifing" campaign needs money. It is no secret that the drys are badly in need of funds.

Mayor James J. Walker, at city hall, congratulated Gov. Roosevelt. "The governor should be commended for his statement," said the mayor, "because, in my opinion, it subscribes to the wishes of the vast majority of the people of the state of New York."

Alfred E. Smith today said Gov. Roosevelt's statement on prohibition "was exactly what was to be expected from him after the deep and careful consideration which he gave the entire subject."

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, in a telegram to Gov. Roosevelt said:

"Hearty congratulations on your clear statement regarding prohibition. You have struck a new note which I feel will place the Democratic party solidly behind the program to restore temperance and temperate living in our country.

"Your suggestion is admirable. It recognizes the principle of states' rights or home rule through returning control of liquor to the states with provision that local option will maintain, thus giving every city, town and village in a wet state the right to prohibit liquor within its boundaries by local referendum. It also provides that it shall be the duty of the federal government to protect states which continue to prohibit liquor.

Raskob Adds a Suggestion.

"Amplifying this thought it would be my suggestion that the federal government recognize the sanctity of the sovereignty of each state and every state retaining prohibition laws should have its nevigable water boundaries protected by the federal government against liquor invasions and also every state should have the right to call on the federal government to help in the matter of giving similar protection to its other boundaries.

"This new thought should receive great applause from the southern members of our party because it at once restores respect for states' rights. It gives to our dry states not only all the federal protection they enjoy today, but of vastly more importance is the fact that it will enable effectual enforcement of state prohibition laws."

RY ISSUE OUT, FESS SAYS, BUT BATTLE RAGES

Ohio Republicans Differ on Referendum.

Columbus, O., Sept. 11.—[Special.] Although the Republican state platform convention was opened today with a declaration from Senator Simeon D. Fess that "prohibition was not an issue," that matter was the subject of a spirited battle at the session tonight.

Efforts by opponents of prohibition to obtain declarations favoring repeal of the 18th amendment or a state liquor referendum were beaten in the resolutions committee by a vote of 2 to 1.

Even with the weight of Senator Fess' statement, that prohibition was not an issue, against it, a strong fac- ion in the convention is determined to force debate on a referendum on the floor. National Committeeman Schacke at Cleveland yesterday declared for a state referendum.

Declares for Referendum

State Senator George H. Bender of Cleveland, a candidate for representative in congress, announced he would favor adoption of a plan for a referendum on both the Volstead act and the Kibbe act, the state enforcement law. He is supported in the move by State Senator Joseph Ackerman of Cleveland.

Bender and Wilbur White of Toledo, a congressional nominee, threatened to carry the prohibition fight to the convention floor, and thereby won permission to appear before a subcommittee on law enforcement.

White presented a plank for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and substitution of government control of liquor. He joined with Bender in suggesting a state-wide liquor referendum.

The dry leaders will insist on the adoption of a strict law enforcement plank to meet the dry stand of Senator Roscoe C. McCullough, candidate for reelection, and Gov. Myers Y. Cooper.

A second subject which is causing embarrassment was injected unexpectedly into the convention late in this afternoon when Fred Warner of Marion, former state chairman, introduced a resolution to invite President Hoover to dedicate the tomb of President Harding at Marion on the occasion of his proposed visit to Ohio in October.

Shunted to Committee.

The resolution was read by Mr. Warner from the floor and was quickly shunted by Senator Fess, the presiding officer and keynoter, to the resolutions committee. Senator Fess and other friends of President Hoover in the convention are said to have been taken completely by surprise by the injection of the question of Mr. Hoover's attendance at the projected ceremonies. Senator Fess, in his keynote speech, mentioned prohibition to the extent of saying that where the Democrats made it an issue the Republicans would meet it squarely. He recalled that Senator McCullough's Democratic opponent, Robert J. Bulkley, was demanding repeal of the eighteenth amendment and said the Republican Tariff Law Is Cited.

Farm aid, the new tariff law and the recent action of the President in restricting immigration to prevent ag...gravating unemployment were cited by the senator as Republican accomplish...ments.

Senator McCullough, in an address, said emphatically he was for "prohi...bition" and asserted that the party must take no backward step on "this great moral issue."

Achievements of the Republican state administration, notably the building of a new state office build...ing and state wide program for solv...ing the unemployment problem and drought relief, were discussed by Gov. Cooper and Gilbert Battman, attorney general, who are seeking reëlection.

Watson Praises Hoover for Acts to Revive Business

Linton, Ind., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—The Hoover administration was praised here today by James E. Watson, senior Indiana senator and United States senate Republican floor leader, in the keynote address at the Republican convention which opened the fall campaign.

In his first of a series of stump speeches Watson blamed world-wide deflation for economic depression in the United States, challenged Demo...crats to show what more President Hoover can do to aid economic relief, praised the new tariff law and the Hoover drought and agriculture relief program.

"We can neither foresee nor legis...late," he said, "against a collapse in the price of stocks or a widespread and disastrous drought, or an eco...nomic depression that embraces the whole earth, and, but for sudden, un...expected and inescapable catastro...phies, we would be enjoying our cus...tomary degree of prosperity, and, just as soon as we shall have overcome these calamities, we shall once more enter into that happy condition that is the rightful heritage of the Ameri...can people."

Watson was preceded by Gov. Harry G. Leslie, who discussed state issues, and by his colleague, Senator Arthur R. Robinson, who assailed the "propa...ganda mill" which he said John J. Raskob, Democratic national chair...man, has established at Washington to "belittle the Hoover administra...tion."

Asserting the national administra...tion had redeemed its pledge to enact farm relief, Watson said, "The pro...gram cannot be solved in a month or in a year, but it is my contention that we have made a rational start."

Action of the federal farm board in taking 65,000,000 bushels of wheat off the market "helped to maintain the price above a most ruinous level," Watson declared. "We have increased the import rates on agricultural prod...ucts much beyond those provided by any previous law in our history, thus enabling farmers to receive the full benefit of his market right at home, and have preserved that home market at full consuming power by giving to those American industries that were suffering from unemployment because of foreign competition adequate tariff rates against the product of pauper labor in other lands."

Watson argued that the business de...clines started in before the present tariff was enacted, so it cannot be held responsible.

Referring to the stock market crash, Watson asked: "Does anybody charge that the Republican party was respon...sible for that crash? If Smith had been president could he have averted it? We are authoritatively told that there were 21,000,000 people in the market in October when that crash came. Eighteen million of them were on margin and billions of paper profits were wiped out overnight. This was a shock that would have shaken any na...tion at any time.

"It immediately resulted in a vast curtailment of purchases all over the world, by almost everybody, every...where, and this, of course, was at once reflected in a slowing down of production, which means closed fac...tories and idle men and unemploy...ment.

"And when its full force became evident," he continued, "could any...body else have acted with greater celerity or with surer wisdom than did Herbert Hoover? What could any one else have done than to have called together the directing heads of the great industrial, financial, and labor organizations of the country and secured from them stabilizing pledges?"

Robinson charged that Raskob was more responsible than any other per...son in the world for the stock market crash. He asserted Raskob had en...couraged people to invest in the spec...ulative market until finally the inevi...table crash came and hundreds of thousands saw all their savings wiped out.

WET DEFEATS CRAMTON

Calls on All Drys to Join Temperance Move.

trolled by the city hall organization, branding her a 'wet' or a 'dry,' shall be the law for her. That if it's for repeal of the constitutional amendment and the Volstead act, she accepts the verdict—and aids the death and burial of all national temperance laws, with nothing offered for national prohibition or state temperance to take their places.

"We of the Illinois citizenship Democracy demand state control of prohibition and temperance, directed by the officers of nation, state, county and city, chosen by ballot of home government under guidance of home conscience and religion.

"We demand that the national prohibition acts of law or constitution, which for ten years have stood in obstruction of these rights of citizenship and defeat all temperance, be modified or repealed to any extent necessary to return the privilege to the states to fulfill the spirit of the eighteenth amendment where the same ordains, as we construe it, that the states shall have 'concurrent power' to enforce or prescribe regulations and provision for enforcement of prohibition by proper prescription by the state of quality, quantity and content of any beverage of spirits permitted by the people through legislature—and ordain the officials or servants of any locality designated to administer the act.

"We now ask Illinois: Why do you see the President of the United States silent and acquiescing in his servant and colleague, Ambassador Morrow of New Jersey, presenting the exact program for his platform as candidate for United States Senator for New Jersey as our citizenship democracy asks for Illinois?

Does Hoover See Failure?

"Is it not clear that the President sees the failure of the national system of national congressional prohibition put on the states—by nonresident officers—and beholds the revolt of home government and the associate decay of all law? In all this has the President not conceded that the true refuge is to commit the whole subject now to the states—as he approves for his friend and ally, Mr. Morrow, to do in New Jersey?

"Ten years of trial and endurance of the administration of national amendment and congressional law under national distant officials brings the impeachment recalling that 900 millions has been wrung from the taxpayer for courts and constabulary to enforce—by despotic systems—the orders of masters. The courts are clogged to paralysis—the claims of citizens waiting to be determined, that they may enjoy property and progress of commerce, withering at the outer door of the courts, unable to enter—blocked and cramped by the procession of criminals held to tribunals under the pretended national enforcement.

"The citizen of state is forced to surrender 479 millions yearly of revenue he owned, by just arrangement of the state, and then taxed all anew to that sum to make up the loss—while his property pays it and his family suffers the loss of all it derives. Then, in the train of this, the citizen—farmer and townsman—is made a criminal if either profit from the grain they produce if through industry they would produce the spirituous liquors necessary to the nation for medicinal, industrial and mechanical uses compelled by law.

"The citizenship of republican democracy in Illinois pray to its sovereign people for the privilege to remedy these evils that decay our constitution and rot our system of law and justice. Give to us the nonpartisan democracy of citizenship—the opportunity to put our system of cure on the state and its people. Let us have a day of effort and you be the judge of the hour to test us. Let us cooperate with your Anti-Saloon league—your Woman's Christian Temperance union—your churches and your ministers of God—that we may enjoy again that peace and morality, that dignity of state and honor of citizenship which was ours in that other day when such as you, under the laws of the state, guided by conscience and religion, gave to your people the perfect service and Christian supervision of rightful and honored citizenship."

DEMOCRATS PICK SIX FOR JUDGES; URGE DRY REPEAL

Charge Mrs. McCormick Straddles Issues.

The Democrats of Cook county yesterday nominated their six candidates for the Superior and Circuit court vacancies and adopted a platform for the fall campaign which calls for support of the state prohibition referendum and repeal of the 18th amendment.

The platform, introduced by Michael L. Igoe, national committeeman and chairman of the resolutions committee, assailed Ruth Hanna McCormick, the Republican senatorial nominee, for "straddling all the important questions of the day" and "warned the citizens of Cook county that the discredited Republican city hall machine once more was endeavoring to bewilder and fool the voters by insincere candidates and false issues."

Oppose Income Tax Amendment.

The Democrats set forth their opposition to the proposed revenue amendment to the state constitution, which has come to be known as the income tax amendment, and suggested that Gov. Emmerson should call a nonpartisan conference whose purpose would be to draft a "fair and equitable" revenue amendment. This plank declared that no further taxes should be imposed on Cook county "for the benefit of the rest of the state until this county has been given its proper representation in the legislature."

The platform also included a resolution offered by Ald. D. A. Horan [21st], candidate for sanitary district trustee, which recommended that immediate action be taken by the city council toward electrification of all railway terminals in Chicago.

List Judicial Nominees.

The six judicial nominees are:

James Joseph Kelly, 6859 Jeffery avenue.

John Prystalski, master in chancery and former assistant state's attorney.

Walter T. Stanton.

Rudolph F. De Sort, assistant Probate judge.

Judge Joseph Burke of the Municipal court.

Judge Burke will be opposed by Judge John F. Haas, Republican nominee, for the Ryner Circuit court vacancy. Hall was named for the Holden Superior court vacancy, and will be opposed by Charles C. Carnahan, Republican. Kelly and Judge Sbarbaro, Republican, will contest for the Hopkins Superior court vacancy; Stanton and Le Roy Millner, Republican, for the Gemmill Superior court vacancy; De Sort and James W. Breen, Republican, for the Pam Superior court vacancy, and Prystalski and Judge Howard W. Hayes, Republican, for the Comerford Superior court vacancy.

Nominees Picked at Caucus.

The nominations were made unanimously after the slate had been chosen by a caucus of party leaders which ran into the early hours of yesterday. All but Prystalski and De Sort had been mentioned among the prospective choices.

Clayton F. Smith, county recorder, was renamed chairman of the county managing committee and Ald. John Clark [30th] was retained as chairman of the county executive committee.

The county platform indorsed the state platform of the Democrats which declared for repeal of the 18th amendment and the federal prohibition enforcement acts. The county Democrats urged support of candidates who would reflect the sentiment of the voters as expressed by the referendum, and criticized Mrs. McCormick for "refusing to indicate whether she is for or against the referendum."

The only other ripple in the political pool yesterday was a statement by Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, independent Republican candidate for senator, indorsed by the Anti-Saloon league, who condemned the Republican state platform for failing to recognize taxation and unemployment as the main issues instead of prohibition. She said the man out of a job was not worrying about the wet or dry question, but where his next meal would come from.

Mrs. O'Neill attacked Mrs. McCormick's stand on the referendum, saying that her rival proposed to be a dry while at the same time acknowledging she woud abide by the referendum regardless of its results.

Mrs. O'Neill said the only way the wet or dry question could be answered in this campaign would be for the voters to elect either herself or J. Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic nominee, running on an unqualifiedly wet platform. She expression herself in favor of the income tax amendment and relief for unemployment and said the Republican party displayed a lack of leadership by ignoring these questions.

MOSES OFF TO TOUR WEST IN SPITE OF WILD JACKASS TALK

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—(AP)—After conferring today with President Hoover, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, the chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, set out for the northwest states, some of whose Republican senators he once termed the "sons of wild jackasses."

Moses said he expected to visit Illinois, Minnesota, Colorado, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, and possibly Oklahoma and Kansas.

BUSTER CAN'T BE SO DOGGY FROM NOW ON

Mrs. Beatrice R. Smythe of the Sheridan-Brompton apartments lost a legal battle yesterday. As a result her Airedale dog, Buster, must hereafter ride in the service elevator in the apartment building at 3530 Sheridan road. Furthermore, Mrs. Smythe must pay up $645 back rent within ten days or move out.

The trouble began when Buster insisted upon riding with other tenants in the passenger elevator. The tenants protested and refused to pay their rent, whereupon the Chicago Title and Trust company, receivers for the building, ordered the dog to ride with the chauffers, maids and other domestics. Mrs. Smythe stopped paying her rent until the company appealed to Circuit Judge Brothers for help.

Burglars Ransack Home of Banker; Fail to Get Loot

Burglars who broke into the home of Edwin L. Read, president of the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, living at 4535 Beacon street, ransacked the house and failed to break into a wall safe, were routed about 10 o'clock last night when the banker's wife, Mrs. Edith Read, returning home alone, discovered a chair propped against the vestibule door. Forcing the door, she entered as the burglars fled by the rear door. Nothing of value was taken, Mrs. Read said. Mr. Read and their children are at their summer home in Barrington.

The watchman released himself and notified the Austin police.

WOMEN VOTERS SUPPORT INCOME TAX AMENDMENT

The Illinois League of Women Voters has indorsed the proposed revenue amendment to the state constitution to be voted on at the general election on Nov. 4, the league announced yesterday.

The action was taken by the state executive board in accord with the views expressed at the last state convention of the league, which recommended a revision of the state constitution that would provide an amendment to the revenue article.

Mrs. Gerald Leuck, chairman of the league's department for governmental efficiency, said the organization favored the proposed income tax amendment because it gave the legislature adequate authority to fit tax laws to meet the future requirements of the state. She said the measure would avoid the restrictions of the existing revenue article and would permit the legislature to develop a scientific taxation system.

To be real accurate it's 150,420 respectable citizens who have found Bond Ten Payment Budget Service the ideal way to purchase Fine Clothes—and who are backing their first good impression with second and third visits. And all in less than 2 short years!

What is responsible for such immediate acceptance?

How do we account for such phenomenal growth?

The answer is simple! When we invite a man to "charge it" we do not ask him to pay anything extra for this convenience. We refuse to add to our prices those rather mysterious "overhead expenses" so long a part of old-fashioned charge account and credit methods.

Our cash prices of yesterday are our Ten Payment prices of today! And the economy of cash prices certainly needs no introduction to thrifty men.

We figured such a sensible plan would win enough friends to pay for itself. It has!

And it has done more! The added business of 150,000 men has worked like a charm! It has put finer woolens into Bond Clothes. It has brought over the master fashions of London's most distinguished tailors. It makes possible the luxury of faultless hand needlework.

DRUGGISTS JOIN POLICE HUNT FOR HOLDUP KILLERS

Offer $1,000 Reward for Slayers of Associate.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Earl Johnson, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; James Cooper and Leroy Williams, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory, by Judge John P. McGoorty.

William Baufert, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Darnell Lopez, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in Pontiac reformatory; Dee Jackson, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary, by Judge Joseph Sabath.

Aroused over what he termed "one of the most wanton and cold blooded killings in the history of Chicago crime," Walter A. Harris, president of the Chicago Retail Druggists' association, yesterday prepared to launch his organization of 1,500 members into the investigation of the murder on Wednesday night of William Fiddelke, a 25 year old druggist. Fiddelke was shot to death in his store at 6560 South Western avenue when he told two robbers that $40 was all the cash he had.

The first act of Mr. Harris and his associates was the anouncement of a $1,000 reward for the capture and conviction of the killers. Today he, with H. J. Holtoever, secretary, and other leaders in the association, will call upon Acting Police Commissioner Alcock to offer their aid in running down the murderers.

Father Slain by Robbers.

"To get these hoodlums and get them executed if possible is a matter vitally personal to me," Mr. Harris said. "Two years ago two killers walked into my father's drug store and shot him to death in just the same manner that Fiddelke was killed. No fewer than a dozen druggists have been wantonly slain by Chicago hoodlums within the last two years. It's time to stop this slaughter."

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, was another stirred by the killing.

"Every resource at our disposal will be exerted in this crime," he said. "For more than a year we've worked in close coöperation with the druggists in trying to keep drug store robbers and murderers in the penitentiary after we once get them there."

Hunt Two Ex-Convicts.

Lieut. George Barker of the Chicago Lawn police, which is in charge of the case, based his hope of catching the killers of Fiddelke upon a finger print found on a can of alcohol in the drug store. Barker said his search is narrowed down to two ex-convicts.

William Neveraski, alias Nevers, an ex-convict wanted for the murder of Policeman John J. Guiltanane of Morgan Park station, is one of those sought. His picture was partly identified by a witness. The other is Steve Jawviak, alias Joyce, sought for some months as a drug store bandit.

Two young women, seen loitering before the store during the robbery and shooting, are also being sought. They were companions of the killers, Lieut. Barker believes.

Fiddelke, with his clerk, William Mehl, 6700 Halsted street, had lain upon the floor at the robbers' command. Angered because he found no more than $40 in the till, the bandit leader placed the muzzle of his automatic against Fiddelke's head and deliberately pulled the trigger.

Mrs. Elvira Fiddelke, young widow of the slain druggist, an expectant mother, was last night in the care of a physician at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Daniels, 11959 Yale avenue.

LABOR FEDERATION TO FIGHT FOR BILL TO HIT INJUNCTIONS

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 11.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, tonight asserted that the full power of the federation would be placed behind the Morris-Blane-Walsh bill to give labor relief from injunctions.

"In order for labor to function," he said, "it must have relief from these drastic orders which limit free speech, freedom of the press and our rights under the constitution."

He added that organized labor was asking all congressional candidates to disclose their stand on the bill and that labor's attitude toward them would depend almost wholly upon their answer.

POLICE CAPTAIN IS REINSTATED AFTER ACQUITTAL

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock last night reinstated Capt. Joseph Goldberg and Sergt. John A. Belsky, who had been suspended on charges of maltreating Richard Jackson, a retired policeman. The reinstatement order was issued after Carlos Ames, president of the civil service commission, notified Alcock that the commission had found the two policemen not guilty after a hearing on Wednesday.

Capt. Goldberg and Belsky were returned to the Albany Park station. Capt. Richard Gill, who had taken Goldberg's place while the latter was under suspension, was ordered back to the miscellaneous division.

SEEKS DIVORCE FROM DAUGHTER OF VANDERBILT

Artist Nicholls Silent on $100,000 "Offer."

Reno, Nev., Sept. 11.—Mrs. Barbara Rutherfurd Hatch Nicholls, daughter of the widow of W. K. Vanderbilt, the former Ann Harriman, is made defendant in a suit for divorce filed in the Reno courts by Winfield J. Nicholls, who today "refused to deny" reports that he had been paid $100,000 by Mrs. Vanderbilt to procure a divorce from her daughter.

Nicholls admitted that he met his wife through a love cult in New York, but refused to discuss the meeting further. His attorney also refused to discuss the case. The suit will be tried some time this week behind closed doors. What the charges will be could not be learned. The case was placed on the secret file in an effort to avoid publicity.

When asked if he had been paid $100,000 by his mother-in-law to divorce his wife, Nicholls said he had nothing to say. When pinned down for a definite answer, he said he would not deny it.

The couple were married in New York City, Aug. 11, 1924, and have two children. Mrs. Nicholls is now in Paris and it is understood that Nicholls has agreed to relinquish custody of the children to her, according to reports in the divorce colony here.

Charges Wife Insane.

New York, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The divorce action filed by Winfield J. Nicholls at Reno, Nev., against Mrs. Barbara Rutherfurd Nicholls is the second attempt he has made to sever the legal bonds which bind the two former members of the cult of "Oom the Omnipotent."

In 1928 he filed an annulment action in New York Supreme court, alleging his wife was insane. The action failed. At the time he said he had been separated from his wife for three years. They were married in 1924.

Met at Bernard Colony.

The two met while they were members of the colony of Dr. Pierre Bernard at Nyack, N. Y. Mrs. Nicholls had been sent to the colony by her mother, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, who had contributed large sums to its support and had great faith in the healing powers of Dr. Bernard.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN.

Konjola

MR. WILLIAM FITCH, 6727 Wentworth Ave., Chicago

Wonder how Konjola works? Read what Mr. Fitch says of this new and different medicine.

Konjola is emphatically not a so-called "cure all." There is no such thing, but Konjola has made so good that seven million bottles were used in two years. You will agree that a medicine must have merit to make a record like this. Profit by the experiences of others—tens of thousands . . . there can be no better guide in seeking the medicine you need. Right now read what Mr. Fitch says of Konjola:

"How I suffered from stomach trouble! I could not eat; even the sight of food nauseated me. No matter what I ate, gas formed. My weight fell from 143 pounds to 129. I knew it was time to do something, and I started on Konjola. I have taken ten bottles, and I can truthfully say that my stomach does the work as nature intended; I sleep fine and am feeling great in every way. I surely can recommend Konjola to all who suffer as I did."

COAL HEAT COSTS LESS

The $13,727.60 Saved with coal heat in 5 years

will pay for redecorating this church

FEW pass St. Casimir's church at 22nd and Whipple Street without pausing to admire its handsome facade. Heating this large structure throws no undue burden on the parishioners. This church burns coal—500 tons or $3,684.49 worth a year. Thus it saves $2,745.52 on its fuel bills every winter.

For if the fuel were to be burned that next to coal is the most economical, the fuel bills would amount to $6,430.01 a year. The second fuel that can be substituted for coal would cost $13,608.92 a year.

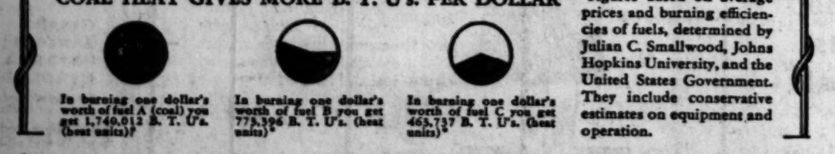
So, over a period of five years, St. Casimir's church saves—by burning coal—$13,727.60 in one case and $49,622.15 in the other . . . sums which would pay for complete redecoration of the church . . . for a new communion rail . . . for beautiful windows . . . or for a pipe organ. In addition, St. Casimir's enjoys from coal the safest, evenest, quietest heat obtainable.

Thermostatic control at a fraction of other fuel costs

In your home you can enjoy all of these advantages by burning coal. Your savings will be proportionate. At a very slight added expense . . . the veriest fraction of other automatically regulated fuels' cost . . . a thermostatic control, which wakes the fire while you sleep, can be added.

A member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association, who has pledged himself to honest grading and has behind him the Association's guarantee of full weight, will gladly discuss the question of automatic control with you, or any other fuel problems you may have.

COAL HEAT GIVES MORE B. T. U's. PER DOLLAR



In burning one dollar's worth of fuel A (coal) you get 1,740,013 B. T. U's. (heat units)*

In burning one dollar's worth of fuel B you get 773,396 B. T. U's. (heat units)*

In burning one dollar's worth of fuel C you get 465,737 B. T. U's. (heat units)*

*Figures based on average prices and burning efficiencies of fuels, determined by Julian C. Smallwood, Johns Hopkins University, and the United States Government. They include conservative estimates on equipment and operation.

YRIGOYEN IS EXILED

BY HAROLD TATAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LA PLATA, Argentina, Sept. 11—Former President Hipolito Yrigoyen stepped off his native soil and headed into exile this morning by boarding the cruiser Belgrano. The vessel sailed shortly afterwards for an unknown destination. The provisional government made no official statement, but it was believed the deposed president would take refuge in Uruguay.

It was a feeble old man, with none of his usual erect bearing, who went up the gangplank on the arm of his daughter and his friend and physician, Dr. Meabe. His sphinxlike countenance showed no trace of emotion, but his trembling limbs revealed the depth of his feeling.

Uruguay Plans Big Welcome.

In the meantime it is understood that a large number of his henchmen who succeeded in reaching Uruguay are preparing to receive the fallen chief upon his arrival at Montevideo. Word from Montevideo tonight said the Uruguayan president had ordered government officials to mee Señor Yrigoyen with all honors due an ex-president.

With the arrest of a large number of prominent Yrigoyenist officials and the stampede to Uruguay of a number of lesser lights, the inner history of the Buenos Aires subway concession is being closely investigated.

It is said that the reason underlying the municipal council's rejection of soundly backed schemes such as that submitted by the Angle-Argentine tramway company in favor of the scheme submitted by the Spanish syndicate were "financial" ones. The mayor vetoed the concession much to the annoyance of ex-President Yrigoyen, who allegedly said that he did not want any other guarantee than the "word of a Spanish gentleman."

Report $900,000 Graft.

The municipal council finally overrode the mayor's veto by a heavy majority and according to the Buenos Aires Herald their action was to be rewarded with the neat sum of $900,000.

The preliminary survey of the financial wreckage left by the Yrigoyen administration was made public by the new finance minister today. It was shown that in two years the regime had contracted an unsecured debt of 520,000,000 pesos, about $188,240,000 at the current rate of exchange. More than half of this is in short term loans, the liquidation of which will be determined by the special commission studying the situation.

PART OF SUBWAY PLANS PROMISED IN THIRTY DAYS

Aldermen and Faherty Plead for Speed.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The subway engineers, according to Ald. Joseph B. McDonough, have promised to have detailed plans ready in a month for that part of the tunnel which will go under the Chicago river. Ald. James B. Bowler, who also attended a conference of engineers and lawyers, confirmed the pledge of early action.

"If we can get out the plans and specifications by Oct. 10," went on Bowler, "then all that stands in the way of awarding a contract is to get a permit from the federal government. That should not take more than two weeks."

Depends on the Engineers.

Ald. McDonough, as chairman of the city council transportation committee, has been pleading for plans for weeks and is confident that the engineers will make good on their reported promise. Seventy-two days have elapsed since the voters approved the transportation ordinance at a referendum.

"The portion of the State street subway under the river may cause delay in the special assessment proceedings," explained McDonough. "That we would like to avoid, and and the lawyers are willing that this short section shall be excluded from the special assessment plan. The city is planning a new State street bridge and the engineers on that are working with the subway engineers so that the tunnel will fit into the bridge foundation plan."

Faherty Asks More Speed.

Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, which is expected to award contracts for subway construction, urged more speed yesterday. He had just returned from a further inspection of subways in New York and Philadelphia.

"I am not criticising our subway planners," said Faherty, "but New York has about completed subways costing $800,000,000 and is nearly ready to start awarding contracts to get $300,000,000 more in subway extensions.

"Subway construction is only about half as intricate as sewer construction and we are now building three big sewer systems in Chicago. I would like to get started in subway building. We are not moving fast enough, although on other construction work Chicago has set a faster pace than has been attained in any other large city."

"L" Note Issue Authorized.

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday entered an order authorizing the Chicago Rapid Transit company to issue $7,160,000 in two year gold notes to provide funds for "L" improvements. The notes, according to the testimony, are to be issued through the Central Trust company, are not to be sold under 96 and are to bear an interest rate in excess of 6 per cent. The notes may be retired before maturity on 30 days' notice.

It is planned to refund this indebtedness when the surface and elevated lines are consolidated. The commission was told that the issuance of these notes will not hinder consolidation, but will permit the elevated lines to provide improvements required under the franchise for consolidation.

Work on part of the improvements, such as extension of platforms and the building of car ships, has already started.

A feeder bus extension in Montrose avenue between Knox and Narragansett avenues—about 2¼ miles—was asked in a petition filed yesterday with the commerce commission. Attorney O. W. Holmes, representing the Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs, urged that the petition be granted.

Finance Plan in Bankers' Hands.

Consideration of the financial plan for consolidating the surface and elevated lines, made public last Monday, was deferred until after the funeral yesterday of Leonard A. Busby, president of the south side surface lines. The plan is in the hands of the bankers' advisory committee, Melvin A. Traylor, Arthur Reynolds, and A. W. Harris.

Few outsiders, experienced in such transactions, have obtained copies of the tentative plan, and expressions on it have been withheld accordingly. Inquiries for information regarding the plan are still increasing.

PROMISE 7½ HOUR AIR PASSENGER SERVICE TO N. Y.

A seven and one half hour passenger air service between New York and Chicago, to be developed within the "near future," was announced last night by officials of the National Air Transport, who reported the purchase of the Stout Air lines. The Stout lines carry passengers between Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland, while the N. A. T. carries air mail and express between New York, Chicago and Dallas.

"The various passenger services operated by the Stout lines will be continued and expanded," Lester D. Seymour, vice president and general manager of N. A. T., said.

Both companies have been divisions of the United Aircraft corporation since N. A. T. was acquired through purchase of stock last spring. With the combination N. A. T. lines will be operating an approximate daily mileage of 12,000 miles.

1 OF 3 CHILDREN SLAIN BY WOMAN, WHO KILLS SELF

Denver, Colo., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Ross, 35, shot and killed her 15 year old daughter, Joyce, today, wounded a second child, Wilma, 10, and missed her aim when she fired at a son, Gordon, 9. The woman then committed suicide. Eugene Ross, the husband and father, said his wife often had threatened to commit suicide. He said she was under the delusion he was paying court to other women.

Postmaster General to Ask for Half Cent More Postage

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Postmaster General Brown said tonight he would recommend an increase in first class postage at the next session of congress.

Addressing the National Association of Postmasters, Brown said one-half cent more an ounce on sealed letters and "minor changes contemplated in the rest of our rate structure" would "wipe out our present strictly postal deficit and balance our budget."

He added that if congress could then be persuaded to "adhere to the rule laid down by the founders of our government, that adequate postal revenues must be provided by law before additional charges against the service may be incurred," the result would be a solving of the perplexing postal deficit problem "for all time."

Situation Not Logical.

"There is no more logic and justification in asking the government to transport your private mail for less than cost than there would be in asking an electric light company to light your house or a telephone company to furnish you with long distance service for less than cost," said Brown.

He laid down the rule that each class of service should pay the entire cost directly attributable to that service.

Since 1916, he said, the second class mail rate has increased 82 per cent, third class 21 per cent, and parcel post 10 per cent, but the present first class rate has been in effect since 1885, except for a brief emergency period during the world war.

Economically speaking, he said, the two cent rate of 1885 is equivalent to seven cents today.

Advises Legislation.

Brown prefaced his defense of a higher postal rate with a summary of new legislation and changes in department policy. He spoke again of the "needless and burdensome expense" caused by the policy of leasing buildings for postal operations, and expressed hope that the next congress would further extend the postoffice construction program.

He expressed satisfaction at the changed method of air mail compensation effected by the last congress.

SIDNEY SMITH SELLS HIS LAKE GENEVA ESTATE

G. W. McKee of Rockford Is Purchaser.

BY AL CHASE.

If Uncle Bim marries Heaven Eyes on Oct 1, as he says he's going to, he won't spend any part of his honeymoon at Trudehurst, Sidney Smith's sumptuous summer estate on the south shore of Lake Geneva. G. W. McKee, president of the Eclipse Fuel Equipment company of Rockford, Ill., has blocked any such plan by purchasing the twenty-two acre estate, lock, stock and steam yacht.

Strange to say, Sid has not only sold what might have been a stopping place for Uncle Bim's contemplated honeymoon, but he won't even be here to attend the Oct. 1 festivities, for he sails for Europe today and won't be back in Chicago until Oct. 9. According to W. F. Best & Son, Lake Geneva brokers who negotiated the transaction, Mr. McKee, paid between $75,000 and $100,000 for the Sidney Smith estate.

Former Wilmarth Estate.

In addition to a large sixteen room frame residence, which was extensively remodeled when bought by Mr. Smith six years ago, the new owner secures a large garage and stables, caretaker's cottage, private boxing ring, steam yacht, etc. The property is about two and a half miles from the town of Lake Geneva. It was the Wilmarth residence prior to its purchase by Mr. Smith.

The forest preserve district has purchased a four and a quarter acre tract in Leyden township from Nels A. Olsen for an indicated $8,800. The property is along Salt creek, just west of Mannheim road.

Essaness Gets Regent.

The Regent theater at 6742 Sheridan road, has been leased by Max and Louis Jacobson to the Rail Theater corporation, of which Edwin Silverman is president. This means it is now in the Essaness chain of talkie houses. The term of rental is from date of possession, which has just taken place, to Feb. 28, 1940. The total rental will be approximately $80,000, according to the county records.

It is understood the playhouse is to be extensively remodeled and redecorated with especial attention paid to improving its accoustical properties. Hall, Spitz & Rooks and Alfred Newton were attorneys.

RUSSIA OPENS FAMOUS CATHEDRAL AS ANTI-RELIGIOUS MUSEUM

LENINGRAD, Russia, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The famous St. Isaac cathedral here, which recently was converted into a central all-unions anti-religious museum, was officially opened today.

The main altar has been equipped with a screen for the showing of anti-religious motion pictures, while anti-religious lectures will be given regularly in the same place. Special equipment in the central hall will demonstrate to proletarian visitors the rotation of the earth and other astronomical phenomena.

The museum contains a huge collection of documents relating to former activities of the Russian orthodox church and the present atheistic movement in the soviet union and other countries.

POLICEMAN IS CHARGED WITH FATAL SHOOTING

Albert Marth, a special policeman at the Grigsby-Grunow company's plant at 5801 Dickens avenue, was charged with manslaughter last night in connection with the fatal shooting of William Federici, 22 years old, 2919 74th court, River Grove, on Wednesday. According to the police, Federici went to the plant with his brother, Baptiste, 29 years old, with the intention of beating J. H. Webb, a foreman, who, Baptiste believed, had caused his discharge several weeks ago.

The brothers knocked Webb down, and as they tussled William fell, mortally wounded, and Baptiste was shot in the leg. While the police charged that Marth fired the shots, Baptiste said at the Keystone hospital that they were fired on by a stranger who entered the fight.

Marth refused to testify at the inquest yesterday, and Coroner Bundesen continued the inquest to Oct. 2, to give ballistics experts a chance to determine who fired the bullets.

SCIENTIST TO TRY 10 MILE TRIP INTO SKY TOMORROW

AUGSBURG, Germany, Sept. 11.—(AP)—On the basis of today's weather reports, Auguste Piccard of the University of Brussels announced that he would start his attempt at a 10-mile balloon ascent at 6 a. m., Saturday. His wife and his eldest daughter have arrived to witness the take-off.

Prof. Piccard hopes his balloon, the largest ever built, will fly into the stratosphere, where he expects to make observations which will help solve the mystery of cosmic rays. He said he hoped to prove to aviators that the stratosphere, as scientists call the upper layer of earth's atmosphere, would be a good highway for distance flights.

The society will seek to increase the interest of young men in preparing themselves for a commercial career.

BEGIN DEFENSE FOR LANGGUTH AND GIRL TODAY

Attorneys for Miss Laverne Lindgren and Elmer P. Langguth, former cashier and president of the defunct People's State Bank of Maywood, will swing into their defense this morning in Judge Otto Kerner's court. Abrupt conclusion yesterday noon of the state's case against Miss Lindgren and Langguth brought about an adjournment for the afternoon when the defense attorney's, Eugene L. McGarry and Frank T. Tyrrell, declared they were unprepared to proceed.

Their first move this morning, they said, would be to summon witnesses, whom, they asserted, will acount for $40,000 of the $173,000 peculations charged against the defendant by testimony that the village of Bellwood, designated as the depositor of that amount, never had had an account with the People's State Bank. The identities of the witnesses were not given.

Prosecutor Shouts Protests.

Court proceedings during the morning were enlivened with protests by Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Keller, chief prosecutor, against the inferences of Attorney McGarry that he had used duress to obtain part of the testimony presented. Furiously smacking a book on the table with his open hand, the prosecutor shouted his denials over the admonitory voice of Judge Kerner and reiteration by McGarry.

As on the preceding day, the two conservatively attired defendants sat silent and subdued, even while Miss Florence Campbell, former bookkeeper at the bank, repeated on cross-examination her story of having removed those ledger sheets from the bank books so that the total of deposits would correspond with the list prepared for the examiners, working almost at her elbow. It was her testimony over which the attorneys quarreled.

Testify Against Langguth.

Among the witnesses during the day were John Braeske of 1401 South 12th avenue; Chief of Police Richard H. Bailey, and Dr. L. E. Jocelyn, all of Maywood. Braeske corroborated the testimony of Elsa Gordon that she had forged his name to a $5,000 note at the direction of Langguth, by asserting that he never received such a loan from the bank nor offered a mortgage as collateral.

Both Dr. Jocelyn and Chief Bailey told of conversations with Langguth in which they said the latter admitted his guilt. The police chief named the Hotel La Salle as the place where the alleged confession was made, and Feb. 15 as the date, and said that Assistant State's Attorney Edwin H. Markham was one of the witnesses present.

Dr. Jocelyn related how he and other directors confronted Langguth with the fact of a $10,000 shortage, asking whether it would not develop that the loss was much more, and said Langguth admitted it would be.

Surgeon Tells of Quizzing.

"He said it might be more than $10,000," the surgeon testified. "We asked how that could be, when the bank had just been examined, and he said, 'O, it's easy to do if you know how. I could get away with it. But if I were bank examiner I could have found those things. What they ought to do is to make me a bank examiner.'"

Miss Campbell was the only witness cross-examined by the defense.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 11.—Ambassador Dwight W. THE REFERENDUM.

The Anti-Saloon league bosses announce that they will instruct the membership not to vote in the prohibition referendum to be held in Illinois in November. This follows previous policy of the organization on referenda on dry law. The ostensible justification for abstention has been that the referendum in this state is advisory only and that the only proper method of expressing the will of the electorate is through the election of representatives. The real reason for the league policy is that it feared the results of a direct appeal to the people on the prohibition issue alone and wanted an alibi for not accepting the results. But whatever force there was in the league excuse in past referenda has been reduced to nothing by the formal pledge of the Republican party organization in convention assembled and of the Republican candidates for legislative office to abide by the results of the referendum. By this pledge the referendum ceases to be advisory and becomes as binding as the individual pledge of legislative candidates upon which the league has hitherto relied.

The repudiation of the referendum by the Anti-Saloon league, which to its credit the W. C. T. U. has refused to follow, is characteristic of league bossism. The referendum is the only method by which a citizen can express his opinion on dry laws without sacrificing his freedom of choice on other issues involved in the selection of an official. Millions of voters who were not satisfied with Mr. Hoover's proposals for dealing with prohibition voted for him because of other issues involved in the presidential election. To vote for a senator or congressman who is wet in many instances compels the voter to vote against his party or his convictions of economic and political policy. To vote for a candidate who is dry may force the same sacrifice upon other voters. As long as prohibition is not a party issue, but divides parties, the method demanded by the league bosses is demoralizing in politics and government.

The referendum, both in its advisory and its mandatory form, is a well recognized and approved method of ascertaining and effectuating the will of the people. The bosses of the Anti-Saloon league have no respect for any other will than their own. Their attitude toward it illustrates conspicuously how contrary to American principles and to the American spirit prohibition is. There will be no effectual control of the liquor traffic until methods are adopted which respect both.

ARGENTINE RELATIONS.

The report that the new régime in Argentina favors the reëstablishment of friendly relations with the United States is most welcome. The unfriendliness of the Yrigoyen régime has not succeeded in preventing the growth of trade between the two countries but could not be favorable to it, and its substitution by friendly cooperation should bring results profitable to both countries.

The Argentine Republic, though preponderantly an agricultural country and therefore in some degree a competitor in raw materials in foreign markets, has need of much which the United States can supply and already has become one of the chief markets for American automobiles, farm equipment, films and other manufactured articles. The department of commerce has recently reported that whereas Argentina ranked tenth as a purchaser of American goods before the war and was then preceded by Great Britain, Canada, Germany, France, Holland, Italy, Cuba, Mexico, and Belgium, in the last few years it has passed the last five countries and in 1928 ranked sixth with purchases of nearly $190,000,000. American investments in Argentina amounted to virtually nothing before the war, but in 1928 were about $800,000,000.

The recent economic advance of Argentina has been remarkable, registering an increase since 1900 of 662 per cent in exports and 799 per cent in imports. In 1928 the former amounted to about $987,000,000 and the latter to about $875,000,000. Besides our exports of manufactured goods we are also sending her increasing quantities of petroleum, lumber and foodstuffs.

The resources of Argentina and the character of her population insure her prosperity and progress. The latter is composed almost entirely of European strains. The Pan-American union estimates that in the last half century there have settled in the republic over two million Italians, 1,150,000 Spaniards, 200,000 French, 50,000 British, 70,000 Austro-Hungarians, 50,000 Germans, 30,000 Swiss, 21,000 Belgians and other nationalities to make up a total of approximately four million. Immigration is increasing by several hundred thousand a year. The process is much the same as our own. A race is in composition, drawing its qualities from highly civilized peoples of the old world. With vast resources available the Argentine people will amass national wealth and establish a high standard of living. Situated in the temperate zone, conditions of industry and all around development are assured.

Culturally and geographically Argentina is closer to Europe than to the United States, but we think that in the long run this nearness is going to be modified by the development of an indigenous American culture. We peoples of the American continents have more in common than we realize. We all have racial and cultural ties with the old world which influence our character, our institutions and our ways of living. But also we have ways of thinking and acting which spring from our own American conditions, from young nations facing the future and inspired by its promise. If, in spite of the variety of European race and nationality, it is possible to speak of a European, meaning more than an individual born in the continent of Europe, it is possible also, in spite of the fact that the nations of North and South America are political entities jealous of their independence, to speak of an American, meaning more than an individual born on one of the American continents. In the period of the struggle for independence this was realized more clearly than it has been in recent years, but it will return to the consciousness of Americans as their evolution proceeds.

ROADS WHERE ROADS ARE NEEDED.

The first task of any utility management must be to provide service where it is needed. A telephone company must provide more wires, more switchboards, and more instruments in the business center of a great city than in the outskirts. A railroad must have more tracks leading into the city terminals than it has through the country. And so on. The only utility which violates this principle in the Chicago region is the highway system provided by the state. Only in recent years has there been any realization that the road system should be planned to meet the needs of traffic rather than politics, and the truth has not yet been grasped in its entirety.

However, progress is being made. Mr. Hal Foust, THE TRIBUNE'S automobile editor, has discovered sentiment growing in many parts of the state for adequate connections with Chicago, and the new demand upon the road administration of Illinois is echoed in neighboring states. Michigan and Indiana are building a 40 foot road from Detroit to Gary. Wisconsin seems willing to cooperate in building a 40 foot road between Chicago and Milwaukee. And so on.

Illinois is lagging. To the extent that this state is not yet convinced that roads should be built to accommodate traffic, money is being spent on roads without the maximum return to the state. The highways are overcrowded, accidents are frequent, business is retarded, and the pleasures of motoring are minimized. A road system has to be tailored to measure. Where traffic is heavy there must be numerous arteries and they must be wide enough to keep the traffic moving freely. Grade crossings on busy highways must be avoided by carrying one road above the other.

Political road building has aimed at giving equality to all sections of the state in road mileage. Intelligent road building would build highways as demanded by traffic, and in doing so would not only reduce the cost of doing business in the state but also provide increased income to the state from purchases of gasoline and licenses.

WASTING TIME IN CHICAGO.

Seven British railroad executives, studying American methods of railroad management, spent a week in Chicago. They left for Cleveland a few days ago.

Sir Henry Fowler, their spokesman, said they had hoped to learn something here about abating the nuisance of smoking locomotives, but Chicago had nothing to offer in that line.

They will have better luck in Cleveland. The Cleveland terminal is electrified. Likewise Detroit. Likewise Philadelphia. Likewise New York. We suppose it was natural for foreign experts in railroad management to come to the greatest railroad center in the world to learn about the latest improvements in transportation methods, but that only proves they were foreigners. The place to find modern railroading in America is not where there are the most railroads but where there are the most railroad directors.

THE PEST OF BILLBOARDS.

While Europe drives the billboards from her hills and highways, America still wallows in the ruck of ugliness and the defacement of the natural landscape. By rigorous law in Italy, Germany, Austria, and elsewhere, Europe is cleaning up the countryside and the pest of signs and billboards is almost exterminated in a land that from the beginning never suffered as America has suffered in this field. Europe is cleaning up the highways in part to attract American tourists. America's highways, lined with bills and posters, drive the tourist abroad.

When America figures the cost in defacement, in traffic dangers and in general barbarism that billboards and unsightly shacks and venders' places impose on the country, action will be taken to drive them from the roads. The highways are costly properties. They are the nation's nearest parks and areas for recreation. To lower their value and deface them by billboards has no excuse. England and France, Belgium, Japan are taking action against billboards. When, will America do likewise?

By a tip averaging about $25 property holders are persuaded to let their lands for billboards. The damage to the country and to the people generally is far more than the individual profits made from highway advertising. As a nuisance, if by no other way, billboards should be prohibited.

Editorial of the Day

TAXING TOM THUMB.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

A city magistrate is quoted as threatening to have police close six miniature golf courses next Sunday if their proprietors fail to pay fines and costs, amounting to $6.50 in each case, for operating on a preceding Sunday. The situation draws attention to the exercise of police power under certain laws that do not actually enforce those laws and in this instance obviously are not intended to do so. Whatever may be said on either side of the blue law question, it certainly was never intended to afford a means of levying a tax or license upon activities on Sunday.

The present method of dealing with Sunday operation of miniature golf courses is to summon the proprietors before a magistrate, who collects the small fines and costs. The process is repeated each Sunday. It gets nowhere in enforcing Sunday laws, but is tacitly compounding by the city for not enforcing them. There is apparently no general public disposition to object to the little golf grounds on Sunday. Putting a tax on them may be desirable, but taxation is a legislative function and not a police function. Taxing the Tom Thumb golf courses by fine and costs is not a sound method that would appeal to the average citizen or business man if applied to him personally.

PHYSICIAN HIS OWN PATIENT.

R. M. C. is a physician who has been his own patient. He has made a very good job of it. The carbohydrate of Jerusalem artichoke differs considerably from those carbohydrates that diabetics stumble over. Some of the reports on this vegetable as a food for diabetics are in accord with this one from Dr. R. M. C.; others have not been so fortunate.

R. M. C. writes:

In the fall of 1920 I developed a case of diabetes mellitus. I have controlled it by diet and not by using insulin. However, I found that each year I was forced to limit the amount of carbohydrates more and more. At times I was nearly starved, very much fatigued, and very susceptible to cold. In 1928 my attention was called to the use of Jerusalem or ground artichokes as a substitute for carbohydrates in a diabetic diet.

The next winter I spent in California. While there I was able to purchase fresh artichokes occasionally, and I thought then that they were beneficial. During the spring and summer of 1929 I consistently ate artichoke flakes put up by firms handling diabetic supplies. In the fall I dug artichokes in my own garden, dried them, and have been eating them ever since two or three times a day. At present I have been sugar free for a year except for once last September, when I indulged heartily in some pastry. Since last December I have gained eight pounds in weight.

The following list of foods low in carbohydrates, which I am also able to eat, shows that a diabetic patient can have a fairly well balanced menu and considerable variety in meals.

Vegetables: Tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, spinach, onions, white turnips, lettuce, radishes. Fruits: Apples, apricots, and peaches, either fresh, cooked, or dried; strawberries, red raspberries, rhubarb, pineapple, grapefruit, oranges, lemons; saccharin may be used in small quantities to sweeten the fruit. Nuts: Almost any kind except chestnuts and peanuts. Meats: Bacon, salt pork, fish, and any lean meat if eaten sparingly. Milk and fats: Cream, butter, cheese (all kinds), buttermilk, kumyss, custards, milk in small quantities.

Jerusalem artichokes are not to be confused with the green artichokes frequently seen in the vegetable markets. They are a native tuber of North America, can be cultivated easily anywhere in the United States, and are planted like potatoes. They will keep in the ground all winter, so that part of the crop can be dug in the fall and part in the spring to insure a supply the year around. One can pare or scrape them, slice them very thin, and dehydrate them slowly in a very slow oven or over a register from a hot air furnace. Five pounds of fresh artichokes make one pound dried.

Last year I raised about ten bushels on a patch of ground ten feet wide and forty feet long. I am eating an average of four ounces of dried artichokes each day, and I feel that as a diabetic food they should be better known.

BRONCHITIS SYMPTOMS.

J. T. writes: What are the symptoms of bronchitis. Is it accompanied by severe coughing and expectoration? Does smoking in a temperate way hurt?

REPLY.

Chest cough.

Bronchitis means inflammation of the bronchial tubes. The only symptom always present is the cough. There are many kinds of bronchitis, such as acute and chronic, tubercular, whooping cough, asthmatic, bronchiectic. A diagnosis of bronchitis merely starts you on the way to knowing what is the trouble. The cure journey takes up where the diagnosis journey ends.

DANGER OF DYSENTERY.

S. M. G. writes: 1. What is ameblc dysentery? What causes it and is it contagious?

2. Is there any danger in using milk and butter from a home where the one afflicted with such a disease does the milking?

3. Is this kind of dysentery curable?

REPLY.

1. Amebic dysentery is flux due to an animal parasite called ameba coli. It is moderately contagious. It is spread by water and food.
2. Yes, unless the milk is pasteurized.
3. As a rule, it is.

READ YOUR POLICIES.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Have paid about three thousand dollars' dues on life insurance policy and am now ten weeks behind, and not being able to work and no income, can I collect any money on the policies? J. F. D.

Your rights depend on the wording of the policies. A part of your payments was earned by the carrying of the insurance risk. It may be that another part went to building up a reserve which you might be entitled to claim, but, as before stated, your rights depend on the wording.

ANGLE IRONS REMOVED.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—At the corner of Lawrence avenue and Clarendon avenue is a vacant lot fenced in. Between the Lawrence avenue curb and sidewalk on this property are some few angle irons, probably used to support a fence, protruding from the earth, somewhat overhanging the sidewalk. These have repeatedly proved a menace to pedestrians because of falls and torn clothing. H. R. S.

Report is made that angle irons referred to were removed on Aug. 28.

EMPLOY AN ATTORNEY.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About two months ago I signed a bond for a man who was behind in alimony. Since that time he has been making the payments and still I can't get my bond back, so I told the court the only way I can see is to bring him in and let him go to jail. The bond has not as yet been returned. Please advise me. M. W.

If they will not handle the matter for you, it appears necessary that you will have to employ a lawyer.

CLUB PROBLEMS.

THE Chicago Athletic association, oldest local club of its kind, confronts the propositions of rebuilding at heavy expense on its present site, rehabilitating its now inadequate 35 year old home, or seeking a basis of consolidation with the Chicago Yacht club, about to erect a $3,000,000 structure in Grant Park. A majority of the C. A. A. directors, for practical reasons, favor consolidation. A majority of the members, unless later convinced otherwise, for sentimental reasons, favor continuing in the present location.

This attitude of Cherry Circle directors, practical business men, is a reflection of changed problems of downtown clubs. Twenty years ago, we dare say, there hardly would have been discussion of a proposition so largely changing the club's identity. But downtown clubs have suffered from at least two important causes.

These causes are prohibition and growth of country clubs. Let us be frank. Club members, the convivial sort who create club spirit and run up large house accounts, formerly gathered in the grill and billiard room, usually conveniently contiguous to the bar. There were the stories, the laughs, and what veterans call the "good old times."

Now there is no bar. The grill, except at luncheon, and billiard room attract only a fraction of their former following. Instead have grown up "clubs within clubs" where a coterie of congenial fellows rent by the year a room or several rooms. Instead of circulating about the clubhouse proper, they go to their "inner clubs." As a result, club fellowship is not what it once was and a new member has less opportunity to get acquainted.

Country clubs with their golf are a growth of the last twenty years. Many members, instead of their billiards or swim, now take an early afternoon train to the links and there have a round of healthful exercise, followed by whatever the locker room offers, and then stay for dinner, at which they are joined by their families.

Women, so important in determining club membership, find more at the country clubs with their golf, bridge and weekly dancing parties than they did at the downtown clubs with less regular dancing parties and "Ladies' nights." So My Lady prefers the country club.

On the other hand, if a downtown club wishes to be modern with bath, gymnasium, indoor courts, card rooms and dining rooms, it needs a large building. Building costs and maintenance are so heavy that raises in dues have been frequent. The man with a family protests at downtown club dues which in total are less than his country club dues.

This column does not know what C. A. A. members will decide. It has a large waiting list as a backlog. It now takes about ten years to get through that list. At one time it took fourteen years. The C. A. A. in club life, has been a tradition in Chicago. Many of us would dislike to see it lose its club identity. The Wake-Line, however, simply presents the problems confronting downtown clubs which cater to general, rather than specific, tastes of a larger roster.

CAUTION.

If heaven's door be open, think you I may
Slip back summer-scented nights to see
The starlight and to hear the voice of Beauty
Call like far-off music ceaselessly?

If heaven's door be open, think you I may
Come again some jeweled Christmas night
To see the snowshine and the welkin flower
Of a cold moon exquisitely white?

But I shall not go near the gates when autumn
Ensorcerizes earth with burning wine;
I'd fling myself in her voluptuous fires,
Nor answer when they called from heaven's shrine.

ADELAIDE P. LOVE.

DRIVING to our Wake-Line sanctum, we resolved to proceed at a lawful boulevard pace of 28-30 miles per hour from the Calvary bend in Sheridan road to Tribune Tower, counting other cars which passed us and the type of driver. Only twenty cars passed—a pretty good record although traffic was not heavy at the time—of which twelve were piloted by men in their own cars, two private chauffeurs, one Checker cab and four women. One of the women who thought 45 miles about right ran afoul a Lincoln park motor cop.

ALL SHE NEEDED WAS A TOPIC.

Sir: She was a singular woman! She was not talkative. At teas, bridge parties or the like she was so taciturn that her presence was hardly noticed. When she absented herself from these gatherings for several weeks, few missed her. When she reappeared, however, she was the cynosure of all eyes. To the wonderment of her friends, she had become garrulous. Even experienced "scandal spillers" found it difficult to get in a word. No, she hadn't taken a "learn to speak in public" course—she had had an operation.

JUST DOWNRIGHT STUBBORN

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 12, 1914.

LONDON.—The battle of the Marne, as the French have christened the great struggle which now has been in progress for a week in the territory between Paris and Verdun, with the allied armies of France and England on one side and the Germans on the other, has not yet reached a decisive result. The German right, however, in the face of superior forces and threatened with an outflanking movement, continues to retire to the north along the route over which Gen. von Kluck made his famous lightning advance on Paris from the Belgian border, after having defeated the allies at Mons and again at Cambrai and St. Quentin. Dispatches paint the German retirement as more of a rout than a retreat.

PARIS.—A report brought by motor car says the allies have cut off and defeated a large force of the enemy 60 miles northeast of Paris, taking 6,000 prisoners and 15 guns. The Germans are utterly demoralized.

PARIS.—James Gordon Bennett obtained an interview with William G. Sharp, the new American ambassador, and the military government has warned correspondents that any comment on it would not be passed by the censor, as it was likely to cause a misunderstanding. The interview completely destroys Sharp's influence.

LONDON.—The Morning Post's correspondent at Petrograd telegraphs: "The Austrian retirement on the Vistula is being conducted with a semblance of order, but it is very different with the right wing operating near Tomaszow. The Austrians there are routed and are fleeing in the utmost disorder. Driving in between the two wings, the Russians have cut off the Austro-German army and completely surrounded it on the front and flank. The Russian cavalry has got behind the retreating army with guns and it is now in a desperate situation."

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 12, 1900.

HOUSTON, Tex.—Galveston's death list from the hurricane that swept the city is much greater than at first supposed. It now seems certain the victims will number 5,000. Mayor Jones gives that estimate in an appeal sent out for aid. It is claimed that 2,300 bodies already have been disposed of—sunk at sea, buried in trenches, or burned. Seventy-five smaller cities and villages are totally wiped out or have but a few buildings left standing, and these add 300 or more to the long list of victims. Galveston is under martial law and 25 Negroes caught pillaging wrecked houses and stores were shot. It is reported that a number of guards were killed in a conflict with the marauders. The property damage in Galveston is estimated at $10,000,000.

CHICAGO.—Senator Mark Hanna, chairman of the Republican national committee, and Senator Mason were chief speakers at a dinner given in their honor at the Hamilton club. Senator Hanna cautioned Republicans against overconfidence in the party strength.

CHICAGO.—Dr. Frank Gunsaulus resigned the presidency of Armour institute.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 12, 1865.

FORT SMITH, Ark.—The Indian council held two sessions today. The address of Judge Cooley, commissioner of Indian affairs, was conciliatory and seemed to give great satisfaction to the Indians. None but loyal Indians are present as yet, but 1,800 rebel Indians are expected on Monday.

WILMINGTON, N. C.—There is now a considerable tide of emigration from the north to the south. Most of it is under the auspices of the General Southern Land agency, which has established offices in New York. Its agents estimate that at least 100,000 persons will come from the northern states during the present year. The southern people are gradually becoming favorable to the movement.

NEW ORLEANS.—The Times' Jackson, Miss., correspondent says it is credibly reported that Gen. Slocum has tendered his resignation as department commander as a result of President Johnson's indorsing Gov. Sharkey's action in the imbroglio between the civil and military authorities. President Johnson sent an order to Gen. Slocum which states: "If you have issued any order countermanding Gov. Sharkey's proclamation or interfering in its execution you will at once revoke it."

THE BUSINESS CYCLE.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Are American business leaders beginning to take the blame for the depression now that it has run for more than a year? President Whitney of the New York Stock exchange has the courage to say that pegging of prices was one cause of the slowing up of buying. He adds that overproduction due to increased efficiency in our factories was the basic cause of the depression. After a promising start he slides into the groove of most American business thinking.

Underconsumption is the basic cause of the depression. Few of us are able to buy all the goods we want. Years ago economists warned that either wages must go up or commodity prices fall more rapidly, the inevitable result if neither happened being a severe depression. Prices in many lines must go still lower to bring back normal buying. A general increase in wages would do the same thing, but wage-earners have little control over that end of the economic system.

Corporations with huge surpluses from the last few years can hoard them by passing dividends and closing factories, but that will not bring back prosperity. Being forced by consumers to sell their so-called surplus stocks at ever lowering prices will eventually restore prosperity. Then, if commodity prices start up again or even fail to decline gradually after a short time, the foundation for another depression will be set.

Production costs will tend to go lower. Will American business have the vision to raise wages in order to widen buyers' needs and lower prices to induce more consumption? Judging from past performances, I think not.

ROBERT W. SHOEMAKER.

SPLITTING THE PARTY.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 7.—It seems inconceivable that the Anti-Saloon league should do such an idiotic thing as to split the Republican vote by marching behind the banner of Mrs. O'Neill. No matter how good a woman and how able a woman Mrs. O'Neill may be, don't they understand that they will probably cause the election of James Hamilton Lewis, an avowed wet and Democrat? It may be commendable from an idealistic standpoint for the so-called drys to support an independent candidate for the senate. But what will it get them in practical politics? There should be men and women among their number who have the political wisdom and influence to dissuade them from such a course.

What is the matter with Mrs. McCormick, anyway? She is as dry as they make them. But she has pledged to do the will of a majority of the electorate of Illinois. Isn't that American? Isn't that in accordance with the traditions? In addition Mrs. McCormick is able, courageous, patriotic.

A. J. RICHARDSON.

SCHOOL CHILDREN IN THE CARS.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—While riding, or, rather, while standing, in a Halsted street car, north bound, I was disgusted with the shoving and pushing of the Tilden Tech pupils. When they enter the car they bunch up and make passage impossible, while the front of the car remains empty. They ought to be made to realize the importance of moving up to the front to give the other passengers the pleasure of entering the car without having to make a full back plunge.

JOHN EDWARDS.

A FIRE ALARM.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—About a week ago as we were retiring we heard a strange noise coming from our boiler room. My husband went downstairs to investigate and found the boiler red as fire and smoke so thick he could not see just where the fire came from, but supposed it was too much pressure in the boiler. We tried to locate our janitor and landlord immediately, but as they were not on the premises my husband called the fire department, telling where the fire was coming from, and they refused to respond. Mr. Msinke, who took our call at the station, said they could do nothing for us. He was told that an explosion might occur any moment. He said they would respond immediately following an explosion, if we would call them! Imagine our feeling to be left to await an explosion.

I did the only thing possible under the circumstances. I called the fire department and told them there was a fire in our building and to come immediately. They did! Two trucks and a hook and ladder!

There was time, money, and men wasted. If they had answered our first call they could have sent the number of men and equipment needed and we have taken all that equipment and men away from the station when a more serious call might come in at any time.

MRS. E. F.

FROM THE W. O. N. P. R.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Mr. Bennett in his article of Monday morning quotes the following from this organization:

"If Mrs. McCormick abides by her decision to keep silent on the most important issue, etc."

This is a misstatement of fact. Mrs. McCormick has been very definite in stating her policy in regard to the prohibition question. The only thing we feel she has not been as definite in as she might be is the "majority vote." We do not know whether she means a majority vote on the referendum or a majority of the votes cast in Illinois.

When the time comes we will ask Mrs. McCormick this question. In the meantime we do not want to nag Mrs. McCormick or any other candidate with misstatement of fact.

MRS. HARVEY A. TYLER,

QUESTION FOR W. O. N. P. R.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—To the 16,000 women of the W. O. N. P. R.:

Do you pay $1 apiece for membership fee annually without hope of a refund directly or indirectly?

Are you expected to attend meetings regularly?

Are you expected to give definite service in at least one committee regularly?

Do you sign a pledge never to touch or taste intoxicating beverages of any kind?

This is what the W. C. T. U. women do.

MRS. A. C. DICKINSON.

THE AUDITORIUM TRANSFORMED.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Poor old Auditorium! Our famous theater, once the pride of Chicago, to be transformed into the Lilliputian golf course. After 31 glorious years' service as Chicago's temple of song and civic culture it prematurely reaches the period of its second childhood and seeks congenial playmates.

What a rare opportunity it offers to make a fortune selling animal crackers to its new customers.

13 SLAIN, 35 HURT AS KURDS ATTACK TROOPS IN IRAQ

Tribesmen Protest New Pact with Britain.

BAGDAD, Iraq, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Thirteen persons were killed and 35 injured in a riot today outside the government offices at Sulaimani. Officials said the disorder was caused by Kurds, who were dissatisfied with the new Anglo-Iraq treaty.

Kurds, armed with revolvers, daggers, and sticks, blockaded the government offices and attacked police and soldiers called to drive them away. The dead included one Iraq soldier.

The Kurds have opposed the new treaty ever since it was negotiated. Last month they refused to vote at the general election as a result of this dissatisfaction.

Iraq Bitter Over Mandate.

The relations between Great Britain and Iraq, which was made a British mandate under the league of nations, have long been a source of bitterness in Iraq. Sir Abdul Muhsin Es-Saadun, prime minister, committed suicide Nov. 13, 1929, leaving a letter saying he could no longer endure the treatment his own people accorded him because of his relations with the British.

Later the British government presented to the league mandate commission a recommendation that the mandate be ended in the near future. The treaty in question was signed Aug. 20 last.

The pact provided for an alliance between the two nations and for withdrawal of British troops from Hinaidi and Mosul. Iraq was to lease to Great Britain three air bases to the west of the Euphrates river. The Arab press assailed the treaty on the ground that it afforded Iraq nothing like the complete independence which had been promised.

Kill Six Indo-China Reds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 11.—French authorities, alarmed at violent riots in Indo-China during the last three days, have decided to send a contingent of marines to the colony. According to an official communique, five communists were killed and several wounded in Hatinh, when a mob of 300 marched on the village of Camxuyen, threatening to burn houses of French officials. Police opened fire, killing four and wounding five.

In the near-by village of Kyao, communist rioters burned a school, several buildings and houses, besides attacking the small police post. Police reinforcements arrived and in the shooting one rioter was slain and several others hurt.

Reed Defends Chicago from Attacks of Critics in Paris

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Citing Chicago's unjustified reputation as a city of crime as an example of the false conceptions nations hold of each other, conceptions which are the chief cause of international distrust and conflicts, former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri made an eloquent plea today at the American club luncheon for understanding and peace among peoples without the aid of the league of nations or any other stilted organization.

The "delicious and destructive oratory" of the former senator attracted a record number of members and guests who loudly applauded the silver haired speaker.

Flays Chicago's Detractors.

In referring to the Edgar Wallace play, "On the Spot," which has been produced here in English, Mr. Reed said:

"That play gives the audience the impression that all judges in Chicago are in the pay of the bootleggers. It is unfortunate that life in the United States is portrayed by exaggeration of its unpleasant aspects. I'll tell you the truth about Chicago."

And then he proceeded to recount the phenomenal growth of the city to a metropolis of 3,000,000 on a territory which was prairie land less than 100 years ago.

"Different conditions must obtain under such rapid progress," he continued. "This great city, with its vast edifices, great banks and counting houses, splendid libraries and schools, is portrayed as a place where life and property are unsafe.

"The manner of the amalgamation of the American peoples presents problems unknown in this old and long established world. Our new and growing country should not be criticized for conditions which are unknown here."

But while deploring misunderstandings that keep nations apart, Mr. Reed has no faith in the power of the late President Woodrow Wilson's league, nor French Foreign Minister Aristide Briand's federation of Europe.

Doubts Use of Peace Talk.

The senator referred sarcastically to "politicians saving the world and keeping their jobs at the same time," and expressed the pessimistic conviction that by talking so much about organization to preserve peace the statesmen are only putting the thought of war in people's hearts.

"The attempt to bring all nations together in one body must result in perpetual quarrels and will inevitably lead to the tyranny of one class," Mr. Reed declared emphatically. In denouncing all the efforts of the governments to "make men better by force," Mr. Reed lamented the idea of the United States that the state is entitled to control the individual, which theory he described as the beginning of every tyranny, as illustrated by prohibition and its results.

CLAIMS PRO-INDIA PROPAGANDA IS "POISONING" U. S.

Lord Meston Says Gandhi Cults Flourish.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Lord Meston, famous Indian administrator, who has just returned from a visit to America, protests in a letter to the London Times today against British apathy in the face of the insistent pro-Indian propaganda in the United States, which, he declares, is poisoning the minds of the American people on the Indian question.

Lord Meston pays tribute to the fairness of the American daily press, but points out that the lecture platform in the United States is filled with frank Indian propagandists and American radical sentimentalists, who persistently misrepresent what is going on in India, and who are detrimental to Great Britain.

Gandhi Cult in Evidence.

These propagandists, he declares, play skillfully on the memories of America's own struggle for freedom, and draw plausible, but not entirely false parallel between that and what is happening in India today. At luncheon tables the Gandhi cult is in evidence, and women draw photos of the "saint" reverently from their bosoms to display to their neighbors, he said.

The importance of this letter is that it is evidence that Englishmen of position are at last beginning to get worried about stated opinion in the United States.

Police Raid Bomb Factory.

CALCUTTA, India, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The ingredients of another Indian bomb plot were uncovered today by police raid on a house in north Calcutta. A live bomb in a suitcase and several shells and materials for the manufacture of bombs on a fairly large scale were found.

Three persons were arrested. During the raid, a youth entered the house carrying a bundle of vegetables. Eight small bombs were found concealed in the bundle. The youth and his deadly weapons were taken into custody.

Half a dozen houses had previously been searched in East and West Bengal and eight arrests had been made.

Sentenced to Jail Fourth Time for Beating Family

Clarence Olson, 31 years old, 1916 North Rockwell street, who beat his son, Kenneth, 8 years old, into insensibility on Wednesday night, was fined $200 and costs on a disorderly conduct charge yesterday in Judge Immenhausen's court. Unable to pay, he was sent to the Bridewell for six months. Kenneth is in the Children's Memorial hospital pending a diagnosis of his condition. Olson has served three previous sentences for beating his family.

Many Families With Large Incomes Demand the Best of Everything

One of the outstanding facts of modern life in America is the large number of families who enjoy incomes of more than ordinary proportions. The number is greater than is commonly supposed.

Chicago claims a generous share of these families; and many of the others visit Chicago frequently. Most of them know Marshall Field & Company's store as a favorite source of supply for "the best of everything."

Seeking the superlative in merchandise, such as their taste can appreciate and their purses afford, these patrons visit all sections of the store and demand the best that genius and skill can produce or money can buy.

Meeting this demand over a long period of years has accustomed our organization to an appreciation of what constitutes the best. With this first-hand knowledge we can infuse into the manufacture and selection of all of our merchandise, in the lower as well as the higher price levels, a spirit of quality and a superiority of design that otherwise would not be possible for this or any other mercantile organization.

Whatever you buy and whatever you pay, and whether your income is large or small, you have the satisfaction of knowing that for equal qualities our prices are keenly competitive.

DEAD OR ALIVE? CHIEF QUESTION IN CRATER CASE

Missing Justice Sought in Woods and Cities.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 11.—[Special.]—Is Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Crater dead or alive? Detectives are rattling the doors of lonely hunting lodges in the forests of the Adirondacks, searching the great hotels of half a dozen cities and probing into the secret spots of the underworld tonight in an effort to answer that question.

"I'm going up to Westchester for a swim—see you tomorrow," said a tall, plump faced apparently carefree jurist on a sunshiny afternoon almost five weeks ago as he waved a careless good-by to his confidential clerk, Joseph L. Mara.

Stepping briskly into a taxicab "Joe" Crater, politician, jurist, family man and the "life of the party" along Broadway—a pleasure loving fellow who knew every one from the highest Washington circles to the night club dance floors—vanished into the traffice and left behind him a strange trail of fragmentary episodes.

Reported in Night Clubs.

The dignified chambers of the courthouse never saw him again, but stories persist that the gray haired, youngish appearing jurist went on a joyous trek that led him through Manhattan's night clubs into the company of chorus girls, hostesses and on to a mountain fastness for a romantic interlude. Equally persistent stories insist the missing judge has been kidnaped, drowned, murdered by gangland foes he made in the courtroom. Others believe he is merely "resting" or hiding from some one or something that still is unknown to the public.

There is every ingredient of the mystery thriller in Justice Crater's disappearance. Not since the almost legendary abduction of a judge whose name has been lost in crumbling newspaper files of a hundred years ago has there been a similar case.

Coming at a time when the bench of New York was mired in scandal [although the scandal has not been traced to Crater], the disappearance took on a political tinge which soon changed to a sinster aspect with a hint of murder. Now the vanished jurist's connection with the whoopee crowd along Broadway has added the previously missing romance to make a plot that compares with any best seller.

No 'Charge Against Him.

If Crater is dead—murdered—then the case must take its place with the famous crimes of a crime filled era. If he has been kidnaped—abducted or is being held in any way against his will—then it still remains a first class thriller. But if Justice Crater should walk into his home tonight he would have only to answer to his wife. There is no charge of any kind against him.

There even is the mystery of the missing papers in this high court, low Broadway, thriller. Police Commissioner Mulrooney reports that every paper of public or confidential nature has been removed from Crater's files. Mulrooney believes Justice Crater is hiding, and it is the police commissioner's men who are searching the banks of Lake Racquette in the Adirondacks, where the owner of a hunting lodge informed police that a man answering the missing judge's description had been on the night of Aug. 30.

The police are looking for Justice Crater because Mrs. Stella Crater, his wife, asked them to find him.

Believes Husband Slain.

Mrs. Crater is fearful that her husband has been killed. She knows of no reason why he should have vanished. It was Simon H. Rifkind, attorney and intimate of Crater, who first reported the case to the police. Rifkind, too, believes his friend was murdered.

Meanwhile the police have not forgotten the old French adage of "Look for the woman." They say they have learned Justice Crater was the guest of honor at a party in a theatrical man's home late in July. It was there that he first met a number of girls from the chorus of "Artists and Models." The show has since moved on to Chicago and the girls that Justice Crater knew are all dancing there except Jane Manners, who has dropped out of sight and has not been seen in her accustomed Broadway haunts.

Dorothy Dun, Alice Woods, Billie Hill, and Sally Ritz from the "Artists and Models" chorus have been mentioned as among those at the party.

Another Woman Sought.

Still another woman is sought in Washington. She is reported to have been in the jurist's company when he went to the capital after a visit to Atlantic City some time before he vanished.

Justice Crater had $5,150 in his pocket when he vanished. It was an unusually large sum for him to draw, his bankers said. He was dressed in business clothes, but carried no bag when he stepped into the taxicab.

Meanwhile apart and apparently unconnected with the Crater case New York's judicial scandal rolls on. The district attorney today asked for a court order to exhume the body of Magistrate Andrew Macreary, whose death a year ago was officially ascribed to heart failure. The magistrate died in a physician's office where he had been taken. A month later, a charge was circulated that the magistrate had been "beaten to death." An inquiry was held by the medical examiner, but nothing came of it. The case was recently revived.

Magistrate George Ewald, who has been in a lot of trouble with the federal courts, is planning to fight back, it was learned this afternoon. He will attempt to have a mail fraud indictment against him quashed and if he succeeds, he says he will file suit against United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle charging slander and seeking $1,000,000.

ROBBED ON WAY TO BANK.

While walking to a neighborhood bank with $244 cash and $822 in checks, Charles Campbell, 3235 Washington boulevard, manager of the Clark and Kleinman grocery, 127 North Kedzie avenue, was robbed in front of 27 North Kedzie avenue by two armed men.

CITY PREPARES FOR WINTER WAR ON SMOKE PALL

Violators to Face Strict Prosecution.

Strict enforcement of the city's anti-smoke ordinance during the coming winter heating season was promised yesterday by Frank A. Chambers, city smoke inspector, as a warning to violators. Drastic action will be taken, he said, against those persons who fire their heating plants in such a manner that soot and smoke pour from their chimneys.

An opportunity has been given since the last heating season to replace obsolete heating equipment and to obtain supplies of smokeless fuel, Mr. Chambers said.

Sums Up Smoke Losses.

"Smoke has no defense," he asserted. "It represents enormous waste in fuel, damage to buildings, ruined decorations, increased laundry and cleaning bills, to say nothing of its injurious effects on our health and loss of time and money resulting from the disease and sickness it causes. Statistics show that as a result of the clouds of smoke belched from thousands of chimneys in Chicago the loss of approximately $43,000,000 annually is sustained, representing a yearly tax of nearly $15 on each citizen.

"The smoke hazard over airports in metropolitan centers and industrial cities is a menace to the lives of aviators, and unless the smoke pall can be eliminated it affords an insurmountable problem to aviation.

"Intelligent, careful firing, selection of the proper fuel and attention to the condition of the heating equipment will go a long way to minimize this evil. Boilers should be cleaned and repaired, soot and dirt accumulation should be removed from the chimneys and everything made clean and tight so that the proper draft will be obtained."

The inclusion of a plank on electrification by the Cook county Republican organization was seen by Mr. Chambers as an aid in the fight against railroad smoke.

"The demand for a start in the construction of a system of electrification," he asserted, "gives expression to an aroused public sentiment against smoke and will aid in making the railroads conscious of an enmity against air pollution."

French Riot at Showing of 'Hollywood Revue' Talkie

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The first presentation of the American talkie film "Hollywood Revue," was broken up at the Madelaine theater last night when the French spectators raised an uproar and smashed seats, while the management called the gendarmes. The French objected because the talkis appeared in English, and because the galaxy of stars advertised did not appear often enough in the film.

NEED 100 MILLION YEARLY TO HOLD NAVAL PRESTIGE

Cost of Building Treaty Ships Trebles Expense.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—Studies made by the naval general board reveal that 100 million dollars would have to be expended annually by the United States on new warship construction if the fleet is to be maintained at approximately the strength permitted by the London naval treaty. The average naval expenditures for new construction in recent years has run below $50,000,000.

In reaching the above figure naval officers estimated it would cost somewhat more than two billion dollars to build an entirely new fleet of the size permitted the United States. In view of the fact that the largest of these vessels must be replaced every twenty years, the annual cost of keeping up a two billion dollar fleet was set at 100 millions.

Adams Will Ask 125 Million.

As the fleet has been allowed to deteriorate due to failure of legislation calling for orderly replacements, the annual new construction costs until the fleet is up to treaty strength in modern ships would run well above 100 millions annually. It is reported Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams anticipates recommending to President Hoover that the United States embark at once on a program which would increase naval construction appropriations from the 50 millions allowed during the last two years to at least 125 millions.

It was learned today that President Hoover does not plan to investigate the subject of naval construction legislation until after Admiral William V. Pratt, commanding officer of the United States fleet and stanch upholder of the terms of the London treaty, reaches Washington the first of next month and takes over the post of chief of naval operations.

Pratt Will Play Important Rôle.

Admiral Pratt will be ex officio chairman of the general board and in that capacity will have an important part to play in framing the naval building program which the board is preparing for submission to Secretary Adams.

In submitting its program the board will base its recommendations on the limitations of the treaty and upon its judgment of naval needs. It undoubtedly will include in its program all ships permitted by the treaty which it considers useful to the fleet. It is certain to recommend completion of the eighteen 8 inch gun cruisers program as rapidly as possible.

It will include 6 inch gun tonnage on the authorization program but will recommend that the 8 inch gun cruisers be given priority.

VISITORS SHOWN HOW NATION'S LATEST WAR WEAPONS FUNCTION

Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Aberdeen, Md., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Airplanes towed targets, zig-zagging like bats through a black sky, were spotted here tonight by 80,000,000 candle power searchlights, as army groups tested the world's latest anti-aircraft armament and fire control devices.

The white sleeve targets were followed through the night air to the tune of the steady rat-tat-tat of machine guns and the thunder of 3-inch anti-aircraft guns.

It was visitors' day and hundreds of civilians watched the spectacular demonstrations that began early in the morning. In daylight hours red targets were used.

The tests starting Aug. 15 were conducted by the chiefs of ordnance, coast artillery, the air corps, and the corps of engineers. Army officials said they demonstrated forcibly the great strides that had been made in the development of anti-aircraft armament.

A new gun, known as the 37 millimeter mobile anti-aircraft arrived at the grounds late and was not fired today. It is designed to fire an explosive weighing one and one-quarter pounds with a supersensitive fuse which explodes it upon contact with the wing fabric of a plane. The extreme range of the weapon is 7,700 yards, and the rate of fire 100 shots a minute. The fire of the gun is directed by a combination of intricate instruments.

Foreign makes of guns as well as American makes were tested in the last month, but until today all work was carried on in secret.

SUBURBS WIN IN BATTLE ON PHONE BILLS

Suburban telephone subscribers yesterday won their fight for fully itemized bills when the Illinois Bell Telephone company announced such a statement would be issued monthly to any subscriber who requested it. A telephone call to the local business office of the subscriber is all that is necessary, said a statement issued by F. O. Hale, president of the company.

A storm of protest arose when the company announced that only "bobtailed" bills would be submitted. The company had proposed to list only the town and date in itemizing toll charges. The custom has been to list the number called as well as the other information. The company said the change would save an estimated $20,000 yearly in clerk hire.

"It is the company's desire to give satisfactory billing service to customers, and we will be glad to render bills on the former basis to those who want them," said Mr. Hale's statement. "A telephone call to the local business office is all that is necessary."

Several suburban communities had announced plans to file a formal protest to the Illinois commerce commission.

A marshalling of telephone users over the state to combat the new policy was under way when the company made its announcement.

U.S., CANADA MAY RESUME PARLEY ON ROUTE TO SEA

Exchange of Notes Likely to Reopen Question.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—(AP)—A move toward resumption of negotiations over the gigantic St. Lawrence waterways project has been initiated in an exchange of notes between the United States and Canada looking to a settlement of differences and the writing of a waterways treaty.

The text of neither note was made public. The United States' suggestion, however, was said authoritatively to have been brief, merely reiterating the willingness of this country to proceed with negotiations at any time. It was taken to Canada by Hanford MacNider, the new American minister.

Bennett Willing to Act.

Advices from Ottawa said the Canadian reply contained assurance by Premier Bennett that he would take up the negotiations soon after his return from the imperial conference in London in October. The Canadian note had not been received at the state department late today.

The exchange of notes was the first known move through formal diplomatic channels since 1928. A series of communications in that year, however, outlined two major economic problems, upon which opinion was divided. First, the proper division of costs between the two countries, and, second, the development and allocation of water power created by the project.

Experts on the St. Lawrence plan said today these same problems probably would bulk large in the prospective negotiations, but that other waterway stumbling blocks experienced in Canada at that time, because of which Premier Mackenzie King indicated a desire for delay, had now been removed.

Outlook Brightest in Decade.

OTTAWA, Sept. 11.—[Special.]—Canada will enter into negotiations with the United States for a treaty for the development of the St. Lawrence waterway as soon as Premier Bennett returns from the London, England, imperial conference in October. This is known to be the effect of the note Canada has sent to Washington in reply to the suggestion from the United States government that negotiations be commenced.

The outlook for successful international negotiations for the St. Lawrence waterways appears brighter now than at any time in the decade of discussion. Premier Bennett promised action on behalf of Canada in the election campaign. The new Canadian railways minister, Robert Manion, is one of Canada's most ardent advocates of the big development. President Hoover, judging by the American note, is still strongly in favor of it, and Col. Hanford MacNider, new American minister, an Iowan, is also a strong supporter of it.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—State crop estimates as of Sept. 1 announced today by the department of agriculture forecast a corn crop in Illinois, Iowa, and Indiana this year of 760 million bushels or 227 million bushels less than that of 1929.

Each of the three great corn growing states was hard hit by the drought, which an agriculture department report yesterday showed reduced the corn crop of the entire country approximately 632 million bushels under last year and 819 million bushels under the production forecast July 1 of this year.

Figures for Three States.

The shrinkage under the 1929 crop for Illinois was forecast in today's report as 27 per cent, for Iowa 22 per cent, and for Indiana 19 per cent. Comparative figures in thousands of bushels for the three states were given, as follows:

	Average.		Estimate.
Illinois	326,691	311,500	225,846

Iowa	417,137	429,878	333,000

In corn production last year Iowa ranked first, Illinois second, and Nebraska third. If the Sept. 1 crop estimate is accurate, Nebraska, which escaped the worst effects of the drought, will crowd Illinois out of second place with a production of 316 million bushels.

From the standpoint of all crops this year Wisconsin, which until recently suffered comparatively little from the drought, is faring by far the best of any of the five Chicago area states.

The spread of the drought northward the latter part of August was reflected in the crop losses during that month. The loss in Illinois was 5.6 per cent, in Indiana 2.9 per cent, in Iowa 6.6 per cent, in Michigan 13.6 per cent, and in Wisconsin 3.2 per cent.

Peach Crop Ruined.

All of the five states showed prospective increases in the production of oats which was mostly harvested before the drought set in. The barley crop was about the same as last year but all five except Wisconsin, suffered sharp reductions in their tame hay and alfalfa crops. As compared with a country wide percentage of 67, representing pasture conditions, the percentage of Illinois was 27, Indiana 28, Iowa 49, Michigan 21, and Wisconsin 42.

Illinois' peach crop has been virtually wiped out, the report revealed. Last year Illinois raised 2,600,000 bushels of peaches, more than any state except California. This year the forecast shows less than 1 per cent of the crop will be harvested.

MEMPHIS LEVEE OF OLD YIELDS TO BARGE ACTIVITY

Hurley Tourists See Modern Traffic.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 11. — [Special.]—Where once the river packets were lined two and three deep along the great stone levee here, a few Negroes lounge on the flagstones and the yellow waters of the Mississippi lap a deserted shore. The excitement, the noise, the bustle of the old paddle wheeler days is a memory.

The romantic color of river commerce fifty years ago has yielded to a cold, efficient, business-like method of transportation. A half mile south of the old landing place stands the huge terminal of the Inland Waterways corporation, and here with a minimum of confusion thousands of tons of produce and manufactured goods are loaded into barges for shipment up and down the river.

Secretary of War Hurley stopped in Memphis today on his expedition down the Mississippi from St. Paul to New Orleans and viewed the most striking example of present day river commerce he has yet encountered.

Sees Real River Commerce.

Directed by Maj. Gen. Thomas Ashburn, chairman of the board of the Waterways corporation, the secretary saw a continuous stream of goods pouring into the terminal on freight cars, pass smoothly on carriers to the great 1,000 ton barges waiting, and move out into the river in convoy of puffing steamships.

"A total of 269,000 tons of commodities passed through this terminal in 1929," said Gen. Ashburn. "That included 250,000 bales of cotton. Memphis has learned that river transportation has returned. One of the old time river packets made a lot of noise and stirred up excitement, but, after all, it carried only about 1,000 tons of freight. One of these barges alone carries ten times that much."

On one wall of the terminal was attached a huge chart of the river. This showed the points where barges were moving. More than a dozen fleets of cargo laden barges were shown in passage. The low water in the river has handicapped transportation, but it has not stopped it, Gen. Ashburn pointed out.

Tractors Sent on Barges.

A big shipment of tractors was being loaded on barges. The secretary looked on. They would be delivered to farmers of the south, southwest, and middle west at a big saving in railroad freight rates.

Lest the government corporation be brought in to competition with the railroads because of this fact, Secretary Hurley emphasized in a talk before the engineers' club this afternoon that river commerce stimulated railroad business and that both railroads and river transportation companies must work together. He said:

"The corporation is putting commerce back on the river. That is one of the policies of the administration. But when the day comes that private companies can operate at a profit on the inland waterways, then the corporation will be for sale."

A delegation of business men told the secretary that this city was enthusiastic about river navigation and would support him to the fullest extent.

Safety of Lives First.

Questioned about flood control work on the lower Mississippi, the secretary told these men that such projects came first in importance when the engineers found them necessary to the safety of lives and the preservation of property.

The secretary's party will leave tomorrow, cruising down the river between Arkansas and Mississippi and inspecting more flood control projects under construction.

Out of one basket comes extra wear for half of Chicago's home-washed clothes

What!—does half Chicago launder her clothes with one kind of soap? She does! More than half the women who buy laundry soap buy good old American Family—the soap that actually doubles the wear of clothes!

It's the double-suds . . .
that makes this difference in wear. For American Family is all pure, unadulterated soap. It contains not one grain of "filler" or "second quality"—nothing that could weaken the most delicate thread or tint.

Even silk stockings hold their ensemble shades and run-resisting strength a third to a half longer, when laundered only in the pure double-suds of American Family Soap. (Business girls, please note.)

It's so pure that four out of five of Chicago's millionaire Gold Coast women trust their costly silks and linens to no other soap but American Family. They say that it lets them launder their sheer organdie and chiffon frocks over and over again, that it saves the filmiest fabrics, brings out the most gorgeous colors as lovely as new.

It's the double-suds . . .
that makes the difference in labor, also. For American Family is all soap—every atom gives you double-fast, dirt-removing help. There is no lazy "filler" to bolster up the suds—to let them pretend they're working when they're not. No insoluble "filler" to cling to fabrics and make rinsing hard, and ironing harder.

Such purity keeps your hands soft, white, lovely as though they never knew work. Actually, laundresses tell us that American Family has healed their hands when cracked and reddened from harsh soaps. And thousands of women say they use no other soap for shampoo and bath. Because it's as pure and clean-smelling as fine toilet soap.

It's the double-suds . . .
that makes the cent or two difference in cost. But the cent or two extra that you spend for purity saves hundreds of dollars' worth of clothes . . . makes two tablecloths, or two pieces of lingerie, or two children's frocks outwear three! No wonder more Chicago women buy American Family than buy all the other laundry soaps combined!

Frankly, you cannot afford to use any other soap but American Family for all your dishwashing, cleaning, laundering. It saves the color and beauty of woodwork, linoleum, bathroom porcelains, china, as well as clothes. And every atom gives you double-fast, energy-saving help. This very day, stock up your laundry, kitchen and bathroom with American Family Soap—the soap preferred by more than half the women in Chicago.

PETROLLE POUNDS OUT DECISION OVER CANZONERI

LEO LOMSKI IS KNOCKED OUT BY LEVINSKY

Fish Peddler Fells Foe 11 Times.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Tony Canzoneri, outstanding contender for the lightweight championship and Chicago's favorite in nearly a score of bouts, could not withstand the sturdy blows of Billy Petrolle last night at the Stadium. He lost the decision in ten rounds packed full of action.

The outcome was unexpected. But great as was this battle for the right to challenge Al Singer's tenancy of the lightweight throne, the battle which preceded it was more exciting.

King Levinsky, the fish peddling Jewish lad from Maxwell street, lashed out a hurricane of right hand smashes to knock out Leo Lomski. The veteran Polish fighter, who has battled the best of the light heavyweights in his nine year career, failed to come out of his corner when the bell rang to start the sixth round. Referee Dave Barry stood over the semi-conscious Lomski and counted him out.

13,260 Attend Bout.

Stadium officials announced an attendance of 13,260. The gross receipts were $45,668.32. It was estimated that at least $10,000 would go in the trust fund to be established for Patricia Harmon, the four year old daughter of the late P. T. Harmon, who erected the Stadium.

Perhaps Lomski underrated his opponent. But after the first round he did not have an opportunity to repent his complacency. A minute's cautious boxing, then Levinsky charged, his arms whirling as a windmill.

His right hand crashed to the side of Lomski's jaw and the Pole dropped to his knees. At the count of two Lomski rose. Levinsky rushed. Again and again Lomski fell before the King's pile driving right hand. A fourth time Leo went down, this time to take the count of nine seconds. He clinched, but a fifth time the King sent him reeling to the floor only to be saved by the bell at a count of four.

Levinsky sprang to meet his rival in the next session. Twice Lomski sank to the floor from the King's punches and Barry swung his arm telling nine seconds. Once the King sprawled headlong as he rushed his weakening opponent.

Lomski Boxes Carefully.

Lomski rallied under the frantic administration of his seconds. Steadying himself, he boxed carefully through the third and fourth rounds, although Referee Barry again started a count in the fourth over Lomski after he and Levinsky fell through the ropes.

Then the finish.

Lomski jabbed. He seemed to be stronger. Levinsky was tiring from his efforts. A trickle of blood appeared at one corner of the King's lips, now puffed from that stinging left.

"He's coming back," a chorus of voices cried. But they had not counted on that right hand of Levinsky.

Lomski pressed forward, Levinsky retreating. Then again a lashing right smacked Lomski in the face. His knees buckled and he was down. Once more Lomski staggered to his feet, but to be denied, the King threw himself at his dazed opponent. Lomski took another count. A last time Levinsky closed in and Lomski, slowly tottering, fell and rolled over on his back, deaf to the clang of the bell, which scarcely could be heard above the din.

Counted Out in Corner.

The beaten man's seconds tried to throw in the towel of defeat. Dave Barry didn't see it and a minute later at the start of the sixth round Lomski was counted out in his corner.

It was the first time Lomski ever had been knocked out. In his last bout he went ten rounds to a draw with Maxie Rosenbloom, champion of the 175 pounders.

Petrolle's better timed punches and superior condition were the basis on which he built his ten round victory over Canzoneri. Billy's punches, carrying the same power which two years ago stopped Kid Berg, pounded one blow another to Tony's body and face. In the fourth Billy's glove opened a deep gash over Tony's right eye, a target which Petrolle used repeatedly. On occasion Canzoneri, hard pressed, caught Petrolle on the head. For the main, however, Tony's blows were poorly timed. He missed badly with his left hook, once his most powerful weapon.

Tony Rallies in Sixth.

Canzoneri rallied to win the sixth and seventh rounds, but Petrolle came back in the eighth to add one more round to the string which brought victory. The ninth was even. Again Tony came back in the closing rounds to make victory certain.

Kid Francis, European featherweight, outboxed Harry Forbes to win a eight round decision. Francis was the aggressor and never permitted his opponent to get set. Forbes fought strongly, although never a threat before Francis' aggressiveness.

Charlie Retzlaff, Duluth heavyweight, knocked out Pedro Lopez of Cuba in the second round. Harry Fisher scored a technical knockout in the fourth round over Roy Peters.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 11.—Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight champion of the world in all respects save that he does not happen to hold the official title, knocked out Al Singer, the new lightweight champion, in the third round in the Yankee Stadium this evening. Singer had outscored McLarnin in the first two rounds, putting him down for an instant in the first, but McLarnin caught him with three solid swings to the jaw in the third and put him down for a count of nine in one of the neutral angles of the ring.

Singer fell forward and lay full length with both gloves clasped over the back of his neck, bobbing his head and kicking up puffs of resin from the rug as he pounded the rug with the toes of his soft ring shoes. Johnny McAvoy, the referee, picked up the count and barked it close to his ear, but Singer paid no heed and seemed content to lie there, grabbing his neck as if stung there by a wasp and kicking like a petulant child.

Turns Hand Spring Too Soon.

At the count of nine, however, he laid his red gloves on the soiled and threadbare plush of the ropes and pulled himself up. McLarnin, in the opposite corner, lost track of the count, and when Singer got up he obviously thought Al had been counted out and was going to his corner. Therefore, in accordance with a picturesque custom of his, he took off from a flat footed stand and described a cartwheel amid the gnats swarming under the ring lights, landing on his feet to face a wobbling but still eligible opponent.

Somewhat embarrased by the smacks on his jaw and by the unconventional deportment of an opponent who turned cartwheels in the midst of an action, Singer nevertheless offered a weary right hand punch at McLarnin's head which dropped as it flew and caught McLarnin harmlessly on the brisket.

"He's hitting you—hit him back!" yelled McLarnin's manager, Old Pop Foston, from the step of the ring in Jimmy's corner, and Jimmy, thus advised, let go one more punch, a right-hand square on the jaw. Singer spun an instant and fell as if tapped with a coupling pin, landing again face down and repeating the same unique gestures at the back of his neck.

McAvoy Tolls Off Ten.

This time McAvoy counted ten and McLarnin again took the air, turning two cartwheels to the considerable peril of Singer's seconds, who were tumbling up through the ropes to salvage their boy. McLarnin offered neither aid nor consolation to Singer, but went to his own corner very jubilant while McAvoy and Singer's people picked up the fallen lightweight champion.

Still complaining of a bad case of pain in the neck, Singer was helped to his feet, but turned before going to his corner and spared his right hand from the rubbing of the sore spot long enough to shake McLarnin's glove. They assisted Singer to his corner and he left the ring rolling his head and disappeared up the aisle.

McLarnin then uttered a few jubilant words to friends who offered their hands through the ropes, and the interclass bout between the lightweight champion and the unrecognized welterweight champion was over within ten minutes. The attendance and the gate receipts were guessed at as $5,000 and $200,000, respectively.

Singer Earns Shade.

The fight was Singer's first outing since he clipped Sammy Mandell on the jaw with a left hook and started him tottering to a one round knockout in the same ring in the same park in July. He had full command of the bout up to the instant that McLarnin caught him with a right swing to the jaw in an angle of the ropes just before the first knockdown.

Singer dropped in several right-hands on McLarnin's jaw in round one, and once, when they met in the corner where Singer was to tumble to his first fall, Al chafed him with several short punches, catching Jimmy off balance and setting him on his tights for an instant. McLarnin took no count, though.

Singer won this round and the second. He boxed away from McLarnin's swing and was taking many of Jimmy's ill intended rights comfortably on his left shoulder while shooting over sharp, clean scores to the chin himself. Singer smothered several rushes with apparent confidence and easy grace, but when Jimmy got ready to finish the fight he crushed his man in a few clouts and had it over with.

McCarthy All Smiles as He Sees Telegram

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Manager Joe McCarthy hasn't been doing much smiling these last ten days, but the smile he flashed when he got THE TRIBUNE'S telegram from the Cub fans wasn't a phoney. He said it gave him the first pleasant kick he's had since the Cubs licked the Cardinals 15 to 4 on Aug. 30.

"I know that if these thousands of loyal boosters could leave their work and bring us some base hits, they'd gladly make the sacrifice," McCarthy said. "We still are in first place, and, though the going has been mighty tough, the Cubs are not whimpering or alibiing.

"We haven't thrown up the sponge by a long shot, and our good friends who signed THE TRIBUNE'S message of cheer and confidence are going to see a great fight. It won't make them any happier than it will us when things get back to normalcy and we start socking out the hits that will bring the championship to Chicago.

"The players, disappointed as they now are, join me in this expression of appreciation to the Chicago fans. They saw the telegram and the thousands of signatures in the clubhouse and were impressed more than I can tell you."

HAFEY'S HOMER HELPS CARDINALS BEAT GIANTS, 5-4

Game Ends with 3 N. Y. Players on Base.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Copyright; 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]

New York, Sept. 11.—The Cardinals, the Giants, and a right smart lot of highstrung customers lived through another wild afternoon at the Polo grounds today in the current series of fighting ball games for the National league pennant and the funds pertaining thereto.

Twice the Giants tied the score, first at 3 and 3 and at 4 and 4 as the pitchers and the pinch hitters came and went, then, in the eighth inning, Andy High, the same who started the Cardinals' winning rally the day before, came up to bat for another party and hit the ball a little dab toward second base, scoring Chick Hafey from third with the run that made the difference. The score was 5 to 4 and the patrons, sensing the vast importance of the series for the first time, went in for more whooping and bawling than the New York customers ordinarily let fly in these sophisticated times.

Hats Go Skimming.

Some few, in the throes of aroused loyalty, went so far as to skim their old straw hats down upon the green, but just what degree of frenzy it takes to sacrifice in September a used straw hat that cost $3.50, new, in June, is a matter I will not go into. However, if I ever see a customer spin a new $10 fall fedora or a new tar-pot derby out onto the grass at a ball game to celebrate some hit or putout, that I will agree, represents an hysterical state of feeling.

Once, back yonder in the fifth inning, the people just behind third base yelled a high foul right out of Sparky Adams' glove as he spun beneath the ball, but the flags were standing out like sheet metal banners from their staffs along the roof of the stadium and the scorer guessed that maybe the wind had given the ball a mischievous twist and called the incident no play at all.

The ball game didn't really end until the final putout in the Giants' half of the ninth, for they needed only one run to tie and there were three runs waiting on the stations when Fred Leach came up with two men out and fired a hot one at Frank Frisch. All three runners were on their way at the crack of the club, and Bill Terry was almost in from third when a white speck flashed across the brown background of the skinned area and Frisch's throw beat Leach to first by a wink.

Hafey Hits Homer.

With that the players cut and ran for their clothes, and the attendance began piling onto the field to stand upon the very spot where the pitchers work and peer dumbly into the little well in the ground where the umpires keep the baseballs. One of these days some umpire will leave a baseball down the hole and one of those ever hopeful patrons will find it, and that will be news.

An even distribution of the credit for the things that were done in this ball game would run into considerable mileage, but the most spectacular feat was Mr. Hafey's home run in the first inning, which gave carte blanche to Adams and Frisch, and naturally had much to do with the way the game went in the end. Coming to bat for the first time since Aug. 24, when he cracked some ribs, Mr. Hafey assaulted Bill Walker's first pitch and bent it back into the second story of the left field accommodations.

These three runs resisted the Giants until the fifth, when three persons singled in succession and two of them scored. Critz outran a grounder toward third base, Allen put him on third with a single to left, and Fred Lindstrom nicked the paint on the

Why Are Cards Up in Race? Because They Belong There

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Any day you can expect to hear somebody speak of Gabby Street, pilot of the recently awakened Cardinals, as "The Miracle Man." It's an old baseball custom to apply the sobriquet to anybody doing the unexpected.

GABBY STREET.

But in this instance no miracle has been accomplished.

The Cardinals came bursting into the National league pennant party at the last moment because they were entitled to be there. They had been kept out only because of their own misfortunes.

No doubt it was well for the other contenders, not to mention the club owners who are profiting financially by the epic race, that the Cards were delayed in making their start. Without the delay there might have been no race. The Cards would have been THE race.

Give Gabby Street the Credit.

But if Street, once the battery mate of the illustrious Walter Johnson, hasn't brought about a miracle, he does deserve considerable credit for the things he has done. When he was handicapped he made the best of a bad situation. Now when the handicaps have been removed he is making the best of a pleasing situation. Possibly his greatest achievement was restoring the team morale which only a few weeks ago was sufficiently shattered to make a half dozen of its members think they would be elsewhere before another season rolled around.

If you seek the real reason for the Cards' sudden ascension you can find them easily. They are the things the team would have had from the start if Old Lady Luck had played them fair. They are:

1. Speed that helps not only on the bases but in the defense. Speed in the outfield means the difference between an out and an extra base hit on the long flies and the difference between a single and an out on the short ones.

2. An invincible infield combination made up of Frisch at second and Gelbert at short. If there is a better pair in either major, nobody knows it.

3. Steady pitching. Five men — Grimes, Hallahan, Johnson, Rhem, and Haines—are capable enough to start in turn. It's a versatile staff. One a spitball pitcher, one a left-hander, and the three others right-handed curvers and speedsters.

The thing that started the happy days dawning for the Cards was the return of Frisch. Early in the season he suffered a spike wound on his ankle and for weeks there was some fear he might be out for the year, if not permanently. The Cards wallowed around aimlessly while he was absent.

Others Out with Injuries.

Frisch's mishap, while the most costly, was only one of many. Outfielder Orsatti joined the invalid class. Hafey, one of Street's most persistent long ball hitters, had to rest for a long stretch. Bottomley, because of injuries, twice turned in his resignation as first sacker.

There were other mishaps which helped Street to run Joe McCarthy almost to a dead heat for bum luck. Street, like McCarthy, didn't know his own lineup from to day. Through all this the Cards just stumbled along. It was just a ball team hoping to finish the season without falling out of the first division. The home crowd

Donie Bush Pulls for Cubs, His Friend Joe McCarthy

BY ARCH WARD.

They may play better ball in the American league than in the National, but you can't prove it by Donie Bush of the White Sox. Bush, who played with the Detroit Tigers and managed the Pittsburgh Pirates before coming to Chicago, ought to know whereof he speaks.

DONIE BUSH.

"The pitching is undeniably superior in the American league," Bush said last night. "This advantage is offset by weak infields. There isn't a high class infield combination in the league this season. The National league can match outfields with the American, team for team.

"The American league shows better in world series competition because of its pitching strength. That usually is the determining factor in a short test. There are at least 15 fine hurlers on the eight American league teams.

"The greatest of these is Grove of the Athletics. He not only has a world of stuff, but he loves to work. He likes nothing better than to jump into a game as relief pitcher when the opposing team has knocked out a fellow moundsman. Earnshaw is good, too; but the Macks' pitching talent ends there.

"The National league has had better pennant races the last few years because the teams have been more evenly matched. Every club can sock the ball. There are teams in our league that are lost if the opponent gets three or four runs. They haven't got enough offensive power to get those runs back."

Bush wants it to be known that he is pulling for the Cubs for all he is worth. There are two reasons. One is civic loyalty. The other is Joe McCarthy.

"Don't let anybody tell you McCarthy isn't a smart leader," Donie said. "I know. I managed a rival team when he was in the American association and later in the National league. Baseball doesn't develop greater pilots than Joe McCarthy."

If the Cubs survive the blistering pennant scramble and face the Athletics in the world series, Bush opines that the representative of his league will be the favorite.

"The Athletics have one outstanding advantage," Donie said. "It's pitching. The Cubs have nobody to match Grove and Earnshaw. Allowing for the break in the schedule while the clubs travel from east to west, these two probably could carry the Macks through the series.

"The Cardinals would be a more dangerous opponent for the Athletics than the Cubs because they have better pitching. If a club can't hit, it hardly can expect to win.

"I think the Cubs are stronger than the Athletics at second base, shortstop, center field and right field. Hartnett and Cochrane are a tossup behind the plate and there is little to choose at third base. Jimmy Foxx at first base and Al Simmons, left field, are the big punch in the team's attack. They are two of the most dangerous hitters in baseball. You can't find a weakness in their bats."

The sooner the National league championship is settled the better it will please the Sox manager.

"The fans are not the only ones following the Cubs, Cardinals, Giants and Robins. That's all American league players talk about. I heard so much comment about the Cubs on the White Sox bench yesterday that I told the boys: 'To hell with the National league. Let's take care of our own game.'"

But down in his loop hotel after the game Donie showed what he is thinking about these days when he remarked:

"I sure hope Joe knocks 'em off down east. He's a great fellow."

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Hack Wilson made his 48th home run this afternoon off Dazzy Vance, and Glenn Wright made his 20th homer of the year off Guy Bush. Glenn, however, possessed the good fortune of having Babe Herman on first base as a result of a walk. So Glenn's homer was good for two runs and Hack's for one. And that was the story of the ball game: The Robins beat the Cubs, 2 to 1, to sweep the three game series.

Despite the foregoing depressing set of circumstances, however, there is no reason to say that the Robins were lucky to win, for Vance struck out 13, allowed five hits, and walked none. One of the hits was the rankest of flukes, but it was nice to get, for it gave the Cubs even fives for the three game series.

Tomorrow the Cubs will transfer their activities to Philadelphia. Root will pitch against Willoughby of the Phils.

Ninth Loss in 12 Games.

The loss, which was the ninth in the last dozen starts, reduced the Cubs' pennant lead to half a game. Tomorrow the Cardinals and Robins both can pass the Cubs in the pennant race, providing the Cardinals whip the Giants again, the Robins beat the Reds and the Phillies beat the Cubs. All these contingencies may be classed as high grade probabilities except the one about the Cubs losing to the Phillies. But you can't depend upon anything these days, especially if you remember the scandalous way the Phillies acted the last time they were in Chicago.

Vance took up the pitching chore after three days of playing 'possum. As late as this morning the New York papers advised their customers that 'Dazzy may be out for the year with an injured back." This football camp propaganda did not deceive the Cubs, however, and they came to the park with their hats tied on. There was a feeling in the air that the setting was right for the Dazzler to get revenge for the rude way the Cubs have treated him all year.

Dazzy's revenge was more complete than had been anticipated, for he was in one of his old time strikeout moods, a whimsy he had not displayed to any marked extent anywhere this year.

Who Fanned and When.

He struck out Blair in the first and third innings; Cuyler in the sixth inning, Wilson in the second and fourth innings; Dan Taylor in the fourth, seventh, and ninth innings, the last winding up the ball game; Hartnett in the fifth and seventh innings; Bell in the seventh and Bush in the third and sixth innings. Six of the strikeouts were on called third strikes, Hartnett and Bell going down by this route in the seventh when Kelly loitered on second with the tying run.

Hack's homer, of course, was the only solace the Cubs were able to derive from this latest tragedy. It had some mathematical significance in the record book, though it didn't help the cause of the day.

In the first place, it ended the Cub's chain of scoreless innings at 26. It also made Hack the all time runner-up to Babe Ruth, for it surpassed Lou Gehrig's record of 47 homers. It also added to Hack's new National league record for runs batted in, which now stands at 164, eleven behind the major league record set by Gehrig in 1927.

One Run in Three Games.

The season's play between the Robins and Cubs closed with today's contest, the Cubs winning the season series 14 to 8—faint consolation at this time. The series just closed, perhaps, furnished an all time record for competition between the two clubs in that Wilson's homer was the only run scored by the Cubs in the three game set.

Aside from Wilson, who passed third on his homer, only two Cubs reached third base in the series, the others being English, who got to third on a single, an error and a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning of the first game, and Hartnett, who reached third in the fifth inning of yesterday's game in a walk, a pass to Bell and a double play. Today only two Cubs other than Wilson reached second base. Only seven Cubs, including Wilson and his

SMITH, FARRELL, AND ESPINOSA LOSE IN PRO GOLF

Armour, Sarazen Advance to Semi-Finals.

Flushing, N. Y., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—With the thirteenth annual Professional Golf association championship at the semi-final mark, only one home bred golfer is left in the field, but he happens to be one on whom great dependence can be placed.

When the quarter-final matches had been played at the Fresh Meadow Country club today, Gene Sarazen, victor in the event in 1922 and again in 1923, was the only American born golfer surviving. The other three still in the running for the title surrendered on Wednesday by Leo Diegel are Tommy Armour and Charles Lacey, who learned their game on the other side, one in Scotland and the other England, and Joe Kirkwood, former Australian.

Sarazan Beats Espinosa.

Sarazen defeated Al Espinosa of Chicago, 2 and 1, after trailing the Spanish-American pro from the sixth hole this morning to the second hole in the afternoon, but once he managed to get out in front he never permitted himself to fall behind.

Armour eliminated Johnny Farrell by the same score after allowing the Quaker Ridge star to get off to a four hole lead before their match was far away from its starting point. Having lost five out of the first six holes, Tommy pegged and by playing the last nine holes in par figures not only picked up his losses but forged ahead. He was 2 up at noon, still 2 up with seven holes to play, dropped three holes in succession to be only even with four holes to play and then won the next three.

Lacey Trims Sampson.

Lacey, playing in his first P. G. A. event, put an end to the career of Sampson, the California threat who defeated Diegel on the preceding day. The young Englishman's wildness from the tee permitted Sampson to win three out of the first four holes in the morning and reach the turn with that margin. He was still leading when they adjourned the battle for luncheon, but Lacey, having conquered his wildness in the interim, made a runaway of it in the afternoon by winning 4 and 3.

The best match of the entire day was the one in which Kirkwood blasted the hopes and aspirations of Horton Smith by winning the last two holes and gaining the decision by 1 up. All square when they left the twenty-eighth tee, Smith placed the next five holes in 3 under 4s, which was beautiful golf in the wind that whipped over the course, and yet picked up only one hole. He won the twenty-ninth and thirty-first to be 2 up, but Kirkwood got one back by sending a No. 4 iron a yard from the pin for a birdie 3 on the thirty-second.

Smith Loses on Last Hole.

With the match at this critical juncture, Smith hooked his drive out of bounds on the next to last hole and his second shot into a bunker on the last one to lose by 1 down. He had not been down from the seventh in the morning until that point.

The lineup tomorrow is Sarazen against Kirkwood and Armour against Lacey, with indications pointing to a final between Gene and Tommy Saturday, although it would not be safe to make any positive predictions concerning the outcome of tomorrow's matches.

Stymies played an important part in the outcome of the Sarazen-Espinosa match, the latter being laid numerous ones in the course of the battle. After being down practically all through the morning half, Gene caught Espinosa at the second hole in the afternoon and from then on it was touch and go between them, neither playing particularly good golf on the first nine, where Sarazen stood one up through winning the eighth with a 5.

Al Misses Chances.

Al missed great chances on the No. 8 and No. 9, three-putting the eighth and failing to reach the green on the next one with Sarazen's ball lying in a bunker and the green wide open to him. Gene had every reason to be worried up to that point, but from there on he looked the part of the winner.

Gene jumped to 2 up when Al missed a short putt on the thirtieth hole, laid Espinosa another stymie on the thirty-first, and after losing the next one to Espinosa's birdie 2, halved the next three to clinch the match. Their morning cards were good, 73 to 74, but each one played shaky golf for the first nine holes in the afternoon, Sarazen taking 39 to the turn and Espinosa 41.

Even more spotty was the golf played by Armour and Farrell, especially in the afternoon. Both Tommy and Johnny had a hard time keeping their drives in the fairway and hitting the greens with their second shots. Armour was especially bad on the short holes, failing to hit the green on any one of the four, but despite his opponent's erratic work Farrell was unable to take advantage of the many openings.

Cards Score 5-4 Victory Over Giants right field wall with a single that brought them in.

Further trouble seemed afoot for Wild Bill Hallahan, the St. Louis pitcher then in charge, for Ott got a hit and Bob O'Farrell walked, filling the bases with one man out. But then Jackson fouled out and Roettger raised a fly ball and the best score the Giants saw today was a tie.

The Hallahan boy pitched seven innings, and though he won himself a game of ball, his own pastor wouldn't say he did a neat job of his work. He gave seven hits and walked six batters. He always seemed on the point of heaving the ball over the grandstand and when he went away there was still no telling whether his boss should praise or accuse him.

Still, some of the St. Louis boys say Mr. Hallahan's control was good, for him, today.

"He is much improved this year," a man told me, "and I do believe Mr. Frisch was responsible for the change. Last year Mr. Frisch noticed that he was pitching very deceptive stuff to the Cardinals in batting practice but couldn't get a side out in a game. So Frisch got his confidence one day and discovered that the boy was doing left handed arithmetic with the signals from the catcher.

Subtracts Wrong Number.

"They were using subtraction signs at the time. The catcher would show three fingers and then two fingers and the pitcher was supposed to subtract the smaller number from the greater and that would tell him what ball to throw. But this boy, in his left handed way, was trying to subtract the big number and naturally it didn't leave him any signal at all. So he would just shut his eyes and let his conscience be his guide and throw. They are using plain, one, two and three finger signals with him now and he is learning to count remarkably well."

The Cardinals won on eight hits off four pitchers to ten hits for the Giants, who had 14 runners left on base. Walker lasted four innings for the home champs, and was followed for varying spells of work by Heving, Pruett and a big solid Florida boy with some college letters to his credit named Jim Chaplin. Jim Lindsey pitched the last two innings for St. Louis, and the upshot of the day's affairs on both National league fields in New York was that the Cardinals and Robins both gained another full game on the Cubs.

Brame Pitches as Pirates Defeat Braves, 5 to 2

Boston, Mass., Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates plastered a five to two defeat onto the Braves today in the second game of the series between the teams. The Pirates were led by Brame who pitched a steady game. Bool's double to right field in the second inning landed just too short for Richbourg to get and scored two men. This started the Buccaneers on their way to a victory.

PHILLIES BEAT REDS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 11. — (AP) — The Phillies made it three straight victories over the Cincinnati Reds by winning today, 15 to 7. It was a slugging match from start to finish, the victors blasting out 13 hits while the Reds piled up 14.

Cincinnati took the lead in the second inning by scoring three runs, but the Phillies came back with five in the third and five in the fourth to clinch the verdict. Four home runs featured the slugging match. Hurst had two while Klein and Cuccinello had one apiece.

MASKS PROVIDE FUN AT OLYMPIA ANNUAL FROLIC

The fairways of Olympia Fields took on the appearance of a promenade ground during an intermission in a masked ball when the women members held their frolic yesterday.

The golfers masqueraded in every variety of costume. Each foursome was allowed only one ball and each member of the foursome took turns hitting it with the single club she was allotted.

The most successful team was made up of Mrs. Jess Hennes, Mrs. Lola Banash, Mrs. Alma Harrison, and Mrs. C. E. King. Their score was 107—13—94. Other leaders were:

Mrs. H. W. Tupper, Mrs. W. T. Brown, Mrs. M. W. Jeran, and Mrs. J. Q. Fuller, 107—12—95.

Mrs. L. B. Thompson, Mrs. Ira N. Soper, Mrs. C. T. Fairbanks, and Mrs. J. A. Nelson, 126—31—95.

Robins Sweep Series; Vance Fans 13 Cubs

homer, reached second during the series.

In every game the Robins made enough runs in the first inning to win. Wright's homer today came with two out in the first inning. Yesterday the Robins made five runs in the first inning and in the opener the one run scored in the first inning was enough to win, although the Robins made two more later on.

English Singles on 3d Wave.

Vance started out as if he meant to perform a lot of serious business. He didn't let Blair get near the ball in three lusty swings. English also took two swings in vain, but on his third wave he lined a single into right. It was 21 straight scoreless innings for the Cubs when Cuyler tapped into a double play, Wright to Finn to Bissonette.

For a time it appeared as if Bush was going to be able to do something Malone and Root had failed to do in the two previous contests of the series, namely, shut out the Robins in the first inning. Frederick looped an easy fly to Wilson, and Gilbert bounced gently to Blair. Herman walked. Then Wright stepped up and smacked his homer into the far distant stand in left center, scoring Babe ahead of him. Bissonette singled off Bush's glove, but Hendrick was called out on strikes.

Cuyler's Throw Retires Gilbert.

The Robins went out in order in their second, and the Cubs did likewise in their third. Bell flied to Frederick. Then Bush and Blair were called out on strikes.

Gilbert singled with one out in the third and went to second on a wild pitch. Then he made the mistake of trying to go to third after Cuyler had caught Herman's fly. Ki had no difficulty doubling the Robins' third baseman at third.

Cuyler singled to center with one out in the fourth, but Wilson was called out on strikes. Cuyler stole second. Then D. Taylor fanned.

The Cubs showed some fine defensive play in the fourth. Wright singled past second and went to third when Bissonette doubled off the right field wall. Then Hendrick popped to English. Finn was called out on strikes. Lopez was given an intentional pass, filling the bases, and Vance flied to D. Taylor.

Kelly, Hartnett and Bell went out in order in the fifth, Gabby contributing the first of his strike outs.

Frederick Caught Off First.

Frederick led off the Robin fifth with a single to right center, but was caught off first on a snap throw from Hartnett to Kelly. Gilbert flied to Cuyler and Herman popped to English.

Vance added two more strike outs in the sixth. He fanned Bush and then threw out Blair. English was safe on Dazzy's error, but Cuyler fanned.

Dazzy struck out the side in the seventh. Nevertheless the Cubs broke their scoreless chain, for it was here that Hack led off with his No. 48. D. Taylor followed with a strike out. It appeared as if the the Cubs' luck had changed when Gilbert lost Kelly's pop fly in short left and it fell for a double. But both Hartnett and Bell were called out on strikes.

Lopez led off the Robin seventh with a double, but some swell pitching by Bush held him on base.

The Cubs went out in order in the eighth, although it took some marvelous fielding by Wright to dispose of Pinch Hitter Hornsby, who led off the inning.

Cuyler, Wilson and D. Taylor were easy outs in the final Robin-Cub inning of the year.

Britain's Polo Team Ranks as Best Since '14

New York, Sept. 11.—[Special.]—The finest British polo team since 1914 has met defeat with credit and high courage, and the American record against England since the war stands at eight victories and no defeats. The cup is safe for three more years or for as long as the Hurlingham people care to take in preparation for the new challenge.

But as they turn toward the more informal fun of the open championship that will start Saturday, and later as they start home, the British four of Gerald Balding, Lewis Lacey, Capt. Roark, and Humphrey Guinness can realize that in sixty minutes of playing time at International field yesterday afternoon they gave 38,000 members of the present American polo generation thrills that will not soon be forgotten.

Defeated but Not Beaten.

A defeated team they were as they rode from the field, but a team too good to be called a beaten team. American power, stamina, and balance defeated them, rather than American brilliance, although there was plenty of that, too.

Perhaps no polo match in which five goals separated winner and loser, as five goals did yesterday in America's 14-9 triumph, was ever more brilliantly fought, or more soundly.

With just a bit more power and experience up in front at No. 1, who knows what the result would have been? Balding, much improved over his play of last Saturday, particularly in contact with Guest, was still not too comfortable in his unaccustomed post and still less than the great No. 1 with which a winning international team must invariably be blessed.

"Was Good Show," Says Briton.

"Naturally we are disappointed," said Capt. Charles H. Tremayne today at the army polo center stables as he and Capt. Kingscote observed the condition of the mounts that performed so well. "But we gave a good show, as we had told you we hoped to do."

And it was a great show, dramatic, tense, a battle of brilliant strokes and sound polo as it should be played when the checks and balances of powerful rivals are brought to bear. In the end the American surge that was built on one of Tommy Hitchcock's plus-ten-goal chukkers, with Eric Pedley and Earle Hopping Jr. furnishing the scores, brought victory.

LYONS GOES 12 INNINGS FOR 21ST VICTORY, 4 TO 3

Barnes' Hit Helps White Sox to Beat Red.

Ted Lyons, at least as good a right-hander as there is in the baseball profession, found it necessary to travel past the regulation distance yesterday before being able to catch up with his twenty-first victory of the season. He finally overtook the verdict in the twelfth when a hit popped off the bat of Ruffe Barnes and drove in a run which knocked Boston's Red Sox out of the last game of the series. The tonight at the end was 4 to 3.

Lyons could have avoided a good portion of his day's labor if he hadn't got himself into a jam in the eighth. He reached this point with a 3 to 2 lead, which had been given him by Carl Reynolds' nineteenth homer with a mate on base in the fifth, but three hits promoted a tying run for the ad end delegates from Boston.

Barnes' Hit Scores Watwood.

The thing that started the finish to a pass given by Smith, who had preceded Lisenbee in the eighth. The walk went to Watwood, who led off the twelfth. Reynolds sacrificed him to second and Jolley was purposely walked. Barnes singled between Todt and Regan, and Watwood scored the winning run.

Both teams indulged in a bit of scoring in the first chapter. Oliver opened against Lyons with a single and advanced to third on a two bagger by Scarritt. Regan was thrown out and Webb purposely passed, filling the bases. Oliver ran home on Reeves' long fly to Reynolds. The Chicago ace then countered with a run in their half on a pass to Watwood and singles by Reynolds and Jolley.

The third brought a hostile run that for a time caused Lyons more than a little worry. The inning began with Regan hitting a double to left. Webb scored him by singling to center.

Reynolds Hits Homer.

Boston enjoyed its one run advantage only until Reynolds appeared in the fifth. Watwood doubled to left after two had been set down in this inning. Then Reynolds lined a drive to the right of center field and raced around to the plate.

Pinch hitters were the instigators of the trouble that brought on a tying run for the scarlet hosed performers in the eighth. One was out when Rothrock batted for Warstler. He singled. Durst, batting for Connolly, also singled and Rothrock hiked to third. The next pinch batter was Todt in Lisenbee's place. Lyons batted him. Then Oliver arched a single over third and Rothrock scored.

The Senators will be entertained by Tommy Thomas today. Sam Jones is due to pitch for the visitors.

Gossoon Wins Second Race of Great Lakes Yacht Series

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Gossoon, Detroit R boat and defender of the Richardson cup emblematic of the international championship of the great lakes, won the second race of the series for the trophy, sailed yesterday off Belmont harbor. Atalanta, the Chicago Yacht club's entry for Lake Michigan, which defeated Gossoon in Wednesday's race, was second yesterday, with Spry, the Lake Ontario representative, third.

Gossoon, which flies the burgee of the Bayview Yacht club of Detroit, was home first by a margin of more than eight minutes. Her elapsed time for the twice around windward and leeward course of twelve miles was 2 hours 54 minutes and 7 seconds. Atalanta's time was 3:02:26 and Spry's 3:39:10. The boats will sail the third and final race this afternoon over a triangular course.

Gossoon's victory yesterday enabled her to tie the Atalanta in the point standing, which is now Gossoon 5, Atalanta 5, and Spry 2.

Spry Makes Bad Move.

Yesterday's race lacked the thrill of the battle Wednesday, when the Atalanta, after outmaneuvering the Gossoon three times, was nearly overhauled by the Detroit boat, which lagged by only 35 seconds at the finish. The second race was a two boat affair, for Spry, after changing her course on the first leg, was out of it and finished 45 minutes after the Gossoon.

Quiet water and a light wind from the southeast greeted the boats at the start yesterday. It favored the Gossoon, which built up a reputation at Marblehead, Mass., and Detroit on just such a brand of weather. Skipper Bill Faurot brought Atalanta across the starting line first, followed by Spry and then Gossoon. The Detroit entry soon came about on the starboard tack. Skipper E. Lloyd Kurtzworth then laid her off a trifle, and within half a mile she sailed through the Atalanta's lee.

Gossoon was outfooting Atalanta very noticeably, although not pointing so high. Half way to the first mark Atalanta got headed and came about on the port tack. Gossoon continued on the starboard tack and ran into a freshening breeze. This didn't reach Atalanta for five minutes, allowing Gossoon to double its lead. At the mark it was 5 minutes and 26 seconds ahead. On the first run for home Atalanta cut the Lake Erie boat's margin by a minute, but wasn't close enough to interfere with the leader's wind.

Uses Genoa Jib.

The second trip to the outward mark found Atalanta using a Genoa jib, which helped to cut Gossoon's lead in half. Spry, which was twice damaged in transit to Chicago, had gone off to the south on the first leg, seeking a shift, but got into a pocket and was left badly.

The triangular course over which possession of the trophy will be decided today favors the Atalanta, which is a superior boat for reaching and running. Skipper Kurtzworth of the Gossoon left last night for the international races at Newport, so that Fred Mertz will have the tiller on the defender today.

Government Satisfied with Game Laws

BY BOB BECKER.

Contrary to published rumors, it is unlikely that there will be changes in this year's waterfowl hunting season, according to a wire received last night from Paul Redington, chief of the U. S. biological survey. The survey is the Washington bureau which has the authority to do what it considers advisable under the regulations of the migratory bird act.

Redington's message, which will be of interest to all waterfowl hunters, is as follows:

"Fully cognizant of drought conditions in duck breeding areas. Keeping situation under constant observation but do not at this time contemplate further changes in the migratory bird treaty act regulations to be effective during the coming shooting season owing to imminence of open season."

Inasmuch as this message is straight from Uncle Sam's headquarters it is official and should put to rest all these rumors.

As the regulations now stand, American waterfowl hunters face rather limited shooting this fall. Bag limits on ducks and geese were reduced last spring, making it legal to have only 30 ducks in one's possession.

Here in Illinois 60 was formerly the possession limit. All the shore birds are on the closed list with the exception of jacksnipe. Therefore American gunners must keep away from the yellowlegs, plover and other shore birds. Woodcock hunting is a sport with a limited season only in most states. Moreover, doves, now considered migratory birds, have a limited season in most states and in the middle west are, with the exception of Illinois regulations, practically on the closed list.

In view of this lineup apparently the U. S. biological survey considers further restrictions inadvisable at this time, but we will hazard a long distance guess to the effect that next season may see even more prohibitory regulations on waterfowl hunting than exist this fall.

MRS. HINES GIVES $25 CUP FOR BEST CHILDREN'S DOG

Some of the best bench winning dogs in the east have been entered in the second annual all breed dog show which will be held Sunday by the Shoreline Kennel club at Northbrook. Prize money and cups totaling $2,500 will be awarded to the winners. When the entries closed early in the week more than 500 dogs had been entered. One of the novelties of this year's show will bring a score of boys and girls into the show ring with their pet dogs. Mrs. Edward A. Hines has offered a $25 cup to the youngster showing the winning dog in the children's classes.

TIMING SECRET OF SUCCESSFUL DROP KICKERS

Goal Posts Await Kicks of Tribune Entries.

With the installation of football goal posts in many of the city playgrounds and at the fields provided by the park districts, the contestants entering THE TRIBUNE'S drop kicking and forward passing contests have an opportunity for a week's practice before the seven sectional meets are held on Sept. 30.

While goal posts are not essential to practice, they afford a target. The younger group of boys—14 years of age and under—will drop kick 20 yards from the goal. The boys between the ages of 15 and 19 will add ten yards to this distance. The practice fields used by the public and parochial high schools also are available for practice.

Timing Is the Secret.

The basis of a successful drop kick is timing the ball as it bounces from the ground. This timing can only be gained by continual drill. It is essential also that proper methods be employed. Occasionally a boy will develop ability with a peculiar style which may score repeatedly in practice. Put the same boy behind a line with the defense charging through to hurry him and it's another story.

The kick must be gotten away as quickly as possible, yet if the kick is hurried the rhythm will be broken and a poor kick will result. A drop kick can be performed in four counts. Count "one" when the center snaps the ball; "two" when the kicker receives it; "three" as the ball is dropped to the ground, and "four" as it is kicked.

Entries Close Tuesday.

This timing corresponds to four seconds. However, in THE TRIBUNE'S tests the pass from center is eliminated. Each contestant will be permitted four seconds for each kick.

The operation is speeded up by the kicker bending over reducing the distance the ball must fall to the ground.

The preliminary contests will start at 9 o'clock. They will be held at Bessemer park, Washington park, Douglas park, Mills' stadium, Kelvyn park, DePaul university field and Loyola university field. Entries will be accepted until Tuesday. Clip the blank which is printed daily and mail it at once. The city champions will be THE TRIBUNE'S guests at a college football game.

CHEERS WINS AT SHORT PRICE IN SPRINT AT CRETE

Golden Prince's Stretch Drive Just Fails.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Another old turf idol of not so long ago woke up in the stretch during the running of the Lincolnshire Country club purse at Lincoln Fields yesterday and staged one of the most powerful finishes ever witnessed on any race track. But he came to life too late. He flew up from last place and raced on past eight horses with the determination and the speed of a champion. There was still one horse in front of him and that was the fleet footed Cheers. In another jump Cheers would have been headed, but there wasn't another stride to take before the finish line was reached.

So Cheers, rather mediocre at times and fast in spots, got the decision by half a length over Golden Prince, as fleet as any of them in his time and the winner of one $100,000 Coffroth handicap in Mexico. He was the crippled horse which went west seeking a fortune. He waded in the magic sands of the Pacific, his pains and limps departed, and he became a champion.

Cheers Is Hustled.

Cheers' victory was scored in a hustling way, for he, too, had to come from behind a fierce early pace cut out by Flag Bearer and Harry Payne Whitney's Snooze. But he took the lead at the head of the stretch and pulled away into a two length advantage. At that time Golden Prince was sauntering along with the extreme trailers and hadn't started to run.

Somebody must have yelled real loudly or Golden Prince took a nap and dreamed that he was back on the Pacific coast wading in the magic sands. He began running like a wild horse. Coming on the outside he made the others look like they were standing still. He passed up such fleet fellows as Nusakan, Illegitimate, Lawyer, Dr. Parrish, Zida and Flag Bearer apparently without any effort.

Then he took after the flying Cheers. He gained at every stride. But the distance was a trifle short and he would up second, beaten in one of the gamest races he ever ran. Flag Bearer staggered on to be third. Lawyer showed more stamina than usual and was close up in fourth place.

Cheers Pays $4.76.

Cheers ran his six furlongs in 1:11 4-5. In the mutuels he was backed by nearly everybody in the crowd. He paid $4.76 to win. Golden Prince, despite his fame, was a long shot and if he could have won would have been at nearly 10 to 1. He paid $7.44 to place.

Remember that 100 to 1 shot, Longus, which started in the Kentucky Derby last May. Well, they finally dropped him down among the selling platers yesterday and he got up in the final strides to win at odds of 32 to 1. He skimmed the rail turning for home and saved enough ground to trim the heavily back Ladrone by a neck with Miss Marnie landing third.

It was the first defeat of the Lincoln Fields season that Miss Marnie has suffered, but in all her victories she has been running against the cheapest sort of selling platers. The task of beating a couple of $5,000 horses was too much for her. She led early but dropped back when Longus and Ladrone started fighting it out.

Paris Asks Investigation of Channel Crossings

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, France, Sept. 11.—In commenting on Peggy Duncan's channel swim the newspaper L'Intransigeant urges an unbiased control of future attempts and hints that most of the crossings thus far made have been faked or crooked. It is stated that certain swimmers were towed most of the way across the channel by cork attacked to a bit of wire, and hooked to their suits or caps. Only Gertrude Ederle and George Mitchel honestly swam the channel, the article concludes.

QUESTIONNAIRE IS VICTORIOUS IN TWIN CITY STAKE

Wins Ninth Race in 13 Starts.

New York, Sept. 11.—[Special.]—James Butler's Questionnaire, which ran such a sensational race in the Lawrence Realization last Saturday when he lost to Gallant Fox by a nose, won the Twin City handicap and $3,875 at Belmont park today.

Questionnaire finished the mile and a quarter in 2:02 4-5, equalling the record for the stake and bettering by a fifth of a second the best time his sire, Sting, ever made for a like distance.

Sting has always been Mr. Butler's favorite horse but Questionnaire, by his courage and gameness, bids fair to displace his mighty ancestor in the affections of his master.

Two lengths behind Questionnaire finished Curate, a fine horse and Joseph E. Widener's hope in the Jockey club gold cup race. But Curate's best effort through the stretch could not menace Questionnaire who galloped home an easy winner under 118 pounds. Third went to Dr. Freeland with Hot Toddy and Petee-Wrack completing the field.

Thus far this year Questionnaire has started 13 times. Nine times he has won including the Broadway, Gramatan, Mount Vernon, and Yonkers handicaps, the Mount Kisco stakes, the Empire City Derby, and now the Twin City. He never has been out of the money, finishing second once and third three times.

LOYOLA BACK IS INJURED DURING 1ST SCRIMMAGE

Tommy Howland, outstanding candidate for full back on the Loyola university football squad, suffered a severe shoulder injury in the first scrimmage of the year yesterday and may not be able to practice for two weeks.

With Howland on the sidelines, Doc Norton is left with only one experienced plunger, John Smith. Smith saw considerable action at the position last season. Howland played at right half part of last season's campaign, but was switched over to full this fall, and gave promise of developing into a star performer.

Loyola's first game is with Carroll college two weeks from tonight, and it is improbable that Howland will be able to play.

quit on them. Then all of a sudden things changed.

It may be that when Burleigh Grimes, obtained in a trade from Boston, began to win he put the same idea into the heads of the other pitchers. Most certainly the comeback of Frisch played a big part. Finally Bottomly, who had tumbled to such low estate that his one time loyal followers were deserting him, returned to farm. And then Sparky Adams, passed along by Chicago and Pittsburgh, revealed himself as the man the Cards needed for third base. Adams has his faults, but for the last couple of weeks he hasn't displayed them.

The Cardinals really got serious about themselves on Labor day. Until then there was nothing about them to arouse any particular interest. Late in August they had been ten games out of first place and that is considerable. But Labor day brought a needed alteration.

All season the Pirates, when playing host to the Cards, caused the latter no end of annoyance. The Cards changed that on labor's big holiday. They went to work and whipped the Buccos in a double header. A great load appeared to be lifted from their minds. They went back to St. Louis and celebrated by taking four straight from the Reds, who, incidentally did not win a game all year on the Cards' playing property. That winning streak brought them up to the heels of the Cubs.

Tilden Rules Favorite Over 3 Youngsters

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 11.—(AP)—The old régime in American tennis has not yet fallen. Frank Hunter, 31 year old veteran, was beaten today by Johnny Doeg in the quarter-final round of the national singles tournament, but Bill Tilden at 37 became the favorite to capture the title for the eighth time.

Doeg overcome Hunter in five hard sets, 11-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, and will clash with Champion Tilden in the semi-final round tomorrow.

Young America laid its challenge squarely across the path of the champion when a pair of sensational youngsters, still in their teens, came through to the semi-final round in the other half of the draw.

Frank Shields, New York, played streaky tennis to defeat Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., 5-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1. Sidney Wood, 18 year old star, also from New York, showed a stroke mastery rivalling that of Tilden in eliminating Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, the national intercollegiate champion, 6-4, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

Big Bill as usual will be the favorite when he clashes with Doeg, the same player he defeated in five sets in the semi-finals of last year's tournament, but the Wood-Shields affair is a toss up.

can't distort your blade . . . if it's a PROBAK

THE Probak shock-absorbing blade is built to prevent edge-distortion—to keep its shaving edges as straight, true and keen in the razor as in the package. It does this by means of two patented features—butterfly channeling and duo-tempered steel—which absorb all bending shock and strain.

The scientifically-shaped perforations in the Probak blade are carefully designed to disperse the bending pressure—to provide channels for its escape. Special steel in the middle of the blade absorbs what little strain is left. No distortion ever reaches the highly tempered shaving edges.

Buy a package of guaranteed Probaks today. Use two in your double-edge razor (old or new model). Shave with a butterfly touch. Probak glides over your face—wipes off every wiry hair. BROKERS' LOANS LEND COLOR TO RECENT CLAIMS

Rise Bears Out Bull Market Views.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Recent claims of stock market optimists that a "creeping bull market" is in progress received some support yesterday from the federal reserve board's weekly report on brokers' loans. It showed an increase of $21,000,000 in the last week, marking the second consecutive increase and also the largest expansion since the middle of July. But the current total of $3,143,000,000 is still less than half the amount of a year ago, the exact decline being $3,331,000,000.

The interior banks were entirely responsible for the current increase in brokers' loans. With the Sept. 1 demand for credit for commercial settlements passed, the country banks returned their idle funds to the New York call money market despite the low rate of 2½ per cent prevailing for call loans. They increased their loans by $150,000,000, although they still are lending $1,071,000,000 less than a year ago.

This influx of country funds enabled the New York banks to reduce their own loans to brokers by $107,000,000 but they are lending $597,000,000 more than a year ago. Non-banking lenders, including corporations, also reduced their loans by $9,000,000 and now are furnishing $2,857,000,000 less than a year ago.

Slack Credit Demand.

With business still in the summer doldrums, the slack demand for credit for commercial purposes also was emphasized in the weekly statement of the federal reserve system. It showed a decline of $48,065,000 in member bank borrowings, bringing this item down to $183,195,000. However, this shrinkage in outstanding credit was partly offset by the action of the reserve banks in purchasing an additional $22,725,000 of bankers' acceptances. Their holdings of government securities showed little change.

The slack demand for currency also brought a decline of $16,369,000 in note circulation. Deposits expanded $22,-[illegible],000. Gold and total reserves increased $25,012,000 and $26,252,000 respectively and the ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 81.3 per cent, compared with 80.8 per cent last week.

The spread of easy money rates throughout the month was evidenced in the action of the Minneapolis reserve bank in reducing its rediscount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent, the latter being the lowest rate in its history of 16 years. The New York reserve bank made no change in its 2½ per cent rate. The report of the New York reserve bank showed a decline of $37,453,000 in member bank borrowings, which now total $26,122,000. The New York City banks repaid their borrowings of $36,000,000 from the reserve institution. The reserve bank increased its holdings of bankers' acceptances by $1,919,000, but made little change in government securities. Deposits expanded $23,620,000. Reserves increased $56,815,000 and the reserve ratio rose to 85.2 per cent, compared with 81.5 per cent a week ago.

Chicago Statement.

The statement of the Chicago reserve bank showed a decline of $2,714,-[illegible] in member bank borrowings, bringing this item down to $13,048,000. Holdings of bankers' acceptances expanded $6,049,000, but government securities remained about stationary. Deposits receded $1,906,000. Reserves declined $13,742,000, and the reserve ratio fell to 84.2 per cent, compared with 86 per cent last week.

The international movement of gold in the last week resulted in a slight net loss to the United States. Exports to Canada totaled $3,000,000 in the week ended last Wednesday and an additional $1,000 000 was shipped yesterday. On the other hand, there were gold imports totaling $2,394,000 from South America, while there was no change in stocks of gold earmarked for foreign account.

NATION'S JULY TRADE HEAVIEST WITH CANADA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Canada led the world in foreign trade with the United States in July. The commerce department announced today that United States exports to Canada for that month were $55,058,-[illegible] compared with $79,569,037 for July, 1929. Imports from Canada were $30,-[illegible],316 against $44,101,233.

The United Kingdom was second in exports and third in imports, with Japan taking second place in imports. Figures for grand divisions of the world were announced as follows:

Heavy Construction Shows Decline During Week

McGraw-Hill Construction Daily reports that activity tapered off in heavy construction throughout the country during the last week. Proposed projects of all classes, except highways, aggregated $56,043,000, against $62,-[illegible],000 in the previous week and $64,-[illegible],000 in the like week of 1929. Railway improvements accounted for $21,-[illegible],000 of the week's total, of which a $13,000,000 extension by the Texas and Pacific to its lines between Big Springs and Amarillo, Tex., was the largest.

Appraises Conservatism of Federal Land Bank

BY SCRUTATOR.

Farmers as financiers might be taken as a text and the June 30 statement of the federal land banks is used to support the belief that they are good ones. It might even be hinted that the agriculturist, when responsibility is thrust on him in finance, is more successful than some other agencies that are assuming the whole burden of thinking out his pecuniary problems.

There are twelve federal land banks, originally financed by stock purchased by the government. The federal investment has almost all been absorbed by national farm loan associations. Since 1917 the system has been in existence and now has outstanding total loans of $1,194,000,000. Each bank is primarily responsible for its own fate, including the payment of the bonds which it sells to obtain funds for long term loans on land, but under certain circumstances the entire resources of the system are available to guarantee the bondholder.

In spite of the deflation that farm lands have undergone in the last ten years, the statement of the banks shows that the security behind the bonds — $1,179,000,000 — is still ample. Neither the early slump in land prices nor the recent break in farm commodities, aggravated by unfavorable weather, had proved in any sense disastrous to the system as a whole up to July 1.

What Last Report Shows.

This last report showed that the principal amount of the loans on which the delay in payment was more than ninety days was thirty-seven million dollars, and that the actual amount of payment overdue for ninety days was $2,717,000. The banks have on their hands real estate representing loans of $11,500,000, but which was originally appraised at thirty-nine millions.

The system has apparently been able in the last year to market an increased amount of the real estate acquired by foreclosure. In 1929 it sold more than two-thirds of $12,600,000 of such acquisitions. In 1928, when the foreclosures were larger, and in 1926 and 1927, it did not sell half the land it took in.

One reason why the values of the lands have in general remained above the loans on them is that comparatively little lending was done in 1920 and in early 1921, when land values were most inflated. In percentage of the loans outstanding at the start of 1930, only 2.9 were made in 1920 and 4.1 in 1921.

Average Loan Is $3,222.

Other statistical information, furnished by the investment houses that first offered federal land bank bonds to the public indicates that the average loan on a farm has been $3,222 and that the average lending per acre was originally $17.10 on an appraisal of $46.85. The average loan has been reduced by amortization payments to $15.54 an acre.

The point made here is that appraisals so conservative were largely the work of farm borrowers themselves. The loans were not made on the signature of the individual farmer himself. With rare exceptions each was indorsed by a national farm loan association. Five per cent of each loan was used as a guaranty fund, the borrowers becoming stockholders and facing double liability.

Appraisals were first made by the national association groups and then approved by one appointed by the federal farm loan board. Joint stock land banks appraised their loaning collateral and also were looked over by government appraisers. Some of the joint stock institutions grossly overestimated values; others that were ably managed did not. None of them had, as did the federal land banks, committees of farmers knowing their neighbors' lands and making up from their own pockets the mistakes in appraisals.

So the federal land bank bonds are selling at fairly good levels while some of the joint stock issues are distressingly low.

WRIT PREVENTING OIL PRORATION IS DISSOLVED

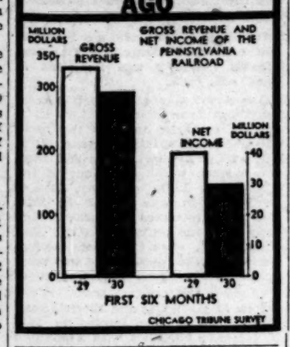
Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Oklahoma Supreme court today dissolved the temporary writ of prohibition that for more than two weeks has prevented the state corporation commission from enforcing its oil proration regulations against the C. C. Julian Oil and Royalty company.

The court did not pass finally on the Julian company's petition to have declared invalid the statutes under which the corporation commission has assumed judisdiction over Oklahoma oil operators. The bare fact that the writ had been vacated was the only announcement by the court.

General Motors Reports Gain in Stockholders

New York, Sept. 11.—(AP)—General Motors corporation reports that its common and preferred stockholders of record for the third quarter rose to the unprecedented total of 249,175, of which 19,644 were holders of the senior issues. The number of stockholders has increased steadily since the stock was split up two years ago. From the second to the third quarter the increase was 5,747. From the third quarter a year ago the increase was 109,062. Increases in the number of stockholders is interpreted in Wall street as indicating the passage of stock from brokerage accounts to investors' strong boxes.

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD NET INCOME FOR SIX MONTHS IS ONE QUARTER LESS THAN YEAR AGO



PROPOSE RATE CUTS ON EXPORT COAL TO MEET COMPETITION

Washington, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Reduction of freight rates on export coal so United States operators could better meet foreign competition was proposed today to the interstate commerce commission as a means of increasing exports and providing employment for thousands of men now idle.

The proposals were made in testimony and arguments at a hearing on complaints of Pennsylvania coal producer associations and traffic bureau that rates on bituminous coal from Pennsylvania and northern West Virginia eastward for seaboard and export consumption were out of line with rates on other commodities.

Arthur Hale, general counsel for the Coal Export association, called the commission's attention to a rate of 16 cents per hundred pounds recently granted shippers of export grain.

"If that rate should be applied to coal," he said, "it would provide an average reduction of $1 a ton in freight rates, would increase the exportable total to ten million tons a year and would provide employment for 10,000 miners and 10,000 railroad employés."

W. T. Coe of New York, distribution director for a large coal company, testified the price of British coal at British ports was ten to thirty cents a ton higher than before the world war, while American coal at American ports had risen $1.55 to $1.85 a ton. This created a differential of approximately $1 to $2 a ton, he said, which was hard to meet in South American and Mediterranean markets.

Coe said all of the added cost of coal above one dollar a ton was accounted for by railroad rates. A 75 cent a ton reduction in rates, he said, would increase exports five million tons a year.

Milwaukee Road Pays Only 1½% on Adjustment Bonds

New York, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad has declared an interest payment of only 1½ per cent on the adjustment bonds, in lieu of the 2½ per cent payment due Oct. 1, for the six month period ended June 30.

The 5 per cent adjustment mortgage bonds were issued in connection with the reorganization of the railroad, which became effective Jan. 12, 1928. A total of 2 per cent was paid on the bonds before the road was taken out of receivership, 2 per cent was paid in 1928 following the lifting of the receivership, 5 per cent was paid in 1929, and 2½ per cent was paid April 1 last, covering the six months period ended Dec. 31 last. These payments covered all interest accruals to the beginning of this year.

The bonds became cumulative at the 5 per cent annual rate at the beginning of this year. A total of $182,-873,693 of the bonds is outstanding, on which the interest requirements at the 5 per cent annual rate total $9,-143,684.

Preliminary estimates of the road's August operations place net operating income at approximately $3,057,000, a decrease of $367,000 from $3,424,000 for August last year. H. S. Scandrett, president, said gross revenues of the road so far this month are not running as far behind last year as they did in July and August.

"I am hopeful there will be a general pickup in general business in the fall months," he added. "Grain is moving in about the same volume on the St. Paul as at this time a year ago.

Dividend Omissions, Cuts.

"A saving in maintenance of way and maintenance of equipment expenditures was the biggest factor in the improved net operating income showing of the St. Paul in August as compared with the preceding months this year."

Dividend omissions and reductions continued yesterday. Directors of Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper company omitted the quarterly dividend due at this time. Three months ago a dividend of 50 cents a share was declared, against $1 six months ago and $1.50 nine months ago.

Directors of Continental Diamond Fiber company, who three months ago reduced the quarterly payment from 75 cents to 50 cents, yesterday cut the payment to 25 cents.

Directors of the Air Way Electric Appliance corporation declared a dividend of 31¼ cents a share on the common. A quarterly payment of 62½ cents a share was formerly paid.

General Water Works and Electric declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the class A common stock. Stockholders have the option of applying this dividend to the purchase of additional stock at $20 a share.

Darby Petroleum.

Darby Petroleum corporation declared a dividend of 25 cents a share. A dividend of 50 cents a share was paid three months ago.

Marlin-Rockwell directors declared the usual extra dividend of 50 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly payment of like amount.

Directors of Columbia Graphophone, Ltd., voted a dividend of 57 cents a share on the American shares. A year ago a dividend of 58 cents a share was paid.

An extra dividend of 10 cents a share was declared by Will & Baumer Candle company on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of like amount.

UTILITIES AND INDUSTRIALS UP IN BOND MARKET

New York, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Utility and industrial bonds were the favorites in today's market, and the average price of ten representative issues in each group went to a new high. Rails held quiet and firm, featured by the St. Paul adjustment 5s and by the strength of several other secondary obligations.

Apparently because of the competition afforded by large new offerings, trading in listed bonds declined rather sharply from yesterday's volume, but the market's ability to make progress despite the counter attraction of several new utility loans and one railroad flotation was taken as an encouraging sign.

Foreign obligations continued irregular. Argentines scored fair advances, but Buenos Aires 6s of 1961 broke more than 2 points.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 11.—The stock market had the hookworm today. It couldn't seem to stir up enough energy to get started anywhere. Diagnosticians opined it was probably getting rested up from its recent feat in topping the peak prices recorded in July.

At any rate, it just sprawled about, with prices moving lazily in small grooves, and no single group showing any marked disposition to strike out strongly in either direction. The close found the pivotals showing losses of from a fraction to a point or so on the day and the rest of the list irregular. Bears had a shade the better of the argument. Volume slumped to around 1,738,640 shares.

By all the standards of the past it was a fine day for a bear rampage, but they have not been able to realize anything more substantial than a flock of headaches from their selling drives here of late.

Radio Supplies Activity.

There was no worthwhile feature to the day's doings, but Radio came about as near as anything to qualifying for honorable mention under this head.

The sometime big leader threatened for a time indeed to get real rambunctious. Its turnover for the earlier part of the session was the largest of any stock on the list and the price was pegged up about a point, which is a good gain for Radio in these trying times. But the effort was too exerting and it fell back and back until at the finish it was bearing a fractional loss on the day.

Shorts in Southern railway lost their faith for a time around midday, coincident with the announcement that the directors of the road had ordered the usual $2 quarterly dividend due about this time. The stock enjoyed a brisk advance immediately following the news, spurting to the Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 2,000 cattle, 14,000 hogs, and 13,000 sheep.

Another bulge in the market for yearling steers yesterday carried the peak price to $13.10, highest since last June. Fancy 990 lb yearlings brought the top, while $13 was paid for more than 200 head averaging 917 @1,026 lbs. Baby beef heifers averaging 772 lbs reached $12.90 in the scramble for lightweight stock of good 1,406 lb steers. Light common steers ranged downward to $6.50. Cows and heifers sold mostly steady. Calves were firm. Stockers and feeders held steady.

Hog Futures Uneven.

September hog contracts declined 25c at the close yesterday, while winter contracts sold steady to 10c lower, all months finishing at the low point of the day. Mediums for this month's delivery opened at $10.85, but declined to $10.55, this price comparing with $11.80 yesterday.

October light sold at $9.50. December light brought $9.00, and January light $9.15. Medium for next December delivery opened at $9.15, but lowered to $9.10 at the close, while January mediums and heavy sold at $9.30. Mediums for today's delivery were bid $11.10 on the "to arrive" market.

Hog receipts were small again, but with shipping demand below normal, additional price cuts of 10@25c were enforced by local packers soon after a steady to slightly lower opening. The extreme top and general average price came down 20c at $11.10 and $10.80 respectively. Larger houses bought freely on the break, Armour, Swift, and Wilson handling a combined total of about 11,000, including 4,700 direct from other points. About 5,000 were left at the close, the low point of the day. Outsiders bought only 1,500 head.

Sheep Receipts Large.

Lamb prices held firm in face of increasing receipts yesterday. Natives sold largely at $8.75@9.00, with city butchers taking top kinds at $9.35 @9.40. Westerns sold at $9.25 and below. Aged sheep and yearlings were about in line with the general selling the previous day. Feeding lambs were not as plentiful and sold steady.

Sheep receipts at Chicago this week are the largest since Oct. 28. Arrivals during the first four days of 114,700 compare with 95,211 a year ago and with 111,390 two years ago.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 14,000 hogs and 13,000 sheep, against 2,407 cattle, 13,929 hogs and 21,934 sheep on the previous Friday and 2,122 cattle, 15,913 hogs and 17,368 sheep a year ago.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was steadier today with prices one point higher at 3.14c. A sale of 52,000 bags of Cuban was made at this level for September shipment. The inactivity in the spot market seemed to restrict trading in raw futures and price changes were narrow and unimportant with the close net unchanged to 1 point higher. Approximate sales were only 12,000 tons. Prices follow:

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Cotton goods were firm today, with some moderate trading in standard print cloths. Fine goods were in better demand with staple cottons and the rayon fancies holding. Raw silks were firm, with some buying under market views. Burlaps were quiet and easier.

best levels in weeks and registering a gain of some two points at the top. The flurry was short lived, however, and this stock, like Radio, melted down below the equator before the closing gong could come to its rescue.

Coppers Are Hit.

Passing of the Calumet and Hecla dividend hit the coppers in the midriff and sent them down in a pile. Net losses ranged from a fraction to nearly 2 points among the more active issues. Reports from the trade indicate the domestic buying of the red metal has been somewhat better of late, but most of the contracts called for a price of 10¾ cents a pound. The buying was mostly from the custom smelters, it was said, as the producers are holding out for 11 cents.

Mercantile shares continued in favor and most of them, including Associated Dry Goods, Atlas Stores, Macy, Bloomingdales, and Dominion Stores, ruled higher for the most part.

"Weak sisters" of the list included Allied Chemical and Dye, Brooklyn Union Gas, Case Threshing Machine, Eastman Kodak, Western Union, Westinghouse, International Business Machine, and International Harvester.

Money showed a further tendency toward ease as funds began to gather here in anticipation of payments for the new treasury issue and settlement of income taxes. While the official rate held stubbornly at 2½ per cent, accommodations were to be had on the outside as low as 1¾ per cent.

GOV'T REPORTS LEAVE WHEAT TRADE BEARISH

Close Shows Net Losses of 1½@1⅝ Cents.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A bearish construction was placed yesterday on the American and Canadian crop estimates on wheat by the foreign and domestic trade and a wave of selling early carried the Chicago market off 2@2¾c from Wednesday's finish to a new low on the crop for the December, March and May, the former touching 86¼c. Buying by commission houses on scale orders and holders of bids absorbed the offerings on the break, and a fair rally came toward the last. The finish was at net losses of 1¼@1⅝c with September at 87½@87¾c; and May at 94@94¼c.

There was fairly persistent selling of wheat futures from the start but the source could not be traced, while commission houses appeared to have orders to take the December on every ¼c decline. The selling was mainly in the March delivery. Winnipeg was 1¾@1½c lower for the day, while Liverpool futures sold at a new low on the crop on all futures, and finished 1⅝@2d lower, the latter on March. American interests were reported as selling in the latter market, and scattered liquidation developed on the way down.

Hedging Pressure at Winnipeg.

Trade sentiment is decidedly mixed, and messages from Winnipeg claimed that had it not been for the persistent hedging sales credited to the pool the wheat market there might have done much better, as it showed stubborn resistence to pressure. There was an absence, however, of aggressive foreign demand for North American wheat, although a better inquiry was claimed at the seaboard toward the close.

Fears of famine in the large cities in Russia were expressed in cables, and the soviet government was said to be experiencing considerable difficulty in securing grain in the interior. At the same time numerous charters have been made for deferred shipment.

As pit observers see it, a lack of sufficient speculative buying to offset the persistent hedging pressure is largely responsible for the refusal of the wheat market to make any appreciable response to bullish news. The market reacts from bulges as soon as the technical position has been weakened. Canadian wheat continues to move to market in volume, deliveries at interior points Wednesday in the three provinces being 5,535,000 bu, and since Aug. 1 around 93,000,000 bu has left farmers' hands, or over one third of the total crop.

Corn Market Declines.

Tired longs who had anticipated a bullish government crop report on corn were free sellers of that grain, with some pressure from the local element and commission houses. Prices dropped 2@2¾c before aggressive buying developed. Around 90c for December resting orders in the hands of commission houses checked the break and later there was buying by local bulls. Final trades were at net losses of 1⅝@1¾c with September at 95¼c; December, 90⅝@90¾c; and May at 94¼@94¾c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat prices are down to a level where a more two sided market is expected for the next few days. There is more disposition to take the buying side on breaks. Several of the large operators are buying wheat and selling corn, expressing themselves as believing that wheat is too low and corn is too high, wheat being likely to receive help ultimately from increased consumption, while corn, it is believed will suffer the reverse owing to other feeds being relatively cheaper than corn.

A majority of the wheat traders intimate that they see nothing to warrant purchases for more than a small turn, despite the fact that the milling trade is taking fair quantities at good premiums for the cash grain. They are awaiting a falling off in the marketing movement in western Canada, which is around record volume, and until there is evidence that the peak has been passed they look for only a trading market.

BREAK IN COTTON

Trading in cotton at the start was fairly active yesterday, but buyers were soon satisfied and despite the gain of 1 to 2 points in Liverpool, with spot sales of 4,000 bales, hedge and short sales were sufficient to carry prices down and eventually make a close around the inside.

At the close futures in Chicago were 13 to 21 points lower, with other markets off 15 to 23 points, mostly 15 to 19 points. Spots lost 20 points in New York to 11.30c, 15 points in New Orleans to 10.85c, while Galveston and Houston were 11.05c.

Exports of yarns in August, as reported by the British Board of Trade, were 10,000,000 lbs, against 15,100,000 lbs last year and 16,000,000 lbs in 1928. Of cloths they were 163,000,000 yards, compared with 321,000,000 last year, and 341,000,000 yards two years ago. Prices follow:

Nebraska Makes the Best Showing in Corn Belt

A feature of the government report is that of Nebraska, which has come to the front as a corn state in the last few years, and has 226,000,000 bu, or a little more than Illinois, a gain of 32,000,000 bu last month, and a loss of only 12,000,000 bu from last year, making the best relative showing as compared with recent years, of any of the big corn states.

A corn crop of 1,453,000,000 bu is estimated for the eleven large corn states, as compared with 1,592,000,000 bu in August and 1,868,000,000 bu as the final returns in 1929. The five years' average production is 1,931,000,000 bu, or only 52,000,000 bu less than the total production for the country this year.

Practically all the increase in the spring wheat during August was in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana, where the crop aggregates 126,000,000 bu, an increase of 11,000,000 bu last month and 25,000,000 bu as compared with last year with a gain of 3,000,000 bu over the five year average.

EXTEND EXCHANGE DATE.

Directors of the St. Lawrence corporation have extended until Oct. 9 the date for exchange of shares of Brompton St. Lawrence Paper & Lake St. John shares into those of the St. Lawrence corporation.

Columbia Carbon Plans Capital Stock Increase

New York, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The prospect of another stock splitup was seen by Wall street late today in an announcement by the New York Stock exchange that it had received notice of a proposed increase in the authorized capital stock of the Columbian Carbon company from 500,000 shares to 2,000,000 shares. The company now has outstanding, however, 498,505 shares, or practically all of the authorized, so the increase may be merely to allow for future plans and developments.

PREFERRED DIVIDENDS

U. S. Radio and Noblitt Sparks Features.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

An easier trend was evident in stock prices on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The shares which are customarily looked to for market leadership displayed a heavy tone, but a few of the less prominent issues pushed forward for creditable gains.

Of the latter, U. S. Radio and Noblitt Sparks were outstanding. Benefited marketwise by the favorable earnings, U. S. Radio advanced to a new high for the year at 30¾, which represented a net gain of 2½ over the previous close.

Noblitt garnered two points, reflecting the earnings statement issued by President Q. G. Noblitt. The company reported net earnings after all charges for August of $84,510, equivalent to $1.08 a share on the 78,326 shares outstanding, as compared with profit of $64,129, or $1.07 a share in August, 1929. Eight months earnings amounted to $293,179, or $3.74 a share, against $134,213, or $4.29 a share in the corresponding 1929 period.

Attract Attention.

Considerable interest attended the continued heavy trading in Chicago corporation. Both the preferred and common shares made slight gains, as did the Continental Chicago issues. The buying in the preferred issues of both firms is reported to be of good caliber. The activity of the stocks would seem to lend plausibility to rumors of consolidation. Such a merger may not be imminent, but has been discussed informally, according to persons in touch with affairs of both companies. According to the best available information there is little likelihood of such a development in the immediate future.

Grigsby-Grunow slipped back to 11¼, only a fraction above its low for the year. Partial recovery was made in later dealings after more than 18,000 shares changed hands. It was the most active day for Grigsby in some time.

Such issues as Majestic, Auburn, Bendix, Middle West Utilities and Insull finished the day with moderate losses.

Dividend Reductions.

Further reflection of the unfavorable reaction was shown yesterday in dividend action taken by the Ross Gear and Tool company and the Van Sicklen corporation.

Ross Gear directors reduced the annual dividend rate from $3 to $2 by the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 20 cents.

The quarterly payment on the class A shares of the Van Sicklen corporation was omitted. On July the company paid a dividend of 25 cents and in the previous quarter a distribution of 50 cents a share was made.

Announcement was also made yesterday by the Van Sicklen company that it had entered into the production of radio equipment for motor cars. It was explained that conservation of resources to further production plans led to the dividend omission.

CHICAGO BOARD of TRADE STOCKS

The market was slow and volume reduced yesterday. The largest trade was in Noranda Mines which closed ¼ lower. Allied Mills announced that regular quarterly dividend of 15c would be deferred. The stock closed ½ lower. Announcement also was made that the regular dividends on Square D issues "A" and "B" will be paid Sept. 20 to stockholders of record Sept. 20. The announcement failed to attract buyers and the issue closed ½ net lower.

"The Sweetest Story Ever Told"

From a Chicago Tribune Advertisement of September

THIRTY years ago — 1900! Good-bye to the Naughty Nineties. . . . It takes ten yards to make a dress . . . cotton stockings and wasp waists. . . . "A Bicycle Built for Two" . . . Elocution . . . the Chicago Tribune reaching 84,187 families daily and 179,144 on Sunday. . . .

Twenty years ago—1910! We hear more and more about the business girl and votes for women . . . tailored suits and Merry Widow hats . . . "The Chocolate Soldier" . . . the Chicago Tribune now reaches 173,828 families daily and 341,096 on Sunday . . . women read the Tribune because it tells about the things which are most interesting to them . . .

Ten years ago—1920! Good-bye to corsets . . . short skirts and bobbed hair the major topic of conversation . . . "Dardanella" . . . It's the Toddle when you dance . . . the Chicago Tribune reaching 454,153 families daily and 718,510 on Sunday . . . the dominant style medium of the Chicago territory. . . .

To every woman of every generation, there's a story you can't repeat too often. It never wears out. It's always good.

"My! How stunning you look!"

It doesn't matter how you phrase it. When you convey this idea, she's hearing the sweetest story ever told.

She must like to hear it or she wouldn't go to all the fuss and bother she does to deserve it.

But Chicago women for years have simplified this problem of maintaining the mode. Almost as a body, they have turned to one authoritative source for style news—the Chicago Tribune. Here they find by far the most complete showing of clothing offerings to be found among Chicago newspapers. Here they can choose and be right in their choice. For here is paraded, day after day, practically everything that is new, fashionable, smart.

The figures prove it: During the first eight months of this year, the Chicago Tribune carried 363,000 MORE lines of women's clothing advertising than any other Chicago newspaper. And more women than ever must be reading—and heeding—this style information. The following figures indicate that. Tribune total average circulation, August, 1930: 827,357 daily; 1,028,337 Sunday!

To women: Your guide to fashions for Fall of 1930 is the Chicago Tribune.

The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS.

Mr. Clement is the vicar of a country village in England. His attractive wife, Griselda, is nearly twenty years his junior. The vicar's young nephew, Dennis, lives with them.

Col. Protheroe, a pompous parishioner, who makes life miserable for his daughter, Lettice, and his second wife, is expected at the vicarage at 6:15 one evening. At 5:30 the vicar is called to visit a dying parishioner and leaves word for the colonel that he will be back. On returning at 7 the vicar meets Lawrence Redding, an artist, who is living in a studio on the vicarage grounds, coming out of the house in an agitated state. The day before the vicar had discovered the artist and Mrs. Protheroe in each other's arms, and they had confessed to him their love for each other. In his study the vicar finds the colonel sprawled across the desk, shot through the head, murdered apparently, as no weapon is found. Dr. Haydock is sent for and he says Protheroe has been dead half an hour and calls the police. A note which the colonel started to write to the vicar is headed 6:20. A clock, overturned when the colonel fell forward, stopped at 6:22, but it was always kept fifteen minutes fast.

Lawrence Redding confesses he murdered Col. Protheroe. Shortly after Mrs. Protheroe tells Col. Melchett, the chief constable of the county, that she shot her husband. Miss Marple, whose house adjoins the vicarage, saw Anne Protheroe going to the vicarage about 6:15. From there she went to the studio. She carried no hand bag and had no place to conceal a weapon. Redding came along shortly after and joined her at the studio. They came out about twenty minutes later and walked toward the village. Lawrence and Anne admit they had confessed the crime, thinking the other had committed it. Lawrence said he had come back to see the vicar after leaving Anne and found his pistol lying on the floor beside Col. Protheroe and thought Anne must have taken it.

Three people heard a shot, which they thought came from the woods, the evening of the murder—the vicar's maid, Miss Marple, and Mrs. Price Ridley, who lives near the vicarage.

Dr. Haydock tells the vicar that his young curate, Hawes, had sleeping sickness a year ago, a strange disease that may change one's whole character after it.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

NEW TRUTHS.

I looked at the doctor curiously.

"I've never heard you speak like this before."

"I don't usually air my theories abroad. Today I'm riding my hobby. You're an intelligent man, Clement, which is more than some parsons are. You won't admit, I daresay, that there's no such thing as what is technically termed 'sin,' but you're broad minded enough to consider the possibility."

"It strikes at the root of all our accepted ideas," I said.

"Yes, we're a narrow minded, self-righteous lot, only too keen to judge matters we know nothing about. I honestly believe crime is a case for the doctor, not the policeman and not the parson. In the future, perhaps, there won't be any such thing.

"You'll have cured it?"

"We'll have cured it. Rather a wonderful thought. Have you ever studied the statistics of crime? No—very few people have. I have, though. You'd be amazed at the amount there is of adolescent crime—glands again, you see. Young Neil, the Oxfordshire murderer—killed five little girls before he was suspected. Nice lad—never given any trouble of any kind. Lily Rose, the little Cornish girl—killed her uncle because he docked her of sweets. Hit him when he was asleep, with a coal hammer. Went home and a fortnight later killed her elder sister who had annoyed her about some trifling matter. Neither of them hanged, of course. Sent to a home. May be all right later—may not. Doubt if the girl will. The only thing she cares about is seeing the pigs killed. Do you know when suicide is commonest? Fifteen to 16 years of age. From self-murder to murder of some one else isn't a very long step. But it's not a moral lack—it's a physical one."

"Uncle Len," said my nephew, "why were you so ratty with me this morning for joking about your wishing Col. Protheroe to be murdered?"

"What you say is terrible!"

"No—it's only new to you. New truths have to be faced. One's ideas adjusted. But sometimes it makes life difficult."

He sat there frowning, yet with a strange look of weariness.

"Haydock," I said, "if you suspected—if you knew—that a certain person was a murderer, would you give that person up to the law, or would you be tempted to shield him?"

I was quite unprepared for the effect of my question. He turned on me angrily and suspiciously.

"What makes you say that, Clement? What's in your mind?"

"Why, nothing particular," I said, rather taken aback. "Only—well, murder is in our minds just now. If by chance you happened to discover the truth—I wondered how you would feel about it, that was all."

His anger died down. He stared once more straight ahead of him, like a man trying to read the answer to a riddle that perplexes him.

"If I suspected—if I knew—I should do my duty, Clement. At least I hope so."

"The question is—which way would you consider your duty lay?"

He looked at me with inscrutable eyes.

"That question comes to every man some time in his life, I suppose, Clement. And every man has to decide it in his own way."

"You don't know?"

"No, I don't know . . ."

I felt the best thing was to change the subject.

"That nephew of mine is enjoying this case thoroughly," I said. "Spends his entire time looking for footprints and cigaret ash."

Haydock smiled and said, "What age is he?"

"Just 16. You don't take tragedies seriously at that age. It's all Sherlock Holmes and Arsène Lupin to you."

Haydock said theughtfully:

"He's a fine looking boy. What are you going to do with him?"

"I can't afford a university education, I'm afraid. The boy himself wants to go into the merchant service. He failed for the navy."

"Well—it's a hard life—but he might do worse. Yes, he might do worse."

"I must be going," I exclaimed, catching sight of the clock. "I'm nearly half an hour late for lunch."

My family was just sitting down when I arrived. They demanded a full account of the morning's activities, which I gave them.

Dennis, however, was highly entertained by the history of Mrs. Price Ridley's telephone call, and went into fits of laughter as I enlarged upon the nervous shock her system had sustained and the necessity for reviving her with damson gin.

"Serve the old cat right," he exclaimed. "She's got the worst tongue in the place. I wish I'd thought of ringing her up and giving her a fright. Say, Uncle Len, what about giving her a second dose."

I hastily begged him to do nothing of the sort. Nothing is more dangerous than the well meant efforts of the younger generation to assist you and show their sympathy.

Dennis' mood changed suddenly. He frowned and put on his man of the world air.

"I've been with Lettice most of the morning," he said. "You know, Griselda, she's really very worried. She doesn't want to show it, but she is."

"I should hope so," said Griselda with a toss of her head.

Griselda was silent, and so was I. Dennis continued:

Griselda was silent, and so was I. Dennis continued.

"She doesn't talk to most people, but she does talk to me. She's awfully worried about the whole thing, and she thinks something ought to be done."

"She will find," I said, "that Inspector Slack shares her opinion. He is going up to Old Hall this afternoon and will probably make the life of everybody there quite unbearable in his efforts to get at the truth."

"What do you think is the truth, Len?" asked my wife suddenly.

"It's hard to say, my dear. I can't say that at the moment I've any idea at all."

"Did you say that Inspector Slack was going to trace that telephone call—the one that took you to the Abbotts?"

"Yes."

"But can he do it? Isn't it a very difficult thing to do?"

"I should not imagine so. The exchange will have a record of the calls."

"Oh." My wife relapsed into thought.

"Uncle Len," said my nephew. "Why were you so ratty with me this morning for joking about your wishing Col. Protheroe to be murdered?"

"Because," I said, "there is a time for everything. Inspector Slack has a sense of humor. He took your words quite seriously, will probably cross-examine Mary, and will get out a warrant for my arrest."

"Doesn't he know when a fellow's ragging?"

"No," I said. "He does not."

"Do you like him, Uncle Len?"

"No," I said. "From the first moment I saw him I disliked him intensely. But I have no doubt that he is a highly successful man."

"You think he'll find out who shot old Protheroe?"

"If he doesn't," I said, "it will not be for the want of trying."

Mary appeared and said:

"Mr. Hawes wants to see you. I've put him in the drawing room, and he's a note. Waiting for an answer. Verbal will do."

I then open the note and read it.

Dear Mr. Clement:

I should be so very grateful if you could come and see me this afternoon as early as possible. I am in great trouble and would like your advice.

Sincerely yours,

ESTELLE LESTRANGE.

"Say I will come round in about half an hour," I said to Mary.

Then I went into the drawing room to see Hawes.

Stray Dogs' Aid May Not Judge Bluebloods

Irene Castle McLaughlin Disputes Show Methods.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Unwanted dogs romped in their runways at Irene Castle McLaughlin's Deerfield animal shelter—Orphans of the Storm—yesterday, safe from Chicago's unkind kicks and the dog catcher.

They were blissfully unaware that they are the center of a verbal battle waged between Mrs. McLaughlin, now in New York, and James Sullivan, superintendent of the Shore Line Kennel club's second annual dog show to be held on Sunday at Northbrook.

Mrs. McLaughlin, for years a champion of homeless animals, has withdrawn her consent to judge German shepherd dogs at Sunday's show, it was learned yesterday, because "the Shore Line Kennel club is unwilling to live up to the original agreement to give fifty per cent of the receipts to Orphans of the Storm."

The show is among the more important of the year's dog exhibitions in the middle west. It has 800 entries, blue blooded animals from the kennels of Chicago's business leaders, professional men, and from dog fanciers of the east and west. The Shore Line club has for its president Ralph Hines, son of Edward Hines.

James Sullivan, who is secretary-treasurer of the Shore Line Kennel club, when reached by phone yesterday at Northbrook, admitted a disagreement over the distribution of the show's gate receipts. He said he had not heard directly from Mrs. McLaughlin that she has refused to participate as a judge.

"Mrs. McLaughlin did not live up to the terms of our agreement," Mr. Sullivan retorted. "She was to sell all the advance tickets and receive twenty-five per cent of those sales and twenty-five per cent of the gate receipts. We made this agreement on June 26.

"Mrs. McLaughlin went to Europe and didn't sell the advance tickets. When she came back she sent me a letter on Sept. 1 that she planned to judge the shepherd dog class, provided our agreement still held. I answered the next day, saying we could not give her 25 per cent of the gate receipts since she had failed to sell the tickets as agreed. I offered to give her $125 for Orphans of the Storm from the show receipts."

Mr. Sullivan added that other judges including Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, Babylon, L. I., and Mrs. Richard Quigley, wife of Senator Quigley, Lock Haven, Pa., are not asking for favors. "Mrs. McLaughlin wants help for her charity," he said, "but she is not willing to do her share."

Orphans of the Storm has had a turbulent time since its establishment by Mrs. McLaughlin as a refuge for stary dogs in 1928. The $10,000 shelter burned to the ground and 83 animals perished last February in a fire of unknown origin. Shortly after neighbors adjoining the burned kennels threatened legal action against rebuilding the kennels on the grounds that they were a menace. The kennels, however, were rebuilt, and Mrs. McLaughlin has continued her rescue work among stray animals, placing many in permanent homes.

Col. Eddie Rickenbacker Hurt Walking in Sleep

New York, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Col. Eddie Rickenbacker, former world war ace and automobile racer, is nursing several injured vertebrae as a result of a recent 25 foot fall in a sleep walking expedition. Col. Rickenbacker said today that while he was tightly bandaged, the injury was not serious and he expected to be normal again within a few weeks. He said he had fallen from a balcony of his home at Riverdale-on-Hudson to the lawn last Sunday morning during an attack of somnambulism. These attacks have been frequent since the war, he said.

SPADES UNCOVER GREEK CITY OF STOBI THE CENTURIES HAD BURIED

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

BELGRADE, Sept. 11.—[Special.]—In Serbian Macedonia, near the village of Gradsko, there is now being unearthed a buried city, which, because of its size and the state of its preservation, archaeologists are hailing as the "Balkan Pompeii."

The excavations were begun in 1924, but only now are the excavators being rewarded by uncovering the ancient Grecian city of Stobi.

The date of the founding of Stobi is unknown, but Livy mentions it was captured in 197 B. C. by Philip V. of Macedon. It was at that time already an old city. Stobi became the capital of a Macedonian province and eventually passed into the hands of the Romans.

The excavations already have brought to light an ancient theater which apparently was used for animal and gladiatorial combats. It is 270 feet wide and could accomodate 5,000 persons. The seats are of white marble and many still retain the names of their last owners.

Near the theater is a large bastilica. It has three long aisles, each 123 feet wide, and thirteen pillars of white and rose marble separate the main aisle from the side aisles. Both the pillars of the capital and their capitals originally were gilded and covered with rich carving.

Still to be uncovered is a large building which evidently was destroyed by fire. It is 180 feet long, the central part consisting of a peristyle with a basin. A number of valuable art objects have been recovered from the peristyle, and the excavators are looking forward eagerly to the resumption of the work next spring.

Hugh Greig Library, for Oneida, Ill., Is Dedicated

Oneida, Ill., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—The Hugh Greig memorial library bequeathed to this city by Mr. Greig and furnished by his daughter, Mrs. Philip Post of Chicago, was dedicated today. The library is the former Greig home and its exceptional appointments make it an unusual library for a city of this size.

Science Group Fights Politics in Mississippi

Chemists Attack Regime at That University.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Boycott by chemistry teachers against certain Mississippi state schools, because of alleged political interference, was recommended in resolutions adopted by the division of chemical education, American Chemical society, here today.

"The division," said the resolution, "expresses its vigorous protest against the summary dismissal in June of this year of members of the faculty of state-supported schools in Mississippi, without charges being preferred or reasons publicly assigned. Apparently this move was dictated entirely by political motives with no relation to the educational interests of the institution or the state.

"The chancellor of the university and some of the most able men in his faculty were affected. Among these was Dr. J. N. Swan, chairman of this division, who has served long and efficiently as professor of chemistry.

"This action has aroused indignant opposition within the state as expressed by educational leaders and by the press. We wish to add our protest to theirs. Further, we caution members of this division against accepting positions in these institutions until steps have been taken to prevent a recurrence of this unfortunate situation. We wish also to raise the question of acceptance in the future of transfer credit from these institutions unless this condition is corrected."

Discovery at Yale of a new snow white kind of sugar in the bodies of tuberculosis germs was announced.

It is the second new tuberculosis sugar found at Yale. Two causes of baldness, arsenic and lead, said to be absorbed by living in "our present day environment," also were described. Both reports were made to the medical section.

The scientific institutions, under direction of Dr. William Charles White of Washington, D. C., are trying to run down the cause of tuberculosis and find a cure.

Dr. Robert J. Anderson of the Sterling Chemical laboratory, Yale, reported that this second sugar, like the first, comes from a substance in the germs that has been found responsible for the germs. It is composed of two well known sugars, mannose, familiar as a sugar in the manna of the children of Israel, and inosite, a substance found in the heart in body cells and often called "muscle sugar."

"This is the first time so far as we know," said Dr. Anderson, "that these two sugars have been found in combination." Adding: "This may open a new chapter." He referred to the study of how the body uses muscle sugar in the metabolism or energy production of its cells. No tests have been made yet for effects of the new sugar upon living things. Dr. Anderson named it maninosflose.

The report on baldness was made by Dr. C. N. Myers of the New York Skin and Cancer hospital. He told of tracing of several score cases of one type of baldness to arsenic and lead found in the bare patches of skin. This baldness is alopecia areata. In that case hair falls out usually in patches. It attacks persons of both sexes, all social conditions, and probably is more prevalent in the early decades of life.

This baldness, he said, is relieved by treatment that eliminates arsenic and lead from the system.

"It is pointed out emphatically," he said, "that this suggested eliminative treatment is not to be regarded as a cure for bald heads, either premature or those appearing at the normal stage of life.

"Our interest in the subject has been stimulated by the increased use of arsenic in the spraying of fruits and vegetables and in the increased presence of arsenic in foods and drugs as well as in some beverages."

MUSSOLINI FAVORS NATIONAL HOLIDAY TO MARK LATERAN TREATY

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Sept. 11.—At the next meeting of the cabinet, on Oct. 15, Premier Mussolini will submit a bill proposing that Sept. 20, the anniversary of the entry of Italian troops into Rome, cease to be a national holiday, its place to be taken by Feb. 11, the anniversary of the signing of the Lateran treaties of concillation between the church and state in Italy. The change would start next year, the ninth of the Fascist era.

The premier's decision has caused great gratification at the Vatican and indicates that relations between the Italian government and the Vatican are excellent.

Revision of Economics Urged as Remedy for the Lack of Work

Salisbury, N. C., Sept. 11.—(AP)—An economic system to "serve human needs rather than grind out profits for a privileged few" was named today as the solution for the unemployment problem. The declaration was made by the Potomac synod, Reformed Church in America, during its annual meeting here.

The discussion of unemployment was contained in the social service report of Charles D. Rockel, Altoona, Pa., which was adopted in full. It set forth that overproduction and the machine age were not responsible for unemployment, but rather the present economic system.

"The churches must strive to build a new world of spirit in the present world of economic empire," it concluded.

The report also placed the synod on record as holding that labor should be "given the freedom to organize in the way best suited to meet its needs" and be free to choose its own representatives to deal with employers.

Other sections of the report advocated old age pensions, greater teaching of temperance and deplored race prejudices "as hurtful to Christianity."

$300,000 Art Fund at Monmouth College: Building Is Included

Monmouth, Ill., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—A department of the appreciation of the fine arts with an endowment of $200,000 and $100,000 in a fund to be used for the erection of a fine arts building became a reality today in Monmouth college with the announcement by President T. H. McMichael that Dr. Ernst Derendinger of Salisbury, N. C., had been secured to head the department.

President McMichael also announced that the Carnegie corporation is presenting Monmouth college with a library of art cabinet valued at more than $6,000. The cabinet consists of between 300 and 400 volumes of technical volumes on art and more than 2,000 prints of famous paintings.

Temporary quarters for the new department have been prepared in Wallace hall and equipment and materials are being provided. A stereopticon machine with 1,500 slides from Germany has already been ordered.

Courses in the history and appreciation of art with full college credit will be offered beginning with the second semester of the present year.

It's an Artist's Job to Decorate Rail Coach Now

An interior decorator instead of a man with a bucket of paint is now the most important figure about when the finishing touches are being put on the modern railway coach, according to delegates to the equipment painters' division of the American Railway association, who yesterday concluded a three day meeting at the Congress hotel.

"The public now demands a more beautiful and restful atmosphere while traveling," said Marcsau Thierry, chairman of the division and artist for the Norfolk and Western railroad. "The novelty of train riding has worn off. It is necessary now to give the passengers an impression of remaining at home while traveling.

"Formerly any man with a steady hand and a bucket of paint could finish a coach. Today only a skilled artist can do the job. In addition to painters, interior decorators and designers are now employed. Women have entered this occupation that up to a few years ago was controlled solely by the painters' union. Miss Beatrice Allen is in charge of decoration for the New York Central."

Receipts from the tenth annual tag day of the Chicago Federated Charities will reach $82,000, Miss L. Ellen Babcock, president announced yesterday. Marine Band to Play Twice Next Tuesday Evening Concert to Be Heard on Lake Front.

Wagner and Strauss, Liszt and that more recent composer, Victor Herbert, are among those to be represented by selections played by the United States Marine band in the Chicago stadium Tuesday afternoon, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

Performing in the vast indoor arena at 1800 W. Madison street, the organization will devote two hours, afternoon and evening, to an exposition of the music of European and American composers. This concert is being presented free to the public as a result of the success of THE TRIBUNE'S Chicagoland music festival when 150,000 persons from five states thronged Soldiers' field.

The Chicago stadium will seat almost 22,000 people. Predictions yesterday were that it will be filled to capacity both afternoon and evening; the seats are open to all, "first come, first served." The afternoon concert will start shortly after 3 o'clock and the evening concert at 8, the doors for the latter being open at 6 o'clock.

Because of the success at Soldiers' field, THE TRIBUNE sought ways to take care of an overflow crowd. At first it was hoped to have the band there too, where seats would seem assured to all, but that seemed impractical, as the band is composed of only fifty and it was feared the field acoustics might not be favorable to its concert.

The Chicago stadium, however, was available, with lights and amplification equipment so arranged as to insure excellent vision and hearing from every seat. Consequently, THE TRIBUNE engaged that arena. At the same time an opportunity was seen to combine the beauty of Grant park and the Buckingham Memorial fountain with the beauty of the music.

It was decided to erect a platform at a point near the fountain. There a battery of loud speakers will be placed and connected by telephone wires to the amplifying system at the stadium. Magnified many times beyond its original strength, the music will, in that fashion, be projected on the lake front. That will enable thousands unable to gain entrance to the stadium to hear the concert while watching the spectacular display of the fountain.

From the sprightly and familiar melodies of Victor Herbert to the more sonorous compositions of Tschaikowsky, Capt. Taylor Branson has selected two programs covering a wide range in 18th century and contemporary music. Anton Dvorak, who built the song life of America into his inspiring "New World Symphony" is represented by "Carneval," one of his most famous overtures.

Johann Sebastian Bach's "Hungarian Melodies," a brilliant fantasy, was chosen because it affords an opportunity for Winfred Kemp, the Marine band cornetist, to demonstrate the truth of the claim made that he is well in the front ranks. Leoncavallo's immortal two act opera, "Pagliacci," has been musically condensed in a number called "Grand Scenes from Pagliacci," while the bridal procession from "Lohengrin," Wagner's triumph, will be reproduced.

In the afternoon, Capt. Branson will play before an audience of school children, especially dismissed from school to hear the band. In this program he reserves the right to play encores of marches, folk song and children's music to fit the temper of his listeners, while the evening performance carries a mass of serious music as well as occasional bits of popular tunes.

PRIZE MONEY SOUGHT FOR SHIP CAPTURED DURING SPANISH WAR

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 11.—(AP)—After 32 years, survivors of the crew of the U. S. S. Dixie in the Spanish-American war will carry their claim for prize money to the navy department.

The warship's crew formed an association several weeks ago and last night voted to send Lieut. Layton F. Smith, who in 1898 sailed one of the Dixie's most important prizes to a Florida port, to Washington to press their claim.

Lieut. Smith took charge of the Spanish vessel Greenan Castle after it was overtaken and captured by the Dixie off the Cuban coast.

HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD

New York, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The possibility that a third skull may have been photographed unknowingly and left behind by the Norwegian expedition of Dr. Gunnar Horn, which solved the 33 year old mystery of the disappearance of the Swedish balloonist, Dr. Salomon August Andree, developed here today.

When a photograph of the landing place of the expedition was enlarged by the Associated Press late last night a well preserved skull was found resting among the rocks on the desolate terrain of White Island. Cables to Oslo and London developed the fact that no one there had noticed the object, which blended into the picture so completely.

May Have Been Found.

As far as could be ascertained the expedition leaders were in ignorance of the relic shown in the picture of the landing place, and it may be that this is the one located by the newspaper expedition aboard the whaler Isbjoern last Sunday. The newspaper expedition, which set out to search for the returning Horn party aboard the Hratvsag, proceeded to White island after they had missed the Norwegian scientist.

While it is not possible to ascertain if there are additional relics hidden among the rocks, it is pointed out that bears might easily have moved the skull at any previous period during the long silence which shrouded the expedition's fate.

All of the descriptions of the finding of the original relics tell of their being buried in the snow and ice. The skull in the picture of the landing place lies among the rocks in a melted patch.

Reveal Andree Burial Wish.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The question of where the bones of Salomon August Andree are to be buried has been answered by his friend and classmate at the Institute of Technology in Stockholm, Arthur Leffler.

Mr. Leffler recalled that at the grave of his mother in Grenna, where Andree was born, the explorer once said, "No matter where I may be found after death, I wish to be buried beside my mother."

HORSES YIELD TO TRACTORS IN PLOW CONTEST

Cherokee, Ia., Sept. 11—[Special.]—The gradual motorization of Iowa farms and the replacement of the horse, was brought home sharply today as twenty-two tractors entered the second day's competition of the twenty-third annual Pilot Rock plowing match. Yesterday, the day for horse drawn plows, there were only twelve entries.

The sweepstakes prize for the traction entries went to Don Graham, who scored 93 in the two bottom class. First place in the three bottom class went to his brother, Bob, who had 90.5. Leo Heinen won in the professional class with 90.75, and John Beeker, who scored 92.5, won in the boys' class.

Scoring in the contest is on basis of 25 per cent for the back furrow, 25 per cent for confirmation, 10 per cent for neatness and 15 per cent for covering the trash.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Delirious

FORD'S PASSION FOR MACHINERY MAKES HIM LATE

Stops to View an Old Thresher in France.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Henry Ford arrived here by motor at 8 o'clock tonight from Cherbourg, where he landed this morning. His auto trip practically ate up the entire day, chiefly because of his passion for mechanics.

A 100 year old threshing machine, still used on an ancient farm in Normandy, lured Mr. Ford away from his wife and four friends at Rouen. He couldn't resist the temptation of inspecting the machine and urged his wife to go on to Paris.

Inspects Ancient Mower.

Proceeding to the village the auto magnate examined the old mower for several hours. He expressed his intention of purchasing similar machines for the Detroit museum. In the middle of the afternoon he lunched at Rouen and started for Paris at 5 o'clock, just at the time his wife was arriving there.

Mr. Ford and his party left the liner Bremen on a specially hired speedboat. He had nothing to say to scores of reporters waiting at Cherbourg in the drizzling rain, or at the Hotel Plaza Athenee, where his party is staying in Paris, beyond the curt words:

"I don't wish to be interviewed and anyhow I am misquoted too often by newspapers."

First Visit in Five Years.

This is Mr. Ford's first visit to France in five years. He will remain here a few days and then proceed on an auto tour of Europe, including a stop at Oberammergau for the passion play. He will inspect the Ford factory at Asnieres-sur-Oise, a Paris suburb, tomorrow.

POLICE ORDERED TO BE FRIENDLY WITH CHILDREN

Police captains were ordered by Acting Commissioner Alcock yesterday to instruct the policemen under their command to cultivate the friendship of children on the streets. Alcock also directed that first offenders under 18 years of age should not be placed in cells, but in some room of the station and their parents sent for.

"If the cases of the first offenders are given earnest and intelligent consideration it will have a tendency to make the youth of this community change their attitude toward the police and make them regard the police as their friends instead of enemies," said Commissioner Alcock. "This in itself would be of incalculable help.

"In cases which do not involve moral turpitude and the offenders are unemployed and worthy of employment, after the disposition of their cases you will turn them over to the employment officer of the district, who may be able to obtain employment for them in some neighborhood factory or place of business."

ALCOHOLIC TONIC AT BANQUET NOT CRIME, IS RULING

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—The investigation into the pre-election dinner in honor of Seymour H. Person, congressman-elect, at which a "tonic" containing 22 per cent alcohol was served, has been completed. Thomas H. Brennan, acting prohibition administrator, said Thursday. Nothing criminal could be found in the incident, Brennan said.

Person was not present at the dinner. Robert D. Wardell, secretary of the Michigan Moderation league and a state representative, presided. He said the fact that the tonic could be procured legally, in spite of its high alcoholic content, showed the hypocrisy of the prohibition laws.

He pointed out that Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt was attorney for the California Grape Growers' association, which produced the "tonic."

Man Jumps to Death from Dome of Vatican Basilica

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 11.—(AP)—For the first time on record a man committed suicide today by jumping from the cupola of St. Peter's basilica. He was Marcello Nitrati, 33, a pilgrim from Cortena. A guardian accosted him as he sat on the sill of one of the small windows in the cupola, asking what he was doing. "I am doing nothing. I am going right away," the man replied. Then as the guard turned away Nitrati leaped through the window.

RELIGION EDICT IN CHINA HITS AT METHODISTS

Danville, Ill., Sept. 11.—(AP)—A recent edict of the Chinese government forbidding the teaching of any kind of religion in the schools of China will affect seriously the work of American missionaries, Bishop William F. Anderson told the Illinois Methodist conference in session here today.

FARM BOARD MEMBER SAYS USE OF GRAPES FOR WINE INCREASES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—Home wine making has admittedly increased the diversion of California grapes for juice purposes, C. C. Teague, fruit member of the farm board stated today in a discussion of the new grange coöperative he helped to complete recently on the Pacific coast.

"After the enactment of the prohibition law the quantity of grapes diverted for juice purposes was considerably larger than it was before prohibition days," Mr. Teague said. "The demand increased because of the making of wines in the homes which is a legitimate proposition under the law."

Mr. Teague added that "you can take the grapes and crush them into beverages for your own consumption in your own home and do it legally."

RUSSIAN DECREE FORBIDS WORKERS TO CHANGE JOBS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 11.—The commissariat of labor today announced a decree to curb the labor turnover on industrial undertakings, which this year has reached unprecedented levels.

The decree foresees the necessity of blacklisting any laborer deserting one undertaking and journeying to another seeking better food and living conditions. It instructs the heads of soviet concerns to exact pledges from the workers to remain in their jobs until the five year plan is finished.

The decree forbids all institutions, organizations and undertakings to increase salaries of workers or officials who pass from one job to another. Labor organizations will immediately begin to register workers quitting their jobs, against whom special measures will be taken, either placing them into forced labor groups or on the blacklist.

HOLD LAST RITES FOR L. A. BUSBY, TRANSIT LEADER

Leonard A. Busby, transit leader, was buried yesterday afternoon in Gary Memorial cemetery at Wheaton. He had requested that his burial be in the quiet suburb where he spent most of his summers. It was in the Gary Memorial cemetery that Frank O. Wetmore, another civic and business leader who devoted much time to the transit problem, was buried recently.

Private services at the Busby residence, 420 Roscoe street, preceded the burial with only close friends and members of the family attending. Six associates in the business life of Mr. Busby were pallbearers.

Surviving Mr. Busby are his widow and two children, Janet and Jack.

Transform Pork Sausage Into a Delicacy.

BY META GIVEN.

Only a suggestion! I should like to advise you to invest in some red peppers today when you go food shopping for the week-end. Not the large, mild Spanish green or red kind but the variety that is brilliant red in color and about as big as one's finger. Some are about finger length, others are only about half that long. Either kind is good.

Buy enough to at least fill a pint cup. String them on a thread as you would beads and hang them in a place free from dust, where they can thoroughly dry. In about two weeks they may be put into a dry jar and sealed up already for use.

Difficult to Get in Winter.

These peppers are most difficult to obtain in the winter time, so if you love them then, it will be necessary for you to get them now.

Lots this fall and in the winter I will use in this column some recipes calling for these hot, peppery peppers. So much pepper will be used but just that little bit is essential to make some foods superb.

One recipe that I will give you [when it is in season] is one for delicious country pork sausage for which the Ozark and Blue Ridge mountain people are famous. These people never over do the use of pepper as do the Mexicans who make their food fiery with it. Instead they seem to have learned how to use it in a way that is not objectionable.

Used in Vegetable Cookery.

In addition to sausage these mountaineers also use a little pepper in vegetable cookery. Navy beans and cabbage are their favorites. The beans are cooked with a pig shank until both beans and meat are tender. A pod of pepper goes in for the last half hour of cooking. In cooking cabbage a pod of red pepper is simmered in water for about 15 minutes. Then salt and the finely chopped green cabbage is added and the cabbage is cooked until just done.

I used to think that perhaps I might be sentimental about these foods because they were important in my childhood dietary. But to this day even I have the pleasure and privilege of indulging I know that I haven't changed my opinion about that little bit of red pepper.

FRENCH FRIED POTATOES.

Four large potatoes.
Deep fat.
Salt.

Select Early Ohio or Early Rose potatoes for frying. Never choose a mealy potato like a baking or good boiling potato for French frys. A waxy potato is best. Peel, wash, and dry potatoes thoroughly. Cut into halfwise pieces about one-half inch wide and deep. Wipe pieces dry with a towel. Heat deep fat to 375 degrees F. Put only a few potatoes into the frying basket at one time. Dip the basket into the fat, lifting up now and then to see how the cooking is progressing. Lift basket up to drain off fat. Turn the potatoes on to unglazed paper to absorb excess fat. Sprinkle with salt. Serve hot. Potato balls may also be French fried and are most effective for special service.

Yield: Four servings. One serving: total, 200 calories; protein, 11 calories; fat, 181 calories; carbohydrates, 88 calories.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

If you have a household hint or unique discovery you are willing to pass on to other housewives, send it to Sally Lunn, Chicago Tribune. Recipes are excluded.

I keep one of the four sided graters, obtainable in the dime store, in my laundry room. I use the cabbage shredder side to chip up my favorite laundry soap into the machine and boiler. It is more satisfactory than cutting the soap with a knife and a lot more economical than buying ready made soap chips.

Mrs. M. Q., Chicago.

To restore woolens which have become hard and shrunken to their former softness, soak them in gasoline for a few hours. Then wash as usual in soft soap suds, and rinse in water of the same temperature. Do not rub the woolens, but squeeze them in the hands.

Warm lemons before squeezing and you will receive more juice.

When storing boxes on high closet shelves I attach tags, describing contents, on long cords so I can read the list of contents without climbing on a stool or step ladder or taking down half a dozen other boxes.

Soiled wicker furniture may be cleaned and brightened by washing in strong salt water.

E. S., Chicago.

Into a wooden box put the coarse outside leaves of lettuce, old beet leaves, any trimmings of cabbage or other vegetables, cobs, corn shucks, etc. Over this put a few inches of earth. Repeat, as vegetable trimmings accumulate. Keep the contents of the box moist. Let the box freeze in cold weather. By spring you will have a box of rich soil with which to replenish flower pots. Or, if you have a garden, bury the accumulation in some out of the way corner, or even among the flowers. You will be surprised to see how plants will respond to the added humus. I've buried lettuce leaves in my flower pots.

I know that having a compost heap is not a new idea, but my box application is new, I think.

Refrigeration in Food Stores Proves Success

BY PAUL POTTER.

The day of the musty odored grocery or food store, with its mingling scents of stale cheese, potatoes aged in the bin, and fruits too long unsorted, has gone. In the city and in the small town food store the combination of packaged products and improved ventilation and refrigeration has brought a new air of cleanliness and freshness about the dispensing of highly perishable products.

But indications are that perfection has not been reached in this modernizing process, since some of the food stores in Chicago are just reporting the results of experimentation in the encasing and temperature control problems of present day merchandising.

At a Cost of $100,000.

Atmospheric control in industry has been estimated by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, to have effected a saving of $15,000,000 a year in recent years. The air cooling devices established in theaters and restaurants, and for many years an essential factor in the cold storage of foodstuffs, have been tried out in at least two local food stores this summer.

As reported by E. L. Rhoades of the University of Chicago in his "New Era in Food Distribution," one such installation cost nearly $100,000. The air in this store is now brought in, passes through oil screens which extract the dirt, and is washed by passing through a spray of water.

The air is cooled by means of a 175 ton ice machine, which assists in keeping the humidity down to 70 per cent, varying with outside weather conditions and the requirements of perishable foods on display. This is the most recent step in advance of the now casual sight in meat markets, modern bakeries, and other establishments with refrigerated displays.

Increases Efficiency.

"Distribution of perishable foods has been aided, officials of these stores tell me, in that perishables displayed at an even temperature do not deteriorate rapidly when exposed to the heat," declares Prof. Rhoades. "Under extreme refrigeration of these foods it is scarcely possible to display them properly, and they are said to maintain a higher degree of perishability when subjected to heat after the customer gets them."

This new temperature control is also considered a means of increasing efficiency of the workers, while the fact that shoppers find it comfortable to shop in such temperatures is a drawing card. In cold weather the process is reversed by heating the air in place of cooling it, and humidity is dried out of the air.

The Associated Bakers of America are studying some of the so-called food poisonings charged against this trade, under supervision of the University of Chicago. They also are cooperating with the Chicago health department this summer in voluntarily asking a ban on distributing highly perishable bakery goods from May 15 to Sept. 15, unless they were handled in refrigerated equipment and kept at not less than 55 degrees temperature.

ACCURATE MEASURES LIGHTEN LABOR

BY SALLY LUNN.

An inexperienced woman who sets out to buy herself a set of measuring utensils is encountered by a number of difficulties she seldom realizes are present. The sales person will show her a number of cups of various shapes and sizes. Usually she will pick out one she thinks will do quite well. She goes home, uses it, has successes and failures with the food she prepares using it and cannot understand why the product should vary from time to time. A careful worker who follows directions exactly will never think of blaming the measuring cup.

Experiments in a good many home economics laboratories have shown conclusively that the amount of material measured in one cup will not always measure the same quantity in another. Differences arise in the markings on the cup and the ease with which one can read them. A glass cup would seem the best to measure parts of a cup, as the exact level of the material can be easily seen. But the markings on glass cups are usually very wide and most people do not know whether the top, middle, or lower edge of the mark is the place they want.

Measuring Portions.

Metal cups have sharper lines to denote portions of the cup, but it is difficult to see from a higher level if the measurement is correct. Enameled or earthenware cups are likely to be the least accurate, as their markings are wide and they are not transparent. However, either the glass or metal cup is accurate enough for whole cup measurements. They fall down on the measurements of portions of a cup, especially of solids.

Flour must be lightly handled and the contortions one goes through to get the level to exactly one-half a cup are likely to pack the flour down. We find a set of four cups—1, ½, 1-3, ¼—are really the best for accurate measurements, and these may be procured at all department stores as well as at the better hardware stores.

To use these cups properly we must have an exact method of measurement so that our amounts will not vary from time to time because of the method of packing. Flour and sugar should be sifted first, then gently dipped into the cup with a spoon and the top leveled off with a spatula. Solid fats of all kinds and brown sugar should be packed tightly into the cup so that there are no air spaces.

Set of Spoons Useful.

Another measuring utensil few people have is a set of spoons. These spoons come in a set of four—tablespoon, teaspoon, one-half teaspoon, and one-fourth teaspoon. These do away with the necessity of guessing at the quantity of baking powder or vanilla in a half or fourth a teaspoon and provide a standard, as the ordinary spoons in the home vary in size due to the bending during handling, or the whim of the manufacturer.

Accurate measurement of materials to be used in food preparation plays a much larger part in success than most people think possible.

De Paul President Going, Alumni Honor Him and Successor

At a banquet held at the Chicago Athletic club, two hundred members of the De Paul University Alumni association last night honored the Rev. Thomas F. Levan. For the last ten years he has been president of that university. He is leaving to become head of the Vincentian seminary, Perryville, Mo. Also honored was the Rev. Francis V. Corcoran, who has been transferred from the Kenrick seminary at Webster Groves, Mo., to assume charge of De Paul.

The principal speaker of the evening was Dr. J. J. Monahan.

"De Paul university under the leadership of Dr. Levan is to be complimented on the manner in which it teaches students to think," he said. "Many of our great universities are merely retelling the thoughts of previous great scholars. Education should not be standardized. It should be as individual as the students. If a student is taught to think it matters less what he thinks."

Formal Costumes Take to the Longer Tunics

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Tunics tend to replace inside blouses, especially with dressy afternoon suits. In fact, the blouse is gradually disappearing from the formal Paris mode, being either attached to the contrasting skirt or frankly and independently flared and draped or belted.

Velvet, broadcloth, flat fur or satin suits often have tunics that echo the line of their accompanying coats. Augustabernard makes short, white satin, pullover tunics to wear with her jacket suits of black or midnight blue; Chanel always prefers the vest or tunic to the inside blouse. Louise-boulanger favors half-length tunics flared like Russian blouses.

But if Jean Patou has his way you will wear a three-quarter tunic of satin that contrasts with your suit but imitates your seven-eighths coat in line, this winter.

The Patou ensemble sketched above is full of style points characteristic of the new season. It's of black broadcloth, that chic fabric par excellence, trimmed with black astrakhan. Its flared coat wrapped far over toward the left side is edged with a band of astrakhan that runs round the neck and pulls through a slot in front in a scarflike manner. The draped and flared astrakhan cuffs are also new.

Katherine K. Tod, Not Earl's Kindred, Bradley Martin's Bride

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Miss Katherine Kennedy Tod, daughter of Robert E. Tod, former immigration commissioner for New York, and Henry Bradley Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin of Westbury, N. Y., were married today in the Cathedral of the Incarnation.

The Right Rev. Ernest M. Stires, Episcopal bishop of Long Island, and the Rev. George P. T Sargent, dean of the cathedral, officiated.

The bridegroom at one time was reported engaged to Miss Valerie French of London, granddaughter of the Earl of Ypres, who visited him in a Denver hospital during his recovery from an automobile accident a year ago. The engagement later was denied.

Erect Bearing Does Much to Increase One's Beauty Assets

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Beauty today has no time for timidity, fear or any feeling of inferiority. It's like any other talent. If you haven't the nerve to push it yourself, people are not going to take the trouble to discover it for you.

The force of this was brought to my attention recently. A certain young woman was under discussion. If you analyze her, point for point, with any other member of her group, she measures up well. Her features are good, her eyes are fine. Her Swedish blonde hair is an outstanding asset. Her figure would be good if it didn't express an unnecessary timidity in a sort of cringing slouch. You've seen people like that. You know if they would only unravel themselves and come right up and out in the open with themselves they'd be more attractive.

There isn't a reason in the world why the one under discussion shouldn't be a perfect knockout. Girls with half her assets manage to make personalities of themselves. But the cringer loses her looks along with whatever personality she might have were she less fearful of what people will say or think about her.

It has ever been an astonishing thing to me, the manner in which some girls and women of comparatively few actual beauty graces manage to convey the impression of "good lookers." They talk as if they had no deficits of feature, form or coloring to regret, and they act in a beautifully unself-conscious way. They put themselves over in a big way on a limited beauty allowance.

The physical aid in this connection I believe firmly to lie with posture; giving the aspect of pride, courage, assurance, which nothing can impart so successfully as a good bearing. Military school students give a good idea of what is meant. They suggest by their good carriage a physical stamina that is highly attractive.

Certainly there is no hint of inferiority about them, nor fear, nor timidity. While girls need not have a military bearing, still that sureness of self the military student exhibits unconsciously is a most desirable beauty quality.

Miss Picher and J. D. Purcell Jr. Will Wed Today

BY THALIA

A wedding and a debutante tea are to take place this afternoon on the north shore. Miss Charlotte Picher, who is to marry Joseph D. Purcell Jr. is to be the bride, and Miss Lucie Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Jacobs, the debutante.

The wedding is to take place at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Oliver Picher in Hubbard Woods and will be attended by the families and a small group of friends. Miss Muriel Picher is to be her sister's maid of honor, and the only other attendants are Miss Jane Rowe and Miss Jean MacLeish. Paul Butler is to serve Mr. Purcell as best man. Mr. Purcell and his bride are to leave for a brief honeymoon and will return in time for her to be one of the bridesmaids at Jean MacLeish's wedding to John Dern on Sept. 20.

Miss Jacobs' coming-out tea will be from 4 to 7 o'clock this afternoon at the Jacobs' residence on Woodley road in Winnetka. Augmenting the local debs who will assist at the party will be several of Miss Jacobs' schoolmates at Wellesley. These include Miss Jane Collett of New York City, Miss Dwen Kearney of Farmington, Conn., and Miss Frances Wisner of Toronto.

Mrs. Prentiss L. Coonley and her daughters, Miss Alice and Miss Eleanor Coonley are arriving this morning from Great Barrington, Mass., to be here for several weeks. Miss Eleanor and her cousin, Miss Constance Hasler, are to have a debut reception at the Lake Forest residence of Miss Hasler's mother, Mrs. Edward S. Hasler, tomorrow afternoon, while Miss Alice is to be one of the bridesmaids at Miss Jane Warner's wedding to Edson Dick, on Sept 23. Mrs. Coonley and the debutante will be with Mrs. Hasler, and the other member of the trio will stay with Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr., while she is here.

Tommy and Knowlton Ames III., the young sons of Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton L. Ames Jr. are the proud proprietors of what is probably the world's smallest miniature golf course, that they have constructed themselves in the front yard of a vacant house next door to the Ames' residence on North State street.

The course is laid out over a space about 3 yards square, and the bunkers, hazards and other appurtenances are made of bricks and pieces of wood. When business isn't rushing the boys make use of their spare time to take a velocipede ride or play with their Scottie. Up to yesterday, the cashier had taken in 60 cents in paid admissions to the course, at 5c a round. The golf balls were contributed by a well-wishing neighbor.

The Junior league is getting busy early this year to put their children's theater on a firmer financial footing, and already have opened their office in the Drake to send out literature and coupon books in preparation for a subscription campaign. At a meeting at the league office next Monday afternoon Margot Atkin, who is chairman of the drive; Helen Tieken, who is in charge of the theater, and Angela Johnston, the business manager, will give pep talks to the prospective salesmen.

Miss Kate Buckingham is to have as guests at her villa, Bald Head, at Lenox, Mass., next week, Judge and Mrs. John Munro Woolsey of New York City. The Siamese minister at Washington, Prince Amorodst Krivinkara, and his daughter, who have been visiting Miss Buckingham, have returned to their summer place at Lake George.

Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Willier W. Kimball of Rumford Falls, Me., and her sister, Mrs. Charles Abbott, are now visiting her at her place, Tor Court at Pittsfield, Mass. Kimball Salisbury has returned to Chicago.

One of the sure signs that autumn is upon us is the resumption of the weekly arrival of the opera box committee meeting announcements. The Friends of Opera are to give next week's luncheon at the Casino.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Interrieden Amberg have now gone to housekeeping at 11 East Elm street. Mrs. Amberg was Miss Agnes Ward Keeley before her marriage in Madison, Wis., last June.

Dr. and Mrs. George King Corsant have taken an apartment at the Seneca for the winter, and are to move in early October.

ENGAGED

MISS VIRGINIA SNOOK.

Mrs. Charles Snook of Evanston announces the engagement of her daughter, Virginia, to William Kirn Tell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tell of Chicago. Miss Snook was graduated last June from Northwestern university. Mr. Tell is a senior in Northwestern law school.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—[Special.]—A lively schedule for a few days has been made out for the delegates to the eighth annual congress of the F. I. D. A. C., which will open here on Sept. 13 and run through the twenty-first. President and Mrs. Hoover will hold a reception on the afternoon of the 18th. Gen. Pershing will give the delegates a dinner that evening at Wardman Park hotel. The secretary of state, Henry L. Stimson, will give a dinner at the Willard for them Sept. 20 and the secretary of war, Patrick J. Hurley, will give one on the evening of the twenty-first at the Congressional Country club. Between times there will be many private affairs in their honor. The "Fidac" is composed of veterans of all the allied nations.

The secretary of the navy, Charles Francis Adams, left tonight for Newport for the races to be held over the week-end.

The assistant secretary of war for aviation and Mrs. Trubee Davison have leased the house in Georgetown, which is in the same block, and only several doors from the home of Col. and Mrs. Edward Clifford, formerly of Chicago.

The director general of the Pan-American union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, entertained diplomatic officials, smart residential and musical circles tonight at one of his delightful al fresco concerts in the Pan-American building and grounds in honor of the delegates to the inter-American conference on agriculture, forestry and animal industry now meeting here. The United States Navy band, Lieut. Charles Benter, director; Margarita Cueto, Mexican soprano; and the Argentine trio gave the program on the esplanade.

The British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, has returned to the Embassy from a visit on Long Island following a visit to Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, widow of the former American ambassador to England, at her Adirondack camp.

Two Movie Stars Here; Tell of Future Plans

Two more moving picture stars reached Chicago yesterday from Hollywood—Jack Oakie, the "Sap from Syracuse," who journeyed on to Buffalo for a personal appearance, and Lillian Roth, who will appear in a loop theater this week. They had just completed "The Big Shot," in which they appear together. Miss Roth was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Catherine Roth. Lillian said she probably will appear next in "Rose of the Rancho."

Chicago Charities Benefit by $700,000 Frank Kinsey Left

The income of a $100,000 trust fund will be shared by four charitable institutions under the will of Frank Kinsey, president of the American Key Can company. That will, disposing of an estate of $700,000, was filed yesterday with Probate Clerk Mitchell C. Robin. The beneficiaries include the Chicago Orphan asylum, the Home for Destitute and Crippled Children, the United Charities and the Infant Welfare society. The remainder goes to two brothers, George Kinsey of Cincinnati, and Samuel Kinsey of Pittsburgh, and to other relatives. Mr. Kinsey died Aug. 6 at the Windermere East hotel. His home was in Cincinnati.

Bremenshafen Recalls 100 Years as Port; Yankee First Visitor

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—At the stroke of midnight tonight Bremenshafen, Port Bremen, will begin its celebration of the 100th anniversary of the opening of its harbor with American and German flags, parades and speeches.

The American ships in the harbor are expected to join in the celebration since it was an American, Capt. Hillert of the schooner Draper, who was the first to enter the new harbor 100 years ago.

Capt. Hillert made a bet that he would be able to slip in before any German ship, and succeeded.

Sorority Meeting Tonight.

Terrible Acid, Gassy Stomach Suffering Ended

Delighted With Astounding Relief New Formula Acidine Brings

"I'm entirely satisfied with what Acidine has done for gas-on-the-stomach and acidity that bothered me a great deal," says Mrs. Bartolo of New York City, "I suffered terribly from these two ailments and I want to thank Acidine for my improvement. I am almost normal in my health now and I think it my duty to highly recommend this wonderful medicine." Banish right now burning, acid stomach, gnawing, knifelike pains before or after eating, belching, gas, bloating, heartburn, dizziness, fullness, short breath. New formula Acidine stops pain and gas and quickly ends acid stomach trouble. Get Acidine from your druggist today—it is not expensive—and say goodbye to stomach torture for good. No formula for acidity surpasses Acidine. Contains an effective starch digestant, Japtase, which digests 800 times its own weight of starchy food, in laboratory tests. Five other scientific ingredients neutralize burning acid, stop gas, soothe irritated stomach lining. Cleans up the troubles that commonly lead to stomach distress. Acidine is safe, harmless, and pleasant for adults and children. Used by millions of people. Costs you nothing if it fails for the Acidine people say to every druggist, "If any customer is displeased with the results obtained from Acidine, give them back their money immediately." Keep Acidine in your home always. Get it today at any drug store or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Pastors Relate Yearly Efforts for Full Pews

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Many Protestant pastors are pondering the question of the rapid decline in church attendance. As the fall season opens some throughout this city are devising ways and means to restore the former popular loyalty to the family pew.

The Rev. Howard R. Brinker, rector of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church, Stewart avenue and Normal parkway, and president of the Episcopal clergy round table, has pronounced the problem as the "most vital and serious in present day church life."

Dr. Brinker declared that he attacked the problem by selecting 100 members of his parish who have agreed to make at least three calls on parish members each week in the interest of church attendance. He pointed out that less than one-half of the membership of his church—numbering 1,100—attend services even irregularly, while about half that number attend regularly. Dr. Brinker declared that people should be taught that it is a sin not to attend church on Sunday and that religion is entitled to recognition in civic life.

Walter R. Mee, executive secretary of the Chicago Church federation, admitted that attendance at regular services has fallen off, but he said there are two sides to the picture. He pointed to the transition from "the old time religion" to modern religious expression, which does not depend entirely on Sunday services of worship and the mid-week prayer meeting for its effectiveness. Mr. Mee said those services were important, but that most churches are coming to be seven day enterprises, and if "the total attendance of week day and Sunday services were taken and compared with Sunday attendance of old days the balance would greatly favor the present practice."

The change of method indicated by Mr. Mee was confirmed by Prof. Henry N. Wieman of the divinity school of the University of Chicago. Prof. Wieman declared a complete reconstruction of the ministry is required to meet present needs. He stated preaching was the supremely important item in the age in which the present Protestant churches first were organized.

"Preaching is not supremely important today as it was when Protestantism began," Dr. Wieman declared. He cited what he believes to be two major causes for decline in attendance at regular services. "We have rediscovered many other means of religious expression," he said, "and while church attendance is important, preaching no longer monopolizes the field of religious worship."

Dr. Wieman pointed out as the second cause of decline as "the inadequate formulation of religious instruction and ideas." He indicated that the present day is unsettled in its religious thought and that conflicting teaching and methods of the various churches have confused the people. So, in great numbers of cases, they have ceased going to churches and have sought religious expression without such aid.

Following the general plan of Dr. Brinker, a number of other churches have undertaken intensive "salesmanship" plans for the promotion of attendance. The Rev. Dr. Frank Wakefield, pastor of the Englewood Methodist Episcopal church, and the Rev. Walter C. Bihler of Christ Episcopal church, Woodlawn, have intensive programs under way. Dr. Bihler has divided his parish into 16 zones with laymen as zone leaders.

On the other hand, the Rev. E. S. White, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, supports the movement suggested by Prof. Wieman that encourages a return to certain pre-reformation practices, not solely depending on regular Sunday services. Dr. White believes that the American people more and more will follow the English custom of a wider use of the churches for private devotions. He hoped the people could be taught to use the churches during the week for moments of quiet and meditation. That, Dr. White believes, would improve the spiritual life today.

The Chicago Church federation is preparing specific plans for coöperative evangelism among its member churches. More than 12,000 members were added to Chicago church rolls in the campaign of visitation evangelism conducted last spring.

"I wonder if you could assist an old woman, an inmate of an old people's home, get some sort of support? She has had an operation for gallstones and is unable to buy the surgical corset necessary for her comfort. She would take a size 40 to 44.

"MRS. E. M."

Have you the abdominal support which was so helpful to you after your recent operation? If it is in good condition and you no longer wear it, won't you give it to this elderly woman?

Girl, 19, Should Be Reasonable About Dad's 2d Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am one of the unfortunate children who lost her mother and who is about to have a stepmother," says Marie. Then she proceeds to commiserate with herself on the domestic situation confronting her. Stepmothers in Marie's mind are wrong, always. The children of the former wife cannot be. The lack of understanding on a stepmother's part stirs Marie to unkind words.

"Stepmothers," she says, "should try to put themselves in the children's place; understand how they'd feel when their mother's place is usurped," and so on and so on.

Marie is 19, old enough to realize that it is just as hard to be a stepmother as to be stepmothered. Harder, in fact, with the sympathy always on the younger one's side. In Marie's case, hostility strongly flavors the idea of a stepmother's entrance on the scene, handicapping the new mother's chances of ever attempting the sympathetic understanding wanted.

The father of a girl of 19 sees the day of his daughter's setting out on her own. He wants companionship and love. The stepmother problem, when there is one, is the father's making. He asks the woman to marry him. He does it of his own free will. Now, a young modern thinking person should use her head about her father's second marriage. She should be willing to practice the live and let live theories of her generation. Setting oneself up as a creature of pity because she is about to be stepmother does not belong to our era of straight thinking.

The wide world is before the girl of 19. She can occupy her time with so many useful and enjoyable pursuits that self pity has no time or place in her program. By doing so, she will give the new mother a chance to make good on her job. A hard job it is, too, under the most favorable circumstances, for there is always the shadow of that other mother stalking her every effort at understanding and love.

Indifference, without a reason, usually indicates loss of interest. In that event you want to look about for another beau.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

CHILD'S DRESS.

A scalloped yoke to which is attached a full gathered skirt, makes an unusually pretty dress. The yoke with it's long shoulders does away with the necessity of using sleeves, and the skirt edge is scalloped to match the yoke. Yellow and white dimity with plain yellow for the collar is darling, while dotted swiss, pique print combined with plain, crêpe de chine and wool challis are suitable materials.

The pattern, 2503, comes in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 requires 1 yard of 32 inch material with ¾ yard of 27 inch contrasting and 2¼ yards of binding.

Marconi Says Radio Waves Conquer Space

TRENTO, Italy, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Marchese Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy, in the inaugural address at the second meeting of the Italian Society for Advancement of Science today, expressed belief that radio waves may travel long distances, even millions of miles beyond the earth's atmospheric layer.

Sig. Marconi said he did not see any reason why, as some scientists maintain, waves produced on the earth should not travel such a distance, since light and heat waves reach us from the sun, penetrating the atmospheric layer.

The scientist referred to the observations of such men as Stormer and Federsen, and commented that the former electrified particles derived from the sun and under the magnetic influence of the earth, which acted as a reflector of electric waves from the earth after they had passed the so-called heaviside and kenelly layer.

"The existence of various reflecting layers," he said, "is the best hpothesis on which to base an explanation of long distance wave transmission which overcomes the curve of the earth. Layers capable of reflecting electric waves exist at heights varying with the hour of the day and the season of the year. These layers also are influenced by the effects of light, by electric and magnetic activity of the sun, and by other causes as yet unknown.

"The influence of these layers on the propagation of electric waves explains the variations observed in the waves' intensity and traveling distance accordingly as they travel through the illuminated or dark zones. This again would point to the capital importance of the season and of the hour for determining what waves are most suited to radio transmissions.

"Radio engineers should therefore keep in touch with the work of meteorologists and astronomers, but it is equally useful for the latter to keep in touch with the former, owing to the powerful means which modern developments have placed at the disposal or radio stations."

Sig Marconi said that because of these reflecting layers the angle of transmission in respect to the surface of the earth is of great importance. He hinted at the possibility of electric exploration of space. Speaking of the new under ten meters short wave radio stations, operating between Italy and Sardinia, he said these waves would seem to be reflected and contained in space between the surface of the earth and a layer much lower than the heaviside layer, while other observations made with short waves above ten meters would seem to show that these waves are not confined to a limited space near the earth.

The inventor analyzed the progress in radio communication obtained by means of short waves and the beam system, and he pointed out that qualities of short waves have been studied and demonstrated by him since 1915. Owing to the usefulness of these waves, he said, powerful organizations, owning more than 50 per cent of the world's cables, had been obliged to come to terms with the Marconi company.

Sig. Marconi related how radio waves often chose the longer route rather than the nearest distance between the communicating stations and he referred to a paper read by him on this subject to the Institute of Radio Engineers in New York in 1922, adding that this phenomenon already is fully exploited in radio transmission.

He said wireless echoes were among the most fascinating of phenomena, capable of disclosing the most useful facts. He divided echoes into classes according as they indicate that electric waves have covered distances before returning to us in the form of echoes shorter or longer than the circumference of the earth.

Do You Really Want Absolutely Perfect Child?

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A booklet on sex education will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans—

Is your daughter always obedient?
Yes.
Does your boy like to wash?
Yes.
Does he keep his clothes clean?
Yes.
Is he always polite?
Yes.
Does your little girl keep her room in perfect order?
Yes.
Does your boy always close doors softly?
Yes.
Does he do everything you ask him to?
Yes.
Does he always wipe his muddy feet and wear rubbers whenever it rains?
Yes.
Then you must have perfect children.

And wouldn't that be uninteresting! Who would want such docile, thoroughly civilized, spiritless children as that? Not I—not you, I'm sure. And yet sometimes we parents act as though that were exactly what we did want.

We aim for perfection. We hold the perfect child in our mind's eye as a pattern for our own. And we take it hard when ours don't measure up.

We pick up each mistake, we make much of each slip, we nag and fret and follow up non-essentials.

We use a dozen words where one would do.

We forget that children are close to nature and that the bonds of decorum and civilization irk them, sometimes.

We forget that they can't learn everything at once — manners, deftness, self-control.
